interventions differs from the shouts of the Roman plebs at the games: cf. F. Millar, The Crowd in Rome in the Late Republic (Ann Arbor, 1998), 94–123.

73. Life of Demosthenes 8.
74. Finley, op. cit., 15.
75. Life of Phocion 16.

APOLOGY

Earlier this year, the editors received a letter protesting about sentences which had appeared in a book review in the October 2000 number of the journal and informing them that these sentences had caused offence to Japanese readers of Greece & Rome and embarrassment to western scholars working in Japan. The editors accept that these sentences should not have appeared in the journal and offer their sincere apologies to those who were distressed by them.

I.M., K.C., C.B.

https://doi.org/10.1093/gr/48.2.192 Published online by Cambridge University Press