Fact, Fiction, and Form
Selected Essays
Ralph W. Rader
Edited by James Phelan and David H. Richter

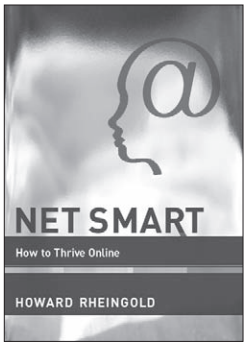

"Ralph W. Rader's essays are a powerful and coherent expression of an important theory of literature, one still widely accepted. Gathering his work within the covers of a single book, with an authoritative and explanatory introduction by Phelan and Richter, will be of great value in calling renewed attention to Rader's work. The essays chosen by the editors bring to the fore first-rate and original commentary on many well-known works in British and Irish literature. I recommend this book enthusiastically to students as a powerfully argued presentation of a major theory of literature. It is important for serious students and teachers of literature to know how plausible and persuasive this theory is when it is presented in Rader's brilliant and extended expression of it." —J. CELEBRATING 50 YEARS

Net Smart

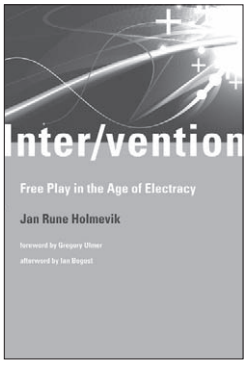

How to Thrive Online

Howard Rheingold

"The social media landscape changes quicker than you can say 'future shock.' Thank goodness, then, for Howard Rheingold. He has identified the skills—simultaneously old-fashioned and cutting-edge—that not only will help you thrive in this tumultuous world, but also help you shape social media into a force for good. Net Smart is a lifeboat for people who want to participate in new technologies without drowning in the flood."

Anatomy of a Short Story

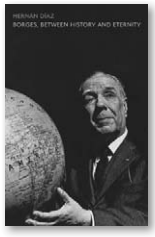

Nabokov's Puzzles, Codes, "Signs and Symbols"

Edited by Yuri Leving

Afterword by John Banville

Since its first publication in 1948, one of Vladimir Nabokov's shortest short stories, "Signs and Symbols," has generated perhaps more interpretations and critical appraisal than any other that he wrote. The goal of the present collection of essays is to approach the narrative riddles of "Signs and Symbols"—reproduced here in full — an open-ended story which invites attempts to break its mysterious code. In doing so, the contributors illuminate the ways in which we interpret fiction, and the short story in particular.

Borges, Between History and Eternity

By Hernán Díaz

In Latin America Borges is read as someone who reorganized the canon, questioned literary hierarchies, and redefined the role of marginal literatures. In the rest of the world, most readers identify the adjective "Borgesian" with intricate metaphysical puzzles and labyrinthine speculations of universal reach. Borges, Between History and Eternity brings these perspectives together by considering key aspects of Borges's work—the reciprocal determinations of politics, philosophy and literature; the simultaneously confining and emancipating nature of language; and the incipient program for a literature of the Americas.

Shakespeare and I

Edited by William McKenzie and Theodora Papadopoulou

Shakespeare and I is a provocative appeal and manifesto for a more personal form of criticism. A number of the most exciting and authoritative writers on Shakespeare examine and scrutinize their deepest, most personal and intimate responses to Shakespeare's plays and poems, to ask themselves if and how Shakespeare has made them the person they are. The book aims to inspire readers to think and write about their ever-changing personal relationship with Shakespeare: about how the poems and plays – and writing about them – can reveal or transform our sense of ourselves.

THE SOCIETY FOR THE HUMANITIES, CORNELL UNIVERSITY
2013/2014 Fellowships

Occupation
From Space and Time to Practice and Politics

Timothy Murray
Director

The Society for the Humanities invites scholars to reflect upon the theme of "Occupation: From Space and Time to Practice and Politics" in order to further understanding of historical and contemporary practices of occupation within physical, professional, and virtual territories and practices. What does it mean "to be occupied" or "to be in the time of occupation"? The Society wishes to open the question of how occupation has shaped the humanities in relation to patterns of thought and artistic representation. Equally important is how historical events of occupation, as well as the establishment of intellectual professions and institutions, have relied on or shaped the humanities. The Society encourages applicants to investigate the cultural, social, artistic, philosophical, and political implications of the theme.

The David R. Atkinson Center for a Sustainable Future co-sponsors one fellowship to support scholarly work addressing occupation as it relates to energy, the environment or economic development.

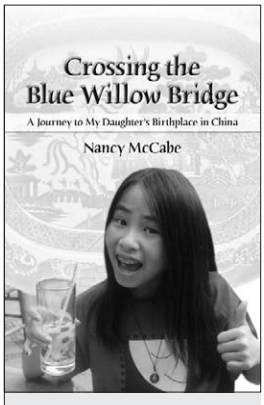

Six to Eight Fellows will be appointed.
Each Society Fellow will receive $45,000.

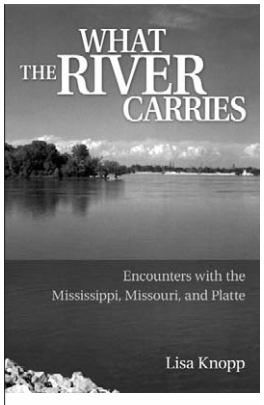

Application materials, including letters of recommendation, must be postmarked on or before October 1, 2012. Applicants must have received the Ph.D. degree before January 1, 2012.

For application information, please visit our website at http://www.arts.cornell.edu/sochum/

Schomburg Center for Research in Black Culture

SCHOLARS IN RESIDENCE

Schomburg Center for Research in Black Culture, one of The New York Public Library's four research centers, is now accepting applications for its Scholars-in-Residence Program for the academic year of 2013–2014.

The fellowship program encompasses projects in African, Afro-American, and Afro-Caribbean history and culture, with an emphasis on African diaspora studies, biography, social history, and African-American culture. (For information about the Schomburg Center's holdings, please see www.schomburgcenter.org.)

Requirements Fellows are required to be in full-time residence at the Schomburg Center during the award period. They are expected to utilize the Center's resources extensively, participate in scheduled seminars, colloquia, and luncheons, review and critique papers presented at these forums, and prepare a report on work accomplished during their residency. Persons seeking support for research leading to degrees are not eligible under this program. Candidates for advanced degrees must have received the degree or completed all requirements for it by the application deadline. Foreign nationals are not eligible unless they will have resided in the United States for three years immediately preceding the award date.

Award Fellowships funded by the program allow recipients to spend six months in residence with access to resources at both the Schomburg Center and The New York Public Library. The fellowship stipend is $30,000 for six months. This program is made possible in part through grants from the National Endowment for the Humanities, the Ford Foundation, the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation, and the Samuel I. Newhouse Foundation.

Romance Philology

One of the most prestigious journals dedicated to the linguistic history and literature of the Romance languages in the Americas and Europe

Editor-in-chief: Barbara De Marco (University of California, Berkeley) ISSN 0035-8002

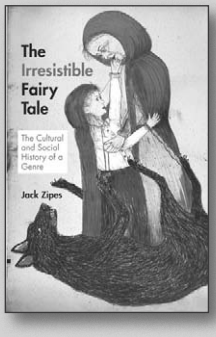

Romance Philology is broad and deep in its coverage: fields of enquiry include late Latin, the medieval and early modern literatures of the Romance languages, historical and general linguistics, and textual criticism. In recent years, particular emphasis has been placed on the development of the Romance languages in the Americas. The book review section, famous for its critical and authoritative essays on current research, is an indispensable source for institutional libraries and scholars.

The Irresistible Fairy Tale

The Cultural and Social History of a Genre

Jack Zipes

"This is Zipes's magnum opus, the culmination of more than thirty years of research, and his broadest consideration yet of the fairy tale. He tackles very difficult fundamental questions, and provides credible theoretical foundations and historical evidence for the answers he proposes. Ultimately, he redirects the conversation about the origins, nature, and appeal of the fairy tale."

Theatrical Failure and the Novel

David Kurnick

"Through masterly analyses of what he strikingly calls 'the melancholy of generic distinction,' Kurnick explores the relations between personal psychology and collective aspirations, and between aesthetic expression and various social formations and the political imagination. Original and brilliantly argued, Empty Houses will permanently change the way we look at the history of the modern novel."

Why Democracy Needs the Humanities

Martha C. Nussbaum

"Nussbaum makes a persuasive case."—New Yorker

"Nussbaum . . . brings to this perennial [education] debate an impassioned urgency . . . and broad erudition. . . . Nussbaum's defense of this worthy cause is deeply learned."

Shakespeare's Festive Comedy

A Study of Dramatic Form and Its Relation to Social Custom

C. L. Barber

"I can think of no other book that has had such a powerful influence on the ways in which Shakespeare has been taught over the past thirty years. Shakespeare's Festive Comedy was a book ahead of its time. Barber revolutionized the ways that Shakespeareans thought of comedy in relation to its social setting—especially festive comedy. Others have built on his argument but nobody has really improved on his keen, central insight."
