NOTE ON CONVENTIONS

In the main body of the text, East Asian names are given in the customary order in which family name comes before personal name. In case of Asian Americans and others, I reverted to the usual order of first name followed by family name. In bibliographic entries, no differences were made between East Asian and other names.

I have added macrons marking long vowels in Japanese where appropriate but dropped them for places or names like Tokyo or Hokkaido that are well known to English-language readers.
