American English Spelling

An Informal Description

D. W. Cummings

"Until now we have had no work like this. In prose that is a pleasure to read, Cummings reveals order in a seemingly chaotic domain, an accomplishment that is surely the essence of humanistic and scientific scholarship."
—Charles Read, University of Wisconsin

American English Spelling is the most thorough and systematic study of English spelling ever published. D. W. Cummings demonstrates that behind the apparent disorder of English spelling lies a self-regulating and self-reorganizing system that is responsive to four strong—and sometimes contending—demands: phonetic, semantic, etymological, and systemic. Cummings develops an analytical theory for the study of orthography and applies this theory to the vocabulary of English with extensive exemplification.

SOCIAL SEMIOTICS
Robert Hodge and Gunther Kress

Semiotics was defined by Ferdinand de Saussure as "the science of the life of signs in society." Robert Hodge and Gunther Kress here confront the conceptual difficulties that have limited its growth as a field of inquiry and demonstrate how it can be integrated with the social analysis of power and ideology, class and gender. DISORDERS OF SYNTACTIC COMPREHENSION
David N. Caplan and Nancy Hildebrandt

On the basis of a decade's work on syntactic-comprehension disorders, Caplan and Hildebrandt suggest that syntactic structure breaks down after damage to the brain because of specific impairments in the parsing processes and a general decrease in the amount of computational space that can be devoted to that function. A Bradford Book.

TELLING THE AMERICAN STORY
A Structural and Cultural Analysis of Conversational Storytelling
Livia Polanyi

Examining the structure of autobiographical stories, Livia Polanyi shows how narrative structure is embedded in conversation. She analyzes stories like "Fainting on the Subway," and "Eating on the New York Thruway" for the propositions they express about American culture and draws these propositions together in a broad compendium, or grammar, of cultural assumptions. A Bradford Book.

BLACKWELL

NEW SERIES

APPLIED LANGUAGE STUDIES

Edited by DAVID CRYSTAL and KEITH JOHNSON

This new series will deal with key topics within the main branches of applied language studies—initially in the fields of foreign language teaching and learning, child language acquisition and clinical or remedial language studies. The series will provide students with a research perspective in a particular topic, at the same time containing an original slant which will make each volume a genuine contribution to the development of ideas in the subject.

The first books in the series are:

The ELT Curriculum

Design, Innovation and Management

RONALD WHITE

The author offers theoretical guidance and practical advice on the design and implementation of an ELT syllabus, including an assessment of various types of syllabus and their aims, principles and underlying assumptions.

Reflections on the Current State:

Two new books offering insights gained from long and distinguished careers in linguistics.

Refurbishing our Foundations.
Elementary Linguistics from an Advanced Point of View.

C.F. Hockett

This essay challenges several patterns of thinking common in twentieth-century linguistics. The most pervasive of these is our habit of looking at language from the point of view of the speaker. When we take, instead, that of the hearer, matters fall into place in a new way. In syntax, we are led to examine the evidence available to hearers for interpreting what they hear, and this reveals both the true nature and the locus existendi of "deep structure". Chomsky's 1957 diagnosis of the then prevalent syntactic theory is upheld, though his proposed remedy is not. The principle of gestalt perception yields a characterization of the word quite different from Bloomfield's classic definition, lending support of a new kind to Pike's mid-century views of the relation between phonemics and grammar. In morphology, assuming the hearer's standpoint forces the abandonment of the "atomic morpheme" that has prevailed in America since the post-Bloomfieldians, together with much of classical morphophonemics, and by a domino effect this in turn undermines much of generative phonology.

Linguistics and Pseudo-Linguistics.

Robert A. Hall, Jr.

The doctrines of transformational-generative grammar have on occasion been criticized, sometimes severely. Such criticisms have, however, appeared mostly in article-form, and mostly in relatively inaccessible places. Discussions in book-form have been rare.
In this book, the criticisms offered by Professor Hall over more than twenty years have been brought together in one place. They cover the range of linguistic structure (phonology, morphosyntax, and semantics), general theory, and the history of linguistics. In these essays, the many shortcomings of transformational-generative grammar are revealed by critical examination, with inevitably negative conclusions. The two final essays of the book deal with parallel "aberrations" in current literary theory, especially Derridian "radical skepticism concerning language" and "deconstruction", as viewed from a linguistic standpoint.

INFORMATION FOR CONTRIBUTORS

LANGUAGE, the journal of the Linguistic Society of America, carries technical articles dealing with problems of linguistic science, reviews of recently published linguistic works, and notes of interest to professional linguists.

MANUSCRIPTS for publication, exchange JOURNALS, and BOOKS for review should be sent to the Editor of LANGUAGE (Sarah G. Thomason, Dept. of Linguistics, University of Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh, PA 15260). Manuscripts of articles should be submitted in THREE copies, and manuscripts of reviews in TWO; they can not be returned unless postage is provided by contributors. LSA membership is not required for publication, and manuscripts from non-LSA members are welcome.

An abbreviated LSA Style Sheet is provided below. For the complete Style Sheet, see the December LSA Bulletin.

Manuscript Form. Manuscripts should be typed double-spaced throughout (including footnotes, quotations and reference list) on $8\frac{1}{2} \times 11$ inch heavy-weight bond paper (ONE SIDE ONLY), with no less than $1\frac{1}{2}$ inch margins on all four sides. Tables, charts, diagrams, extended quotations and other passages to be set in smaller type (though not simple rules, examples or formulae) must each appear on a separate sheet. All pages of the manuscript must be in a single pagination.

Abstract. Each manuscript submitted for publication should be accompanied by an abstract of about 100 words, summarizing the conceptual content of the article. It should be typed on a separate sheet of paper.

Text. Use only single quotation marks—never double except for quotes within quotes. Use a single straight line to indicate italic type, a double underscore for SMALL CAPITALS. Use normal capitalization. A letter, word, phrase, or sentence cited as a linguistic example or subject of discussion appears in italics—or else in phonetic or phonemic transcription, enclosed in square brackets or in slant lines.

Citations. Brief citations given in the text should take such forms as 'Examples are given in Nichols 1986', 'Bloomfield (1933:264) introduced the term ...', or 'Many coastal languages of the Northwest had sounds intermediate between nasal and voiced oral stops (Kinkade 1985).'

Footnotes. All footnotes must be typed (with double spacing) on a sheet or series of sheets following the main text. They must never appear on the same sheet with the text.

https://doi.org/10.1017/S009785078802867X Published online by Cambridge University Press

References. Full citation of literature referred to should be given in a bibliography at the end of each article or review, beginning on a separate page with the heading 'References', and arranged alphabetically by surnames of authors. The format should be consistent with the following examples:

Bolinger, Dwight. 1965. The atomization of meaning. Lg. 41.555–73.

Brugmann, Karl. 1906. Grundriss der vergleichenden Grammatik der indogermanischen Sprachen. 2nd edn., vol. 2, part 1. Strassburg: Trübner.
