European Journal of Political Research, 1 (1973) 1
© Elsevier Scientific Publishing Company, Amsterdam – Printed in The Netherlands

EDITORIAL POLICY

The European Journal of Political Research is the official journal of the European Consortium for Political Research. Its principal objective is to foster communication and collaboration among European political scientists and the dissemination of research findings and information about ongoing research across national and linguistic boundaries in Europe, and thus to support the Consortium's principal aims.

The journal will publish articles – original articles in English or English translations of articles in other languages that may have appeared elsewhere – by political scientists and other scholars engaged in political research who are affiliated with European institutions of higher learning. Preference will be given to articles of a broadly theoretical or comparative nature. The work of scholars not affiliated with European institutions may also be published if it constitutes part of a collective enterprise with European scholars, such as a Research Workshop sponsored by the Consortium, or if it deals with European comparative politics and international relations.

The journal will also publish review articles on significant books and other publications, as well as on current ongoing research in specific areas of political science; short research notes; and news and announcements of Consortium activities.

All statements of opinion and fact appearing in the journal are made on the responsibility of the authors, and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Editor, the Editorial Board, the Consortium, or the publishers.

https://doi.org/10.1111/j.1475-6765.1973.tb01280.x Published online by Cambridge University Press