Introducing BiblioRossica

www.bibliorossica.com

BiblioRossica is a specialized platform for academics and scholars offering expertly selected collections that are fully searchable by key words or phrases. Available now is the first of our new ebook collections, Leading Russian Scholarly Presses, 2009 – 2012. This permanently updated collection includes the best books from the best Russian presses, such as Languages of Slavic Culture, New Literary Observer, and many others. At the moment, this collection incorporates around eight hundred of the most important 2009-2011 publications from the top Russian presses from as well as a carefully chosen selection of popular and pertinent titles from each press's backlist. As new titles are published in print in 2012, they will concurrently be added to BiblioRossica. By the end of 2012 we expect to have around 1,000 titles. Now new titles are made available immediately after their releases, and the most significant publications from recent years are easily accessible. Everything you've ever wanted to read in Russian is here!

Rank and Style

Russians in State Service, Life and Literature

By Irina Reyfman

ISBN 978-1-936235-51-3 (cloth) $85.00 / £47.00 330 pp.

Rank and Style is a collection of essays by Irina Reyfman, a leading scholar of Russian literature and culture. Ranging from the eighteenth to the twentieth century, the essays focus on the interaction of life and literature...In addition to examining little-studied writers and works, Rank and Style offers new approaches to well-studied literary personalities and texts, which will be appreciated by scholars of both.

From Symbolism to Socialist Realism

A Reader

By Irene Masing-Delic

ISBN 978-1-936235-42-1 (cloth) $79.00/ £40.25 470 pp.

May 2012

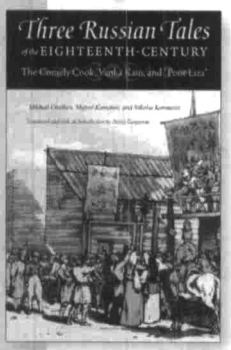

From Symbolism to Socialist Realism offers a broad variety of materials contextualizing the literary texts most frequently read in Russian literature courses at the undergraduate and beginning graduate level. This collection of critical-theoretical articles, cultural and historical analyses, literary manifestos and declarations of literary aesthetics, memoirs of revolutionary terrorism and arrests by the NKVD, political denunciations and "literary vignettes" captures the spirit of this period in a nutshell. The voices of this "polyphonic" reader are diverse: Briusov, Savinkov, Ivanov-Razumnik, Kollontai, Tsvetaeva, Shklovsky, Olesha, Zoshchenko, Zhdanov, Grossman, Evtushenko and others. The range of specialists on Russian culture represented here is equally broad: Clark, Erlich, Falen, Grossman, Nilsson, Peace, Poznansky, Siniavskii, Volkov and others. Together they evoke and illuminate a complex and tragic era.

Three Russian Tales of the 18th Century

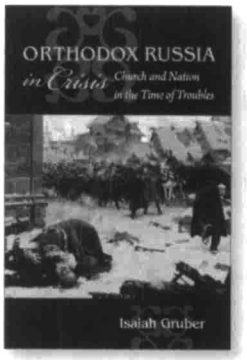

The Comely Cook, Vanka Kain, and Poor Liza

Mikhail Chulkov, Matvei Komarov, and Nikolai Karamzin

Translated by David Gasperetti

"Gasperetti's translations are both sparkling and masterful, and they convey the look and the feel of the original texts, both in their linguistic particularity and in their physical structure and appearance."—Marcia A. Morris, Georgetown University

Paper $24.95

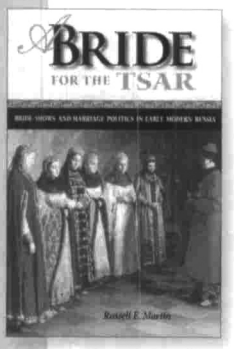

Orthodox Russia in Crisis

Church and Nation in the Time of Troubles

Isaiah Gruber

"In this important and highly original book the author brilliantly chronicles the business-savvy Church's cozy relationship with increasingly unpopular (and unlikely) tsars."—Chester S. L. Dunning, Texas A & M University

Cloth $48.00

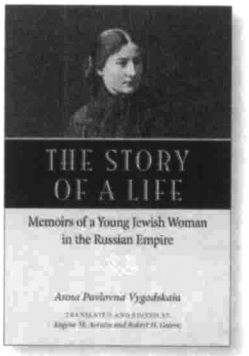

A Bride for the Tsar

Bride-Shows and Marriage Politics in Early Modern Russia

Russell E. Martin

"Martin has tracked down all possible sources regarding weddings in the ruling family from about 1500 to the early eighteenth century and he is able to paint a dramatic picture of the individuals and families who battled over the tsar's weddings."—Nancy S. Kollmann, Stanford University

Cloth $48.00

The Story of a Life

Memoirs of a Young Jewish Woman in the Russian Empire

Anna Pavlovna Vygodskaia

Translated by Eugene M. Avrutin and Robert H. Greene

"This is a unique memoir by a Jewish woman whose life was both unique and 'typical' for the first generation of 'modern Jewish women' in East-Central Europe and Russia."—Theodore R. Weeks, Southern Illinois University Carbondale

Paper $22.95

"A Russian Jew of Bloomsbury brings to light the life of a significant yet regrettably little-known figure. It is a fascinating look into how Jewishness, as well as Russianness, figured in the circles of a number of eminent twentieth-century writers." Meri-Jane Rochelson, author of A Jew in the Public Arena: The Career of Israel Zangwill

"A fascinating read for lovers of literature, culture, history, and personality." Brian Boyd, author of Vladimir Nabokov and On the Origin of Stories: Evolution, Cognition, and Fiction

MODERN WAR STUDIES

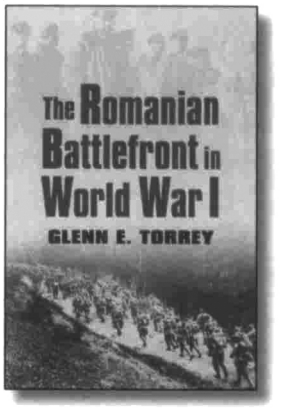

Red Phoenix Rising
The Soviet Air Force in World War II

Von Hardesty and Ilya Grinberg

"Red Phoenix was in a class of its own when it was first published but limited by what could be known from Soviet sources. This new edition of a classic can now tell the story in full. For anyone who wants to know what contribution the Soviet Air Force made to the grueling victory over Axis forces on the Eastern Front there is no better guide." —Richard Overy, author of The Air War, 1939–1945

448 pages, 105 photos, 8 maps, Cloth $34.95

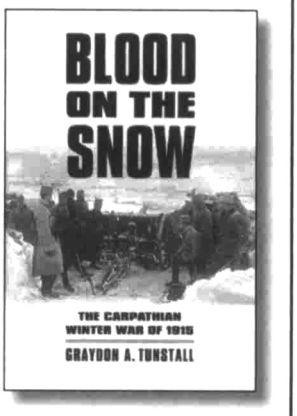

The Romanian Battlefront in World War I

Glenn E. Torrey

"The most balanced and most authoritative account of the war on the Romanian front available in any language."—Keith Hitchins, author of A Concise History of Romania

"Will change the way scholars view the Balkan Front in the Great War."—Timothy C. Dowling, author of The Brusilov Offensives

440 pages, 42 photos, 17 maps, Cloth $39.95

NEW IN PAPERBACK

Blood on the Snow
The Carpathian Winter War of 1915

Graydon A. Tunstall

"In giving a full account of the winter war, Tunstall has rendered a vital service to our understanding of World War I. This is a must book for experts and novices alike."—NYMAS Review, New York Military Affairs Symposium
