Runnin' Down Some Lines

The Language and Culture of Black Teenagers

Edith A. Folb

With a Foreword by Claudia Mitchell-Kernan, Director, Center for Afro-American Studies, UCLA

Folb spent eight years talking with black teenagers on the streets of south central Los Angeles, the ghetto area that includes Watts. Her skill in recording and interpreting the complex uses of the vernacular, "the lines," has led to this remarkable book on how these young people live—their actions, beliefs, attitudes, and values. More than a language, black teenage talk is a way to survive. Folb's book is an introduction to the dignity and ingenuity of that survival. $15.00

CASE GRAMMAR

Case Grammar: Development of the Matrix Model (1970-1978)

Walter A. Cook, S.J.

The case grammar model is essentially a description of predicates and the arguments required by the meaning of those predicates in the semantic description of sentences. By probing into semantic structures, case systems can relate one surface structure to many semantic structures and one semantic structure to many surface structures.

This volume contains thirteen papers, published between 1970 and 1978, which trace the development of the case grammar matrix model, its relation to tagmemics, generative semantics, and interpretive semantics, and its application to such areas as the analysis of literature and stylistics.

ISBN 0-87840-174-1 223 pp. $7.50

Contents

Case Grammar: From Roles to Rules
Improvements in Case Grammar 1970
Case Grammar as a Deep Structure in Tagmemic Analysis
A Set of Postulates for Case Grammar Analysis
A Case Grammar Matrix
Covert Case Roles
The Tagmemic-Case Grammar Model
Role Structures in Content Analysis: A Case Grammar Approach to Literature
Verb Classification in Case Grammar
Case Grammar and Generative Semantics
Stylistics: Measuring Style Complexity
Durative Aspect: The Process of No Change
A Case Grammar Matrix Model
Appendix: Case Grammar Lexicon

Semantic Structures and Relations in Dutch: An Introduction to Case Grammar

Stephen T. Moskey

This volume is a complete application of the case grammar matrix model to a large corpus of language data. Besides providing essential information on the semantic structures found in Dutch, it also makes available in one place a survey of the history, theory, and practice of case grammar with special reference to the work of several case grammarians.

It is one of the central hypotheses of case grammar and of other semantically-based models of language that, while languages may differ in their syntactic rules and surface structures, they share a universal semantic base. The typology of semantic structures presented here for Dutch may presumably be applied to other, very different languages. Doing so will provide a basis for producing comparative and contrastive studies of the semantic structures of many languages.

GENERATIVE PHONOLOGY

The Sound Pattern of Hungarian

Robert Vago

This work is a comprehensive description of the phonological component of one language and may serve as a model for the organization of phonology in general. The broad scope of the investigation and the thorough justification of the final analyses produce a rich generative grammar which may be used as a reliable source for theoretical inferences. Significant contributions are made to the following controversial issues in current generative theory: the abstractness of underlying representations, the extrinsic ordering of rules, including low level phonetic rules, the non-linear ordering of rules, the application of rules, the description of vowel harmony, the treatment of exceptions, the hierarchical ranking of boundaries, the status of word boundary in natural assimilation rules, and the classification of morpholexical, phonological, and phonetic rules. This study also develops the principal generative phonological rules of Hungarian and is the first thorough generative analysis of the phonological component of the language.

Contents

The Vowel System: Vowel Harmony

The Consonant System: Natural Assimilation Rules

The Conjugation System

The Declension System

Appendix: List of Rules

Spanish Phonology and Morphology: A Generative View

William W. Cressey

An introduction to the formal study of Spanish phonology and to the generative framework.

The book contains a detailed account of the phonetics of standard Castilian Spanish, described by using a set of phonetic features modelled after the set used in The Sound Pattern of English. The phonological structure of Spanish is analyzed in terms of rules of various types: detail rules, low-level allophonic process rules, word level phonology (morphophonemic) rules, everywhere (redundancy) rules, and inflectional morphology rules. The problem of abstract analyses in phonology is discussed and a theory of variable abstraction is sketched. A workbook and a teacher's guide are in preparation.

Expression and Meaning
Studies in the Theory of Speech Acts

John R. Searle

In this successor to Speech Acts (C.U.P., 1969), John Searle attempts to refine and develop the earlier work's taxonomy and to extend its application to other modes of discourse such as indirect speech, metaphor, and fiction. He proposes positive solutions to these and related problems, and points toward the basis which certain features of speech have in the intentionality of mind and the relation of the philosophy of language to the philosophy of mind. $17.95

Function and Context in Linguistic Analysis

D. J. Allerton, Edward Carney, and David Holdcroft, Editors

This collaborative volume of twelve new studies by distinguished linguists and philosophers presents examinations of function and context in relation to syntax, semantics, morphology, and typography. $22.50

Psychological Reality in Phonology
A Theoretical Study

Per Linell

Professor Linell attacks the claim by generative linguists that transformational models have some psychological validity and represent our mental organization of linguistic knowledge, offering fundamental criticisms of the 'orthodox' school of generative phonology associated with Chomsky and Halle. Cambridge Studies in Linguistics 25 $44.50

Dictionary of Khotan Saka

Harold Bailey

This dictionary represents the fulfillment of a plan which required the editing and transcription of the Saka manuscripts and the slow elucidation of the whole corpus of texts. With a linguistic analysis and translation of all the words used in the texts, the dictionary is the necessary key to an understanding of the texts, to the mastery of the Iranian language, and to the linking of the Khotan Saka into the Indo-European linguistic tradition. $175.00

Portraits of "The Whiteman"
Linguistic Play and Cultural Symbols Among the Western Apache

Keith H. Basso

with a foreword by Dell Hymes

"Ethnographers are not the only ones who do ethnography, and Portraits of 'The Whiteman' presents the most subtle evidence that this is so for North American Indians. It is absolutely at the cutting edge of developments in mutual understanding, to say nothing of the fact that it is superb anthropology."

PUBLICATIONS

of the

Linguistic Society of America

LANGUAGE, the journal of the Linguistic Society of America, carries technical articles dealing with problems of linguistic science, reviews of recently published linguistic works, and notes of interest to professional linguists.

As supplements to LANGUAGE, the Linguistic Society of America issues a series of occasional publications, LANGUAGE MONOGRAPHS. These are included in the subscription price of the journal, but may also be purchased separately. In the LANGUAGE MONOGRAPH series, the Society publishes independently subsidized studies which are too long to appear as articles or are otherwise unsuitable for publication in the journal. The method of application for admission to this series of supplements, and the terms of publication, may be secured from the Secretary of the Society.

SPECIAL PUBLICATIONS in the field of linguistic science are issued by the Society from time to time. These are not included in the subscription price of the journal.

MEETING HANDBOOKS, which contain program listings and abstracts of papers presented at LSA Annual Meetings, 1965 onward, may be purchased separately.

A list of publications in print and a price list are available from the LSA Secretariat, 1611 North Kent Street, Arlington, Virginia 22209. Reprint editions and back copies may be ordered from Kraus Reprint Corporation, Route 100, Millwood, New York 10546. Prices for specific issues and/or volumes may be obtained from that address.
