

THE CROSSES OF AUSCHWITZ

NATIONALISM AND RELIGION IN POST-COMMUNIST POLAND

GENEVIÈVE ZUBRZYCKI

"Zubrzycki demonstrates in convincing and authoritative fashion that the conflict was not only a dispute between Poles and Jews over the memory of Auschwitz, but also a debate among Poles about the 'proper' discursive establishment of Polish national identity. This will become the standard work on this extremely important topic."

For more detailed policy statements on book reviews and letters to the editor, see our web site or contact us at the address above.

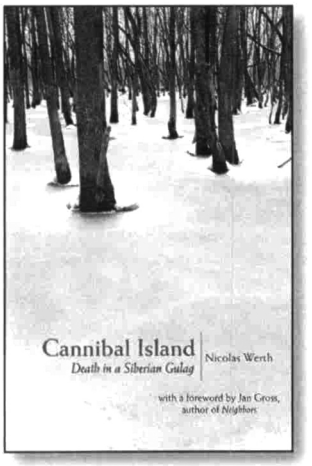

INSTRUCTIONS FOR SUBMITTING MANUSCRIPTS

Manuscripts for consideration should be printed on a letter-quality or near letter-quality printer and submitted by post or courier in four double-spaced copies. Notes and block quotations should also be double-spaced; notes should be placed at the end of the manuscript and not at the bottom of the page. Library of Congress transliteration and the Chicago Manual of Style are to be followed. Submitted manuscripts may use either the humanities style (endnotes) or the author-date-bibliography system, though accepted articles will need to be revised to conform to Slavic Review's house style. Manuscripts are sent to outside readers in anonymous form and should be prepared accordingly.

In general, articles should not exceed 8,000 words, excluding notes. Please indicate the word count on the cover page of the manuscript. Accepted manuscripts will be copyedited electronically, and authors will be asked to submit final versions on computer diskette. Submissions will not be returned.

The policy of Slavic Review is not to consider materials that have been published or that are being considered for publication elsewhere. Slavic Review is the journal of the American Association for the Advancement of Slavic Studies, whose members support the journal through their dues. Slavic Review expects the authors of articles published in the journal to belong to the association.

Cannibal Island

Death in a Siberian Gulag

NICOLAS WERTH

Translated by Steven Rendall and with a foreword by Jan T. Gross

"Perhaps it is not surprising that Nicolas Werth, the French historian who cowrote The Black Book of Communism, has decided in Cannibal Island to return to an incident he merely mentioned in that vast book. He was right to do so: in its way, this small, brilliant work, the description of a single incident, is every bit as powerful a condemnation of Communist ideology as the Black Book itself."

Mapping St. Petersburg

Imperial Text and Cityshape

JULIE BUCKLER

"[Mapping St. Petersburg] challenges the enduring myth of the city's uniqueness by exploring its ordinariness, as depicted in "middlebrow" fiction and non-fictional sources, uncovering a rich body of material that in itself should prove invaluable to researchers in a number of disciplines."
—Lindsey Hughes, Times Literary Supplement

"[Buckler] conveys very effectively what many writers have felt about the city—its elusively cerebral characters, its insubstantiality verging on evanescence."—Catriona Kelly, Russian Review
