CONTRIBUTORS

MICHAEL CAMP is a Ph.D. candidate in the History Department at Emory University. His research examines the intersections of energy and environmental politics after the 1973 OPEC embargo.
wcamp@emory.edu

ROBERT V. DAVIS is an independent scholar who has held appointments as Adjunct Faculty at Virginia Tech; Deputy Under Secretary of Defense; Professional Staff for intelligence programs on the House Appropriations Committee; and a strategic planning consultant for industry and government. He received a Ph.D. in Science and Technology Studies from Virginia Tech.
bobdavis@alum.mit.edu

CARL-HENRY GESCHWIND holds a Ph.D. in History of Science from Johns Hopkins University and is the author of California Earthquakes: Risk, Science, and the Politics of Hazard Mitigation (John Hopkins University Press, 2001). An independent scholar, he is now working on a comparative history of gasoline taxation throughout the twentieth century.
geschwind.c@gmail.com

ROBERT N. GROSS earned a Ph.D. in American History from the University of Wisconsin in 2013. He teaches in the Upper School History Department at the Sidwell Friends School in Washington, D.C., and is revising his book manuscript, "A Marketplace of Schooling: Education and the American Regulatory State, 1870–1930," for publication.
rngross@gmail.com

JULIAN MAXWELL HAYTER is a historian at the University of Richmond's Jepson School of Leadership Studies. He received a doctorate in history from the University of Virginia in 2010. His research focuses on African American politics in Richmond, the American civil rights movement, and American history since 1945.
jhayter@richmond.edu

PEYTON MCCRARY is a historian in the Civil Rights Division of the United States Department of Justice and an adjunct professor at George Washington University School of Law, where he co-teaches a course on voting rights law. He is the author or co-author of numerous law review articles, book chapters, and history journal articles dealing with minority voting rights, as well as the prize-winning book Abraham Lincoln and Reconstruction: The Louisiana Experiment (Princeton University Press, 1978).
pmccrary@law.gwu.edu

J. CASEY SULLIVAN is a Ph.D candidate in the Department of History at the University of California, Davis. He is completing a dissertation on the Republican Party and the rise of modern American conservatism before the New Deal.
jcsullivan@ucdavis.edu

THE JOURNAL OF POLICY HISTORY, Vol. 26, No. 4, 2014.
© Donald Critchlow and Cambridge University Press 2014
doi:10.1017/S0898030614000293

https://doi.org/10.1017/S0898030614000293 Published online by Cambridge University Press

NEIL J. YOUNG has taught in the history department at Princeton University and the Princeton Writing Program. He received his Ph.D. in U.S. history from Columbia University in 2008. He is the author of the forthcoming We Gather Together: Conservative Ecumenism in the Age of the Religious Right from Oxford University Press.
njy2001@gmail.com

https://doi.org/10.1017/S0898030614000293 Published online by Cambridge University Press