People

844 Appointments
844 Promotions
845 Retirements
846 In the News
847 Books by Our Readers
849 In Memoriam

SPOTLIGHTS

Putnam Receives Humanities Medal

In July 2013, President Obama presented a National Humanities Medal to Robert D. Putnam for "deepening our understanding of community in America. Examining how patterns of engagement divide and unite, Dr. Putnam's writing and research inspire us to improve institutions that make society worth living in, and his insights challenge us to be better citizens."

Robert D. Putnam is the Peter and Isabel Malkin Professor of Public Policy at Harvard's JFK School of Government, where he teaches both undergraduate and graduate courses. Professor Putnam is a member of the National Academy of Sciences, a Fellow of the British Academy, and past president of the APSA. In 2006, Putnam received the Skytte Prize. Raised in a small town in the Midwest and educated at Swarthmore, Oxford, and Yale, he has served as Dean of the Kennedy School of Government.

He has written 14 books, translated into 20 languages, including the best-selling Bowling Alone: The Collapse and Revival of American Community, and more recently Better Together: Restoring the American Community, a study of promising new forms of social connectedness. His previous book, Making Democracy Work, was praised by the Economist as "a great work of social science, worthy to rank alongside de Tocqueville, Pareto and Weber." Both Making Democracy Work and Bowling Alone are among the most cited publications in the social sciences worldwide in the last half century.

Putnam's most recent book, American Grace, co-authored with David Campbell of Notre Dame, was awarded the 2011 APSA Woodrow Wilson Foundation Award for the best book on government, politics, or international affairs.

He consults widely with national leaders, including the last three American presidents, the last three British prime ministers, and the current French president. He founded the Saguaro Seminar, bringing together leading thinkers and practitioners to develop actionable ideas for civic renewal.

The National Humanities Medal, inaugurated in 1997, honors individuals or groups whose work has deepened the nation's understanding of the humanities, broadened our citizens' engagement with the humanities, or helped preserve and expand Americans' access to important resources in the humanities. Up to 12 medals can be awarded each year. For details and a list of the other awardees, visit http://www.neh.gov/news/press-release/2013-07-08.

Strum Speaks at Supreme Court

Philippa Strum, senior scholar at the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars and emerita professor at the City University of New York, was invited to speak at the U.S. Supreme Court. Her May 1 lecture, about the relatively little known case of Mendez v. Westminster, was hosted by the Supreme Court Historical Society and expanded upon her book about the case Mendez v. Westminster: School Desegregation and Mexican-American Rights (University Press of Kansas, 2010). She was introduced by Justice Antonin Scalia.

She is also author of Women in the Barracks: The VMI Case and Equal Rights and When the Nazis Came to Skokie: Freedom for Speech We Hate.

Norton Named Dean

Noelle Norton, a political science and international relations professor at the University of San Diego (USD), has been named the new College of Arts and Sciences dean.

Norton has been on the USD faculty since 1994 and previously served as associate dean for faculty and as the co-director of the Living Learning Communities program at the private Catholic university. She also served as USD Honors Program director from 2001 to 2008.

Norton has taught classes on American, legislative, urban, and gender politics. Her most recent publications have been on welfare policy, the White House Office of the President, and the institutional position of women legislators.

"I am thrilled at the opportunity to be dean of the College of Arts and Sciences," she said in a statement. "I've been committed to the success of the college for my entire academic career and look forward to this exciting and transformative period. I am happy that I get to be part of it."

Norton earned her PhD and master's degree from the University of California, Santa Barbara. Before joining USD, she worked as a policy analyst for the cities of San Luis Obispo and Grover Beach.

Norton is currently working with an undergraduate research assistant on an analysis of Congress' handling of international women's gender violence legislation.

https://doi.org/10.1017/S1049096513001315 Published online by Cambridge University Press
© American Political Science Association, 2013

Alpert Retires from Washington Center for Internships and Academic Seminars

After 20 years at The Washington Center for Internships and Academic Seminars (TWC) Eugene J. "Gene" Alpert, Jr., retired in early September 2013.

Since 1977, he served as a liaison for TWC sending more than 300 interns and seminar students from Texas Christian University (TCU) during his tenure at TCU. He says, "I had the opportunity to see the impact of TWC through my students' experiences such that I took a leap of faith 20 years ago to leave a tenured position behind to join TWC." He continued to say that "It has been a highlight of my career to help drive the growth and opportunities for The Washington Center and more than 25,000 students since then. I am also proud of the role I played in establishing TWC as a pioneer in experiential education in higher education."

On his retirement, TWC provided him with the distinction of the honorary title of senior vice president emeritus for his service.

Gillman Named UC Irvine Provost and Executive Vice Chancellor

Howard Gillman, former dean of the University of Southern California's Dornsife College of Letters, Arts & Sciences, was appointed provost and executive vice chancellor of the University of California, Irvine. He reports to Chancellor Michael V. Drake.

Gillman will be UC Irvine's chief academic and operating officer, assuming primary responsibility for academic and organizational functions, as well as for advancing the university's excellence in education, research, and public service

"As a dean," Drake said, "he oversaw USC's largest and most diverse academic unit, comprising 33 academic departments, dozens of research centers and institutes, 7,000 undergraduates, 1,200 PhD students, and nearly 800 faculty members with expertise across the humanities, social sciences, and physical, biological and natural sciences. He also worked closely with the deans of USC's arts and professional schools. He has noteworthy experience in nearly every aspect of the academic mission at a prominent research university. We're proud to welcome him to UC Irvine."

As dean, he increased external funding for research, recruited more than 100 new faculty members, improved PhD programs, and expanded undergraduate opportunities to conduct research, study overseas, and engage in service learning. He also raised about $450 million, including the largest single gift in USC's history.

Prior to his 2007 appointment as dean, Gillman was USC's associate vice provost for research advancement, developing university-wide initiatives in the humanities and social sciences. He also chaired USC's department of political science. With a focus on constitutional studies and judicial politics, he has authored or co-authored six books and dozens of articles.

He received numerous honors, including the university's top award for excellence in teaching presented to only two recipients each year. He also made diversity and inclusion a strategic priority, appointing the first vice dean for diversity and strategic initiatives, establishing unique programs to support and recruit underrepresented faculty and students, and expanding opportunities for women in science and engineering.

Aronoff Honored with AIS-Israel Institute Lifetime Achievement Award

Myron J. Aronoff, Professor Emeritus of Political Science, Anthropology, and Jewish Studies at Rutgers University and Visiting Professor Emeritus of Political Science at the University of Michigan, was honored by the Israel Institute and the Association for Israel Studies for a lifetime of exceptional scholarship and academic achievement in the field of Israel Studies. The award recognizes a senior scholar whose lasting and path-breaking contributions have significantly shaped the field. The award was made at a banquet on June 24, 2013, at the annual meeting of the Association for Israel Studies held at UCLA. Professor Aronoff was the founding president of the Association for Israel Studies (1985–87).

A roundtable discussion of "Myron J. Aronoff and Jan Kubik, Anthropology & Political Science: A Convergent Approach (2013)" was held at the 2013 annual meeting of the Midwest Political Science Association in April 2013. A lively discussion took place between the distinguished panelists, the co-authors, and members of the audience that continued over drinks after the conclusion of the session.

Maxwell Joins UNC Political Science Faculty

Rahsaan Maxwell joins the political science faculty as a tenured associate professor, coming to University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, from the University of Massachusetts, Amherst, where he has been teaching since 2009. Maxwell's research examines the politics of ethnic, racial, and religious minorities, with a focus on Western Europe.

Born and raised in New York City, Maxwell received his BA in 1998 from the University of Pennsylvania, where he double-majored in political science and history. He did his graduate work at the University of California, Berkeley, receiving his MA in 2002 and his PhD in 2008. His first book, Ethnic Minority Migrants in Britain and France: Integration Trade-Offs, was published by Cambridge University Press in 2012, and his articles have appeared in several journals, including World Politics and Political Behavior.

https://doi.org/10.1017/S1049096513001315 Published online by Cambridge University Press
© American Political Science Association, 2013

Maxwell's current research projects include a recently completed paper, "What Makes Muslims Feel French? Religiosity versus Civic Integration as Determinants of National Identification." As this suggests, Maxwell will add a new set of teaching interests to UNC's curriculum, where he will teach courses in the general area of comparative political behavior such as "Diversity and Politics."

Peters Recognized in Estonia

In January 2013, the Tallinn University of Technology (TUT) Council voted to award professor B. Guy Peters, (Pittsburgh) an Honorary Doctorate as proposed by Ragnar Nurkse School of Innovation and Governance. According to the proposal, this degree recognizes particularly "Professor Peters' leadership in developing Public Administration as a scholarly discipline in Central and Eastern Europe and … his unwavering, active support of its establishment and growth in Estonia and especially at Tallinn University of Technology."

Professor Dr. Dres.h.c. B. Guy Peters is the Maurice Falk Professor of American Government at the University of Pittsburgh, USA, and Distinguished Professor of Governance at Zeppelin University, Germany.

In the proposal Guy Peters was noted for his support to Central and Eastern Europe. His exceptional commitment to the work of Tallinn University of Technology and its Ragnar Nurkse School of Innovation and Governance was also cited. "He has visited Estonia several times, serving both as a key member of election and reelection commissions, as a founding advisory board member of Halduskultuur–Administrative Culture, as a guest lecturer and teacher, as a co-chair, co-editor and co-author of his Tallinn colleagues, and much more, always with legendary patience, promptness, and grace. Thus, Guy Peters has, from its inception on, significantly contributed to making the Ragnar Nurkse School of Innovation and Governance what it is and to reach its position among the world's Public Administration departments."

Professor Peters received the Honorary Doctorate at Tallinn University of Technology University's Day on September 17, 2013. He also taught a class during his visit to Tallinn.

Welch Appointed CIGI Senior Fellow

The Centre for International Governance Innovation (CIGI) announced the appointment of David A. Welch as a CIGI Senior Fellow.

Welch is CIGI chair of global security at the Balsillie School of International Affairs and professor of political science at the University of Waterloo, as well as the founder of the Japan Futures Initiative. His areas of expertise include international relations theory, international security studies, foreign policy analysis, and peace and conflict studies. He is the author of the award-winning books Painful Choices: A Theory of Foreign Policy Change and Justice and the Genesis of War, as well as coauthor of Virtual JFK: Vietnam If Kennedy Had Lived, The Cuban Missile Crisis: A Concise History, and several others.

As Senior Fellow, Welch will contribute to CIGI's Global Security Program with particular emphasis on Asia-Pacific security. He will continue to serve as principal host of CIGI's "Inside the Issues" video podcast series.

"I am delighted that an internationally renowned political scientist of David's stature is joining CIGI's Global Security Program," said Fen Osler Hampson, director of CIGI's Global Security Program. "He brings intellectual rigor, depth, and expertise on the regional security challenges of the Asia-Pacific to our program. In particular, he is very knowledgeable about Japan and has a strong professional network in that country that will enhance our program."

"Working with CIGI has been one of the great highlights of my career to date, and I am excited by the prospect of participating even more actively," said Welch. "The Asia-Pacific is the most dynamic yet most dangerous part of the world, and CIGI, working with its partners in the region, is well positioned to bring to the table fresh ideas for improving the effectiveness of security governance."

Mooney to Lead Institute

University of Illinois political scientist Chris Mooney has been named the new director of the Institute of Government and Public Affairs (IGPA).

Mooney, the author of several books about state and local politics, has been a professor at the University of Illinois Springfield campus since 1999 and part of the institute since 2004. He holds the title of the Honorable W. Russell Arrington Professor of State Politics at IGPA and UIS.

"Professor Mooney brings a stellar record of scholarship, a thorough knowledge of Illinois and its politics, and a wealth of administrative experience to the director's position," wrote UI Vice President of Academic Affairs Christophe Pierre in an announcement to staff about the appointment.

Mooney also held faculty positions at West Virginia University and the University of Essex. His degrees are from the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee and the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

Adhikari Receives Award

Prakash Adhikari, assistant professor, department of political science at Central Michigan University, received the Tom L. Popejoy Dissertation Prize. "The Tom L. Popejoy Dissertation Prize was established as a permanent memorial to the late Tom L. Popejoy, President of the University of New Mexico from 1948 to 1968. The award recognizes and encourages the highest level of academic excellence." Dissertations nominated for this prize are considered by a panel of judges for "excellence at the highest academic and technical level, good literary form, and general human interests." Adhikari's dissertation, "Conflict-Induced Displacement: Understanding the Causes of Flight," was judged the best of this year. The award was presented in May 2013.

https://doi.org/10.1017/S1049096513001315 Published online by Cambridge University Press
© American Political Science Association, 2013

ADMINISTRATIVE APPOINTMENTS

Sonia Cardenas, professor of political science, academic dean, Trinity College

William Clark, chair, department of political science, Louisiana State University

Patrick Kenney, dean, political science, Arizona State University

Stefanie A. Lindquist, dean, School of Public and International Affairs and professor, department of political science, University of Georgia

Lord Norton of Louth (Philip Norton), professor of government, University of Hull, UK, appointed co-chair Higher Education Commission, UK

Andrew J. Polsky, Ruth and Harold Newman Dean of the Arts and Sciences (acting), Hunter College, CUNY

Robert Schuhmann, department head, department of political science, University of Wyoming

NEW APPOINTMENTS

Bill Lyons, professor, political science, University of Akron

Max Abrahms, assistant professor, political science, Northeastern University

William T. Barndt, assistant professor, political studies, Pitzer College

Nicholas Beauchamp, assistant professor, political science, Northeastern University

Christina L. Boyd, assistant professor, department of political science, University of Georgia

Amy S. Cox, assistant professor, political science, Arcadia University

Christopher D. DeSante, assistant professor, political science, Indiana University, Bloomington

Kathleen Doherty, postdoctoral scholar, department of political science, Vanderbilt University

Timothy Delaune, assistant professor, department of political science, SUNY Cortland

Hanne Fjelde, assistant professor, peace and conflict research, Uppsala University

Jennifer Fredette, assistant professor, political science, North Central College

Barbara Geddes, visiting professor, department of political science, Vanderbilt University

Paul Gerard Gottemoller, assistant professor, social sciences, Del Mar College

Marissa Anne Silber Grayson, assistant professor, political science, Samford University

Edward T. Jennings, Jr., Provost's Distinguished Service Professor, Martin School of Public Policy and Administration, University of Kentucky

Andrew Kirkpatrick, assistant professor, department of government, Christopher Newport University

Keith Krehbiel, visiting professor, department of political science, Vanderbilt University

Tracy Kuperus, assistant professor, political science, Calvin College

Michael J. Lee, assistant professor, department of political science, Hunter College, CUNY

Michael S. Lynch, assistant professor, department of political science, University of Georgia.

Christopher Mann, assistant professor, Manship School of Mass Communication and department of political science, Louisiana State University

Theodore D. McLauchlin, assistant professor, political science, Universite de Montreal

Jon Meacham, distinguished visiting professor, department of political science, Vanderbilt University

Kristen Michelitch, assistant professor, department of political science, Vanderbilt University

Payam Mohensi, assistant professor, department of political science, Louisiana State University

William Munro, professor, department of political science, Illinois Wesleyan University, appointed to the Betty Ritchie-Birrer '47 and Ivan Birrer Endowed chair

Richard Nielsen, assistant professor, department of political science, Massachusetts Institute of Technology

Marc T. Ratkovic, assistant professor, politics, Princeton University

Steven Rogers, postdoctoral scholar, department of political science, Vanderbilt University

Carrie Russell, senior lecturer, department of political science, Vanderbilt University

Sanford Schram, professor, department of political science, Hunter College, CUNY

Jillian Schwedler, professor, department of political science, Hunter College, CUNY

Abbylin H. Sellers, assistant professor, history and political science, Azusa Pacific University

Dov Waxman, assistant professor, political science, Northeastern University

Keith Weghorst, postdoctoral scholar, department of political science, Vanderbilt University

Jongseok Woo, assistant professor, government and international affairs, University of South Florida

John Zaller, visiting professor, department of political science, Vanderbilt University

PROMOTIONS

Paul S. Adams, associate professor with tenure, political science, University of Pittsburgh, Greensburg

John Stephen Ahlquist, associate professor, political science, University of Wisconsin, Madison

Christopher Alcantara, associate professor, political science, Wilfrid Laurier University

Brandon L. Bartels, associate professor, political science, George Washington University

Brett Benson, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, Vanderbilt University

Andre James Broome, associate professor, politics and international studies, University of Warwick

Robert K. Christensen, associate professor, public administration and policy, University of Georgia

Joseph Clare, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, Louisiana State University

Martin Cohen, associate professor, political science, James Madison University

Johanna Dunaway, associate professor with tenure, department of political science and Manship School of Mass Communications, Louisiana State University

Bruno Dupeyron, associate professor, Johnson-Shoyama School of Public Policy, University of Saskatchewan and University of Regina

Anna Gregg, associate professor, political science, Austin Peay State University

Terrence Guay, clinical professor of international business, Smeal College of Business, Pennsylvania State University

Mehmet Gurses, associate professor, political science, Florida Atlantic University

https://doi.org/10.1017/S1049096513001315 Published online by Cambridge University Press
© American Political Science Association, 2013

Hans J. Hacker, associate professor, political science, Arkansas State University
Bradley D. Hays, associate professor, political science, Union College
Dustin Howes, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, Louisiana State Univerwity
Bernd Kaussler, associate professor, political science, James Madison University
Gary A. Keith, associate professor, political science, University of the Incarnate Word Ekaterina M. Levintova, associate professor, political science, University of Wisconsin, Green Bay
Barry S. Levitt, associate professor, politics and international relations, Florida International University
Stephen Manning, associate professor, political science, University of Detroit, Mercy
Mary M. McCarthy, associate professor, politics and international relations, Drake University Bryan T. McGraw, associate professor, politics and international relations, Wheaton College
Jeffrey W. Meiser, associate professor, College of International Security Affairs, National Defense University
Naomi Murakawa, associate professor, political science, University of Washington
Ragnhild Louise Muriaas, associate professor, comparative politics, University of Bergen Ryan J. Owens, associate professor, political science, University of Wisconsin, Madison
Kimala Price, associate professor with tenure, department of women's studies, San Diego State University
Benjamin L. Read, associate professor, politics, University of California, Santa Cruz
Zachary Shirkey, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, Hunter College, CUNY
Jian Sun, associate professor, political science, Fort Hays State University
Marshall W. Thompson, associate professor, political science, Northeastern Illinois University
Peter G. Thompson, associate professor, College of International Security Affairs, National Defense University
Erik R. Tillman, associate professor, political science, DePaul University
Joel H. Westra, associate professor, political science, Calvin College
Shoua Yang, associate professor, political science, St. Cloud State University
Joseph K. Young, associate professor, justice, law and society, American University

PROMOTIONS TO FULL PROFESSOR

Michele Penner Angrist, professor, political science, Union College
Christopher P. Banks, professor, political science, Kent State University
Ted Brader, professor, political science, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor
Sonia Cardenas, professor, political science, Trinity College
William Clark, professor, department of political science, Louisiana State University
Jennifer N. Collins, professor, political science, University of Wisconsin, Stevens Point
Laurel Elder, professor, political science, Hartwick College
Michael Givel, professor, department of political science, The University of Oklahoma
Renee Heberle, professor, political science and public administration, University of Toledo
Eric S. Heberlig, professor, political science, University of North Carolina, Charlotte
Robert Hogan, professor, department of political science, Louisiana State University
Mark Hurwitz, professor, department of political science, Western Michigan University
Ruth Iyob, professor, political science, University of Missouri, St. Louis
Scott P. Johnson, professor, political science, Frostburg State University
Cindy Kam, professor, department of political science, Vanderbilt University
Quentin Kidd, professor, government and public affairs, Christopher Newport University
Kent J. Kille, professor, political science, College of Wooster
Brett Ashley Leeds, professor, political science, Rice University
Michael J. Licari, professor, political science, University of Northern Iowa
Chad Litton, professor, social and behavioral sciences, University of Mary Daniel Philpott, professor, political science, University of Notre Dame
Anu Ramaswami, professor, Humphrey Institute of Public Affairs, University of Minnesota, Twin Cities
B. Peter Rosendorff, professor, politics, New York University
Robert A. Schuhmann, professor, political science, University of Wyoming
Jeremy Shiffman, professor, public administration and policy, American University
Peyi Soyinka-Airewele, professor, politics, Ithaca College
Lee Trepanier, professor, political science, Saginaw Valley State University
Katherine Cramer Walsh, professor, political science, University of Wisconsin, Madison
Guy D. Whitten, professor, political science, Texas A&M University
Sven E. Wilson, professor, political science, Brigham Young University Geoffrey C. Layman, professor, political science, University of Notre Dame
Robert S. Kravchuk, professor, School of Public and Environmental Affairs, Indiana University, Bloomington
Stephen M. Saideman, professor, International Affairs, Carleton University

RETIRED/ EMERITUS

Barbara C. Burrell, emeritus, political science, Northern Illinois University
Lawrence Frank, emeritus, political science, Northeastern Illinois University
Joel B. Grossman, emeritus, political science, Johns Hopkins University
Susan B. Hannah, retired, political science, Indiana University Purdue University
George E. Hudson, emeritus, political science, Wittenberg University
Michael E. Kraft, emeritus, political science, University of Wisconsin, Green Bay
Thomas R. Myers, emeritus, political science, Baylor University
James Lee Ray, professor emeritus, department of political science, Vanderbilt University
William Taubman, retired, political science, Amherst College
Phillip Taylor, professor, department of political science, University of Hawaii
Jonathan Tompkins, retired, political science, University of Montana
Oliver Walter, dean of arts and sciences and emeritus professor of political science, University of Wyoming

https://doi.org/10.1017/S1049096513001315 Published online by Cambridge University Press
© American Political Science Association, 2013

Coming in the NEXT ISSUE

A preview of some of the articles in the January 2014 issue:

SYMPOSIA

The Politics of Superheroes
Kenton Worcester and Matthew Costello

Data Access and Research Transparency (DA-RT) in Political Science
Authur Lupia et al.

FEATURES

Surviving Scandal: The Institutional and Political Dynamics of National and State Executive Scandals
Brandon Rottinghaus

Political Corruption in the United States: A Design Draft
Amitai Etzioni

Smoke, but No Fire? Focus on the Most Distinct Element
Kamila Pieczara

PROFESSION

Blogging Identities on Israel/Palestine: Public Intellectuals and Their Audiences
Brent Sasley

When Tenure Protects the Incompetent: Results from a Survey of Department Chairs
John M. Rothgeb

TEACHER

Teaching the Unfamiliar to a Crowd
Katherine Truby, Meredith L. Weiss, and David Rousseau

Rubrics in the Political Science Classroom
Maria Rost Rublee

Pop Culture, Twitter, and Study Abroad: Estonia as a Case Study
Joseph M. Ellis

ASSOCIATION NEWS

APSA Executive Director's Report
Steven Rathgeb Smith

Herbert F. Weisberg, emeritus, political science, Ohio State University

Lois Duke Whitaker, professor emerita of political science, Georgia Southern University

John F. Witte, emeritus, political science, University of Wisconsin, Madison

AWARDS AND ACTIVITIES

Mark A. Boyer was named Board of Trustees Distinguished Professor of Political Science at the University of Connecticut in April 2013.

Michael Leo Owens, associate professor, department of political science, Emory University, was elected chair of the Governing Board of the Urban Affairs Association at the UAA's Annual Meeting in San Francisco on April 4, 2013.

Tari Renner, professor, department of political science, Illinois Wesleyan University, was elected mayor of Bloomington, Illinois, by more than 1,500 votes in April 2013. Four years ago, he lost in a three-way race by just 15 votes. He did not contest the 2009 election.

Darrell West, vice president of governance studies at the Brookings Institution, has been named to the Douglas Dillon Chair in Governance Studies. He also directs the Institution's Center for Technology Innovation.

IN THE NEWS

Ross Baker, Rutgers University, and Norm Ornstein, American Enterprise Institute, on the possibility of a federal bailout for Detroit, in "No Signs Washington to Come to Detroit's Rescue," in Bloomberg Businessweek, July 20, 2013.

Marija Bekafigo, University of Southern Mississippi, on the court battle over the Hattiesburg, Miss. mayoral race, "Mistrial in Mississippi Case Over Mayoral Election," New York Times, July 31, 2013.

Richard Sobel, a visiting scholar at the Buffet Center at Northwestern University and an associate of the Du Bois Institute at Harvard University, discussing comprehensive immigration reform and identification proposals, "New ID Rules Would Threaten Citizens' Rights," in CNN Opinion June 13, 2013.

See other political scientists in the news at www.facebook.com/PoliticalScienceNews. ■

https://doi.org/10.1017/S1049096513001315 Published online by Cambridge University Press
© American Political Science Association, 2013