Politics and Religion, 10 (2017), 749–751
© Religion and Politics Section of the American Political Science Association, 2017
doi:10.1017/S1755048317000438 1755-0483/17

Contributors to this Issue

Contributors of Articles

Ilan Alon is Professor of Strategy and International Marketing at the University of Agder, Norway, and visiting scholar at Georgetown University, USA. He is Editor-in-Chief of the International Journal of Emerging Markets. His publications have appeared in Harvard Business Review, Management International Review and Journal of International Marketing, among others.

David T. Buckley is Paul Weber Endowed Chair in Politics Science and Religion and Assistant Professor of Political Science at the University of Louisville. His most recent research, focused on the comparative politics of secularism, appears in Faithful to Secularism: The Religious Politics of Democracy in Ireland, Senegal and the Philippines (Columbia University Press, 2017).

Kody W. Cooper is assistant professor of political science and public service at the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga.

Justin Buckley Dyer is associate professor of political science and director of the Kinder Institute on Constitutional Democracy at the University of Missouri.

C. Christine Fair is a Provost's Distinguished Associate Professor in the Security Studies Program within Georgetown University's School of Foreign Service. She can be reached at ccf33@georgetown.edu.

Andrew S. Franks is an Assistant Professor of Psychology at Lake Superior State University. His research focuses primarily on social psychological issues at the intersection of disciplines such as politics, religion, criminal justice, and social justice. His advocacy and public speaking work centers around communicating the social implications of research to the general public and promoting legislative efforts to protect the Establishment Clause of the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

Ali Hamza is a graduate of Georgetown University's McCourt School of Public Policy and currently is a data and research manager within Georgetown University Initiative on Innovation, Development and Evaluation

Rebecca Heller is a graduate of Georgetown University's School of Foreign Service.

Josef Hien is a post-doctoral fellow at the REScEU project. Funded through a European Research Council advanced grant and hosted at the University of Milan, REScEU aims at reconciling social and economic Europe. Hien is interested the ideational and cultural foundations of European political economies. He received his Ph.D. from the European University Institute and has worked as a post doc ay the Max Planck Institute for the Study of Societies (Cologne), at the Collegio Carlo Alberto (Moncalieri/Turin) and the Berlin Social Science Centre (WZB, Berlin).

https://doi.org/10.1017/S1755048317000438 Published online by Cambridge University Press

Ted G. Jelen is Professor and Chair of Political Science at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas. He has written extensively on religion and public opinion, the politics of abortion, and church-state relations. He is a former editor of the Journal for the Scientific Study of Religion and former coeditor of Politics and Religion.

Shaomin Li is Eminent Scholar and Professor at Old Dominion University. He has published in Harvard Business Review, World Development, and Journal of Comparative Economics, among others. He is also the author of Managing International Business in Relation-based versus Rule-based Countries as well as thirteen other books.

Clyde Wilcox is Professor in the Government Department at Georgetown University, teaching in 2017 at the School of Foreign Service in Qatar. He writes on a number of topics in American and Comparative politics, including religion and politics. He has authored, coauthored, edited, or co-edited more than 30 books and hundreds of articles and book chapters.

Jun Wu is Associate Professor at Savannah State University. Her publications have appeared in Management International Review, International Business Review and Journal of International Management, among others, and she serves as Associate Editor of the journal series International Marketing and Management Research.

Amos Zehavi has a joint appointment in the departments of political science and public policy at Tel Aviv University. He explores the interaction of religion and public services in developed nations.

Contributors of Book Reviews

James E. Bruce is Associate Professor of Philosophy at John Brown University, and he is currently writing a book on the relationship between Christianity and equality. His first book, Rights in the Law (Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht, 2013), considers the relationship between God and morality in the thought of the Reformed scholastic Francis Turretin.

Jonathan Den Hartog is Associate Professor of History at the University of Northwestern-St. Paul, Minnesota. He is the author of Patriotism and Piety: Federalist Politics and Religious Struggle in the New American Nation

https://doi.org/10.1017/S1755048317000438 Published online by Cambridge University Press

(University of Virginia Press, 2015). His current research focuses on the politics of the American founder and First Chief Justice of the Supreme Court John Jay.

Benjamin R. Knoll is the John Marshall Harlan Associate Professor of Politics at Centre College in Danville, Kentucky.

Eric C. Miller is Assistant Professor of Communication Studies at Bloomsburg University of Pennsylvania. His research focuses on the rhetoric of the Christian Right in the 20th century United States.

Kristina M. Teater is a Ph.D. candidate in the Department of Political Science at the University of Cincinnati. She studies transnational advocacy networks with regards to religious freedom, religious minorities in South Asia, and faith-based organizations.

William P. Umphres is an Adjunct Professor in the Political Science Department at the University of Cincinnati. His research focuses on the ethics of deliberation, religious reasons, and disagreement.

Contributors to Featured Book Review

Motti Inbari is Associate Professor of Religion at the University of North Carolina at Pembroke. His previous books are Jewish Fundamentalism and the Temple Mount (SUNY University Press, 2009) and Messianic Religious Zionism Confronts Israeli Territorial Compromises (Cambridge University Press, 2012).

Lihi Ben Shitrit is an Assistant Professor at the School of Public and International Affairs, University of Georgia, Athens.

https://doi.org/10.1017/S1755048317000438 Published online by Cambridge University Press