CONTRIBUTORS

Lisa Colton is Professor of Musicology at the University of Liverpool. Her research concerns late medieval music, including aspects of music analysis, source-based study and the consideration of music in devotional contexts. Her publications include Music and Liturgy in Medieval Britain and Ireland (Cambridge, 2022; co-edited with Ann Buckley) and Female-Voice Song and Women's Musical Agency in Medieval Europe (Brill, 2022; co-edited with Anna Kathryn Grau).

Karen Desmond is Professor of Music at Maynooth University, where she leads the European Research Council-funded project Brokensong. Brokensong analyses and digitally reconstructs approximately 100 surviving sources of medieval English polyphony dating from 1150 to 1350. She is author of Music and the Moderni: The Ars Nova in Theory and Practice (Cambridge 2018), which won the Lewis Lockwood Prize of the American Musicological Society.

Paola Dessì is Associate Professor at the University of Padua, where she teaches History of Medieval and Renaissance Music and Music Historiography. Her research centres on Late Antique, Medieval and Renaissance themes from historical and anthropological perspectives that conceptualise music as both tangible and intangible cultural heritage. Recent publications include Music in Schools: From the Middle Ages to the Modern Age (Brepols, 2021). Her current research projects focus on music and travellers in the Modern Age (she is scientific coordinator of the Webapp 'Echos – Sound Ecosystems in Travelogues') and musical instruments of Antiquity as cultural objects. She was Principal Investigator of the 'TeMA project' 2020–22 and now of Principal of 'MUSE' 2023–2025 funded by the European Union – Next Generation EU.

Jared C. Hartt is Barker Professor of Music Theory at the Oberlin Conservatory of Music. His work on fourteenth-century English motets and on the music of Guillaume de Machaut has led to publications such as The Dorset Rotulus: Contextualizing and Reconstructing the Early English Motet (Boydell, 2021; a monograph co-authored with Margaret Bent and Peter M. Lefferts), and Poetry, Art, and Music in Guillaume de Machaut's Earliest Manuscript (BnF fr. 1586) (Brepols, 2021; co-edited with Lawrence Earp).

Philip Rutter long held an interest in chant, especially tropes, while also pursuing a career unrelated to academic studies. In 1993, he completed his PhD at Royal Holloway College, University of London, on the repertoire of the early tenth-century Aquitanian troper, Paris, Bibliothèque nationale de France, latin 1240. More recently his attention was focused on Latin 887. He died on 10 May 2025.
