SPECIAL ISSUE ANNOUNCEMENT

A special issue of Sociological Methods & Research titled "Social Research in the Courts," is planned for publication near the beginning of 1983. Manuscripts should be submitted by April 1, 1982. Articles on the following topics are especially encouraged, but all papers related to the issue's title will be considered.

—Methodological concerns surrounding the use of social science data and analytical procedures in judicial proceedings.
—The social scientist as expert witness.
—Methods for studying courtroom behavior.
—Comparisons of legal and nonlegal models of "proof."
—Public policy implications of increased use of social science research in the courts.

It is hoped that manuscripts will represent a variety of disciplines, such as anthropology, law, political science, psychology, sociology and others. SMR style sheets are available upon request.

Manuscripts for this special issue should be sent to:

NO ACCESS TO LAW

ALTERNATIVES TO THE AMERICAN JUDICIAL SYSTEM

Edited by LAURA NADER

FROM THE PREFACE: In 1973 a proposal was submitted to the Carnegie Corporation from the Center for the Study of Responsive Law in Washington, D.C., the organization headed by my brother, Ralph Nader. It proposed to establish a Consumer Complaint Research Center to learn in greater detail about the actual operation or non-operation of existing grievance-handling mechanisms in government, business, volunteer, and individual complaint management. . . . What we have found is a serious indictment of the types of relationships that have evolved along with our evolving GNP.

CONTENTS: STRUCTURE AND IDEAS. L. Nader, Alternatives to the American Judicial System. L. Nader and C. Shugart, Old Solutions for Old Problems. VOICING COMPLAINTS. E. Freedman, "Dear Mr. Nader:" A Study of Consumer Complaint Letters. P. Addiss, The Life History Complaint Case of Martha and George Rose: "Honoring the Warranty." MECHANISMS FOR REDRESS. D. I. Greenberg and T. H. Stanton, Business Groups, Consumer Problems: The Contradiction of Trade Association Complaint Handling. M. Eaton, The Better Business Bureau: "The Voice of the People in the Marketplace." A. Karikas and R. Rosenwasser, Department Store Complaint Management. D. Serber, Resolution on Rhetoric: Managing Complaints in the California Department of Insurance. A. Karikas, Solving Problem in Philadelphia: An Ethnography of a Congressional District Office. D. I. Greenberg, Easy Terms, Hard Times: Complaint Handling in the Ghetto. G. Wilson and E. Brydolf, Grass Roots Solutions: San Francisco Consumer Action. M. E. Combs-Schilling, Grieving and Feuding; The Organizational Dilemma of a Labor Union. M. C. Mattice, Media in the Middle: A Study of the Mass Media Complaint Managers. Subject Index.

THE POLICY DILEMMA
Federal Crime Policy and the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration

Malcolm Feeley and Austin D. Sarat

"Feeley and Sarat provide an interesting review of the development of the LEAA grant program that offers not only a fascinating post mortem on that program, as it is about to be interred, but also a valuable set of insights into the qualities of federal programs that are necessary for successful implementation. As we experience the anticipated reductions in domestic programs in the 1980s, this book will provide useful guidance to those responsible for planning or managing those cutbacks." —Alfred Blumstein, Carnegie-Mellon University $17.50 cloth, $7.95 paper

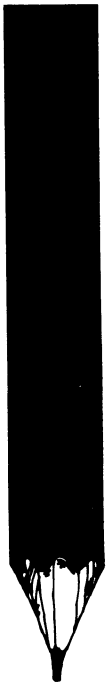

A POLITICAL ANALYSIS OF DEVIANCE

Pat Lauderdale, editor

Focusing on such diverse conflicts as antiwar trials, violence in sports, protest movements, and police riots, this study considers the process by which society draws boundaries between various types of behavior and proposes a broader definition of political deviance. Contributors, in addition to Lauderdale, are: James Inverarity, Jerry Parker, Rhoda Estep, Lyle Hallowell, and Albert James Bergesen. $20.00

Race and Schooling in the City

Adam Yarmolinsky, Lance Liebman, and Corinne S. Schelling, Editors

Leading experts on desegregation, among them Diane Ravitch, Nathan Glazer, Harold R. Isaacs and Derrick Bell, offer a provocative, challenging assessment of one of America's most visible controversies. They debate the wide range of educational, legal, political, ethical, social, economic and demographic issues in a book that reaches beyond the narrow disputes about busing to provide rich implications for the future. $17.50

FELONY ARRESTS: Their Prosecution and Disposition in New York City's Courts Revised edition

Since its initial appearance in 1977, FELONY ARRESTS has established itself as a classic work in criminal justice. This study reports on the results of two studies undertaken during 1973–76 by the Vera Institute of Justice in an effort to understand what actually happens to felony arrest cases in the criminal process. Based upon examination of New York City court records—from arrest through disposition—the work presents a highly credible portrait of the criminal justice process in felony cases.

1981. 153 pages, tables, graphs paper $6.95 582-28187-3
also available in hardcover $17.50 582 28195 4

Founded in 1969, the Vera Institute of Justice is a private, nonprofit corporation which has established an international reputation for its efforts on behalf of an improved criminal justice system; it functions in a dual role as both an action and a research agency.

TWO POLICY PERIODICALS FOR THE PRICE OF ONE

Starting in June or September, 1981, the Policy Studies Organization will publish two periodicals. One will be the Policy Studies Journal and the other will be the Policy Studies Review. Each periodical will be a quarterly with about one special issue per year, meaning a combination of about ten issues per year. Each regular issue will be over 150 pages, meaning a combination of about 1,500 PAGES per year. Both periodicals will be received for the price of a $12 subscription to the Policy Studies Journal.

The themes for the first five issues for each periodical will tentatively be:

POLICY STUDIES JOURNAL

1. Urban Services
   R. Rich
2. Corrections Policy
   J. Doig
3. State Government Policy
   D. Judd, F. Teitelbaum, & J. Brizius
4. Communities in Economic Crisis
   S. Redburn & T. Buss
5. Administrative Reform
   G. Caiden

POLICY STUDIES REVIEW

1. Anthropology & Policy
   D. Stull & A. Yamamoto
2. Higher Education
   S. Gove & T. Stauffer
3. Regulatory Policy
   M. Dubnick & A. Gitelson
4. Rural Policy
   D. Hadwiger, W. Browne, & M. Weinbaum
5. Poverty Policy
   R. Goldstein & S. Sachs

The general PURPOSE of both periodicals is to show how political and social science can be relevant to important policy problems. Nearly all the issues are "special" in the sense of containing specially-funded symposia. The regular quarterly issues also contain non-symposium articles, literature reviews, and organization/journal developments.

The Policy Studies Journal will be coordinated by Stuart Nagel of the University of Illinois, and the Policy Studies Review will be coordinated by Dennis Palumbo of the University of Kansas. The PSR will especially emphasize symposia related to implementation and evaluation, and PSJ will emphasize a more varied approach to policy studies. The PSR will also emphasize a more interdisciplinary orientation, while PSJ will place relatively more emphasis on political science.

Individuals wishing to subscribe to both periodicals for one year should send a check for ONLY $12 to the Policy Studies Organization, 361 Lincoln Hall, University of Illinois, Urbana, Illinois 61801. For a two-year subscription, there is a 10% discount, bringing the second-year cost down to $10.80; and for a three-year subscription, there is a 15% discount, bringing the third-year cost down to $10.20. Invoices can be provided. The ten issues bought individually would be $3 apiece to individuals and $5 apiece to libraries, or $30 and $50 per year or volume, rather than $12 on an individual subscription basis.

In addition to the ten issues per year, new subscribers are entitled to receive free any two of the six PSO directories dealing with policy studies among government agencies, teaching programs, funding sources, research centers, individual researchers, and publishers/associations. Those directories individually sell for $3 apiece to individuals and $5 apiece to libraries. There are generally one or more new FREE DIRECTORIES each year. PSO members are also entitled to approximately one-third BOOK DISCOUNTS on all 40 volumes in the PSO series of Lexington Books and the 10 volumes in the PSO Yearbooks in Politics and Public Policy of Sage Publications.

PSO journal symposia and the books which have resulted from them have been RE-VIEWED FAVORABLY in the American Political Science Review, Perspective, Choice, and elsewhere. Contributors of articles (as well as subscribers) are welcomed. Subscribing to PSJ and PSR also makes one a member of an organization working to promote the application of political and social science to important policy problems.

The Decline of the Rehabilitative Ideal

Penal Policy and Social Purpose

Francis A. Allen

The last decade has seen a major turning point in American penal policy, as commitment to the rehabilitation of prisoners has undergone a precipitous decline. Allen relates the rise and fall of the rehabilitative ideal to conditions in our culture, arguing that contemporary America has diminished faith in the perfectibility of human nature and in the capacity of institutions to effect behavioral changes.
