ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I wish to express my gratitude to those who have supported the research which this edition has entailed. At the Royal Historical Society, Andrew Spicer has been a calm and efficient series editor, while the readers of the proposal offered serious and fruitful suggestions. I am grateful to the staff at Cambridge University Press for their care in preparing the manuscript for publication, and Miranda Bethell's close and attentive reading of the text deserves special mention. My thanks to David Cox and Matthew Stout who prepared the maps. The insights and expertise of others have enriched my understanding of Henry Piers and his world. Máire Kennedy has been generous in sharing her expert knowledge of the Gilbert materials in the Dublin City Library. The staff at the Bodleian in Oxford; Special Collections, Christ Church College; the National Library of Ireland; and Trinity College Dublin have made the materials in their care available in a professional and courteous manner.

I thank those who have responded to queries of various kinds: Bruce Barker-Benfield, Mauro Brunello, Pascual Cebollada SJ, Ben Hazard, Victor Houliston, Gerard Kilroy, Marc Lindeijer SJ, Martin Murphy, Cristina Neagu, Patrick Riordan SJ, and Maurice Whitehead, archivist at the Venerable English College, Rome, who also gave me a guided tour of the college. Simon Ditchfield made valuable recommendations on the Italian context while Thomas McCoog SJ kindly read through the entire draft, and shared his expert knowledge of the English Jesuits; Declan Mac Cuarta alerted me to verbal infelicities; the work is stronger thanks to their contributions. Any remaining errors, and stylistic lapses, are mine.

Without a sabbatical from Archivum Romanum Societatis Iesu, Rome, this work would not have reached completion; I am grateful to Father General Arturo Sosa, and to my colleagues at ARSI, especially Raúl González SJ. The Irish province of the Society of Jesus has been most supportive; I would like to thank Tom Layden SJ and Leonard Moloney SJ, successive provincials of the Irish Jesuits. I have been fortunate in being able to spend time in Campion Hall, Oxford, a warm and hospitable academic community; Peter Davidson's knowledge and enthusiasm have been a regular source of encouragement, while Wilma Minty helped me navigate bibliographical challenges.

https://doi.org/10.1017/S0960116318000040 Published online by Cambridge University Press

My brother Declan Mac Cuarta has provided his customary interest and support. In particular he instigated a lengthy odyssey to Tristernagh by car one August evening, with several stops to ask for ever more precise location details, culminating in a visit to the ruins of Henry Piers's home (and the family chapel), from where his travels began.

https://doi.org/10.1017/S0960116318000040 Published online by Cambridge University Press