Notes

* I wish to thank Michael Cohen, Robert Keohane, Rick Riolo, Robert Putnam, Carl Simon, and Leigh Tesfatsion for their input and comments on this biographical essay and Nicole Todd and Patty Lezotte for their help in preparing this essay.

1. The importance of the group to the development of Axelrod's, as well as his colleagues', thinking is illustrated by the dedication of Harnessing Complexity by Axelrod and Cohen to the BACH group.

New APSA Council Members Elected

Eight new members of the APSA Council have been elected in APSA's fourth contested election in recent years. The new Council members are: Lisa Baldez, Dartmouth College; Susan R. Burgess, Ohio University; Dennis Chong, Northwestern University; Michael W. Doyle, Columbia University; Kerry L. Haynie, Duke University; Arthur Lupia, University of Michigan; Anna Sampaio, University of Colorado, Denver; and Melissa S. Williams, University of Toronto. André Blais, Université de Montréal, was not elected. Under APSA election rules, the APSA Nominating Committee proposes one name per open seat and additional nominations, sponsored by at least 10 members, may be made from the membership. This year, Susan Burgess, Ohio University, was nominated from the membership and was elected. The election was conducted by electronic ballot, with a 31% turnout—similar to other recent APSA elections. Detailed results can be found at http://apsanet.org/section_710.cfm.

The new council members take office immediately. These Council members' terms have correspondingly wrapped up: Lisa Anderson, Columbia University; Andrew L. Aoki, Augsburg College; Neta C. Crawford, Boston University; James L Gibson, Washington University, St. Louis; Pei-te Lien, University of Utah; Harvey C. Mansfield, Jr., Harvard University; Rogers M. Smith, University of Pennsylvania; David Vogel, University of California, Berkeley; and Aili Mari Tripp, University of Wisconsin, Madison. APSA thanks them for their commitment and service to the discipline. The full APSA officer roster can be found on page iv of this and every issue of PS.
