The Lexicon in Acquisition

Eve V. Clark

"A deep and important contribution from the perspective of Clark's own theorizing on conventionality and contrast, and on the simplicity/transparency issue...A contribution of great interest, required reading for everyone in the field of language acquisition who is interested in the lexicon."

—Lila R. Gleitman, University of Pennsylvania

Principles of English Stress

Luigi Burzio

In this controversial new work, Luigi Burzio argues that many common assumptions within stress theory are sharply underdetermined by empirical evidence. His analysis proposes the elimination of standard extrametricality and all rules of destressing, and shows that partial and total stress preservation are predictable reflexes of a single principle of metrical consistency. The book makes significant advances in the theory of stress and phonology in general, which are inspired in part by advances in theoretical syntax.

Syntax and Parsing

Paul Gorrell

In this examination of the role of syntax in theories of sentence comprehension, Paul Gorrell argues for a distinct processing component which is devoted to the recovery of syntactic structure and which utilizes the contrasting types of information found within a Government-Binding grammar. He contrasts the primary and secondary relations in a phrase-structure tree, and shows how this distinction is reflected in the internal structure of the parser, a model which can also predict garden-path phenomena in the processing of verb-final clauses.

The Syntax of Negation

Liliane Haegeman

In this new book Liliane Haegeman presents an account of sentential negation within a Government and Binding framework. Building on the work of Klima and Lasnik, Haegeman demonstrates the parallelism between negative sentences and interrogative sentences, and gives a unified analysis in terms of a well-formedness condition on syntactic representations: the affect criterion, instantiated as the WH criterion in interrogative sentences and as the NEG criterion in negative sentences.

A Performance Theory of Order and Constituency

John Hawkins

In this major new book, John A. Hawkins presents a new theory of linear ordering in syntax. He argues that processing can provide a simple, functional explanation for syntactic rules of ordering, as well as for the selection among ordering variants in languages and structures in which variation is possible. Insights from generative syntax, typological studies of language universals, and psycholinguistic studies of language processing are combined to show that there is a profound correspondence between performance and grammar.

Sound Symbolism

Leanne Hinton, Johanna Nichols and John J. Ohala, Editors

Sound symbolism is the study of the relationship between the sound of an utterance and its meaning. In this interdisciplinary collection of new studies, twenty-four leading scholars discuss the role of sound symbolism in a theory of language, drawing on a wide range of linguistic data. The extensive new research presented here reveals that sound symbolism plays a far more significant role in language than scholarship has hitherto recognized.

Exceptional Language Development in Down Syndrome

Implications for the Cognition-Language Relationship

Jean A. Rondal

Advanced language acquisition is possible in spite of serious mental handicap. This is the conclusion reached at the end of a thorough study of the language of a Down syndrome adult woman, exhibiting virtually normal expressive and receptive grammar.

Computational Phonology

A Constraint-Based Approach

Steven Bird

Computational phonology is one of the newest areas of computational linguistics, and is experiencing rapid growth as its practitioners apply the wealth of theories, technologies and methodologies of computational linguistics to phonology. This book is the first to survey these developments, and it does so in a way that is accessible to computational linguists, phonologists and computer scientists alike.

Computational Lexical Semantics

Patrick Saint-Dizier and Evelyn Viegas, Editors

Computational Lexical Semantics is one of the first volumes to provide models for the creation of various kinds of computerized lexicons for the automatic treatment of natural language, with applications to machine translation, automatic indexing, and database front-ends, knowledge extraction, among other things. It focuses on semantic issues, as seen by linguists, psychologists, and computer scientists. Besides describing academic research, it also covers ongoing industrial projects.

The Cambridge Australian English Style Guide

Pam Peters

The Cambridge Australian English Style Guide is both an assessment of the current state of Australian English and a guide to its style and usage. It is full of interesting information about why certain preferences are coming into use and, without being prescriptive, will give users all the information they need to make an appropriate choice. With more than 2500 alphabetical entries and a range of diagrams, this book will make life easier for anyone who deals with written language.

The Generic Book

Edited by Gregory N. Carlson and Francis Jeffry Pelletier

This clear overview of issues in the interpretation of generic expressions reflects the current state of the art in the semantics of generics.

"This long-awaited book will be essential reading for anybody wishing to work on generics, a topic full of challenges not only for formal semantics but also for philosophy, AI, and cognitive science."—Robin Cooper, University of Edinburgh

Dynamics of Meaning

Anaphora, Presupposition, and the Theory of Grammar

Gennaro Chierchia

"This is almost certainly the best introduction to the dynamic perspective within natural language semantics. The central ideas of dynamic semantics are lucidly explained, their empirical implications carefully explored, and all formal matters are handled with supreme competence."
—Hans Kamp, University of Stuttgart

Head-Driven Phrase Structure Grammar

Carl Pollard and Ivan A. Sag

This book presents the most complete exposition of the theory of head-driven phrase structure grammar. Pollard and Sag demonstrate how the theory can be applied to a wide range of empirical problems and compare it with approaches undertaken in other frameworks, including Chomsky's Government-Binding theory.

LINGUISTICS

Comparative Indo-European Linguistics
An introduction
ROBERT S.P. BEEKES (University of Leiden)
This is the first comprehensive introduction to Comparative Indo-European Linguistics to appear in English.
"Beekes's handbook is perhaps the most thorough and imaginative study of Proto-Indo-European since Meillet's Introduction à l'étude comparative des langues indo-européennes (1937)."

Modality in Grammar and Discourse
JOAN BYBEE and SUZANNE FLEISCHMAN (eds.)
Key issues addressed are the relationship between 'mode' and 'modality'; the delineation of modal categories and their nomenclature; the grounding of modality in interactive discourse; the elusive category 'irrealis'; and the relationship of modal notions and categories to other categories of grammar.

Continuity in Linguistic Semantics
C. FUCHS and B. VICTORRI (eds.)
Until recently, most linguistic theories as well as theories of cognition have avoided use of the notion of continuity. In this volume, linguists, philosophers, mathematicians and computer scientists discuss which semantic phenomena (linked to the lexicon, to grammatical theories or to syntactic structures) call for continuous models and which formalization tools can contribute to the development of such models.

Functionalism and Grammar
T. GIVÓN (University of Oregon)
This is Professor Givón's long-awaited critical examination of the fundamental theoretical and methodological underpinnings of the functionalist approach to grammar. It challenges functionalists to take their own medicine and establish non-circular empirical definitions of both 'function' and 'structure'.

Cognition and Representation in Linguistic Theory
Texts selected, edited and introduced by Michael Liddle (University of Ottawa). Translated with the assistance of John T. Stonham.
ANTOINE CULIOLI
The objective of this book is to better acquaint English-speaking linguistics with a corpus of texts hitherto untranslated, containing the cognitive-based research in formal linguistics of one of the most important theoreticians in the field: Antoine Culioli (b. 1924).

Linguistic Theory and the Romance Languages
JOHN CHARLES SMITH and MARTIN MAIDEN University of Manchester/ Cambridge University (eds.)
The contributors to the volume are committed to the view that Romance Linguistics is not narrowly philological, but is rather General Linguistics practiced with reference to particular data. Specific areas covered include: prosodic domains; quantification; agreement; the prepositional accusative; clitic pronouns; voice and aspect.

INFORMATION FOR CONTRIBUTORS

LANGUAGE, the journal of the Linguistic Society of America, carries technical articles dealing with problems of linguistic science, reviews of recently published linguistic works, and notes of interest to professional linguists.

MANUSCRIPTS for publication and exchange JOURNALS should be sent to the Editor of LANGUAGE (Mark Aronoff, Dept. of Linguistics, SUNY Stony Brook, Stony Brook, NY 11794-4376) BOOKS for review should be sent to the Review Editor (Edwin Battistella, 209 Humanities, Wayne State College, Wayne, NE 68787). Manuscripts of articles and reviews should be submitted in FOUR copies; they will not be returned. LSA membership is not required for publication and manuscripts from non-LSA members are welcome.

An abbreviated LSA Style Sheet is provided below. For the complete Style Sheet, see the December LSA Bulletin or write to the editors.

Manuscript form. Manuscripts should be typed double-spaced throughout (including footnotes, quotations, and reference list) on $8\frac{1}{2} \times 11$ inch heavy-weight bond paper (ONE SIDE ONLY), with no less than 1 inch margins on all four sides. Type size should not be smaller than 12 characters per inch. Tables, charts, diagrams, extended quotations, and other passages to be set in smaller type (though not simple rules, examples, or formulae) must each appear on a separate sheet. All pages of the manuscript must be in a single pagination.

Abstract. Each manuscript submitted for publication should be accompanied by an abstract of about 100 words, summarizing the conceptual content of the article. It should be typed on a separate sheet of paper.

Text. Use only single quotation marks—never double except for quotes within quotes. Use a single straight underscore to indicate italic type, a double underscore for SMALL CAPITALS. Use normal capitalization. A letter, word, phrase, or sentence cited as a linguistic example or subject of discussion appears in italics—or else in phonetic or phonemic transcription, enclosed in square brackets or in slant lines.

Citations. Brief citations given in the text should take such forms as 'Examples are given in Nichols 1986', 'Bloomfield (1933:264) introduced the term ...', or 'Many coastal languages of the Northwest had sounds intermediate between nasal and voiced oral stops (Kinkade 1985).'

Footnotes. All footnotes must be typed (with double spacing) on a sheet or series of sheets following the main text. They must never appear on the same sheet with the text.

References. Full citation of literature referred to should be given in a bibliography at the end of each article or review, beginning on a separate page with the heading REFERENCES, and arranged alphabetically by surnames of authors. The format should be consistent with the following examples:

Bloomfield, Leonard. 1933. Language. New York: Holt.

Bolinger, Dwight. 1965. The atomization of meaning. Language 41.555–73.

Brugmann, Karl. 1906. Grundriss der vergleichenden Grammatik der indogermanischen Sprachen. 2nd edn., vol. 2, part 1. Strassburg: Trübner.
