Studies in Central European Histories

Brill Academic Publishers, with offices in Boston and Leiden, The Netherlands, began publishing the series Studies in Central European Histories under the imprint, Humanities Press, Inc., following a takeover of portions of Humanities Press International in 1998. The Boston office, now Brill Academic Publishers, Inc., coordinates the selection, production, publication, and distribution of books in North America and supplies volumes to the Dutch office for distribution worldwide. By the end of 2001 twenty-four volumes of Studies in Central European Histories will have been published.

From its beginnings, SCEH has aimed to recruit and publish high-quality historical scholarship, chiefly concerning the lands and peoples of the Holy Roman Empire from around 1300 C.E. to the present. The editors interpret this area to comprise roughly the lands of the modern states of Germany, the Czech Republic, Austria, western Poland, northern Italy, Switzerland, eastern France, and the Low Countries. The series' editorial board includes distinguished scholars of historiography and of the histories of various periods down to the present.

We invite scholars from various historical disciplines within these bounds to submit manuscript or proposals for books and revised dissertations. It is assumed that a manuscript offered to SCEH will not be submitted elsewhere until a decision is reached, which will be made in a timely manner. The average production time after submission of the completed manuscript is about six months.

Besides affording authors the prestige and solidity of the three-hundred-years of experience, Brill gives SCEH several advantages over other series. Editorial and production times are relatively shorter than with many other scholarly presses. Furthermore, Brill, which recruits, produces, and sells only scholarly books, does not remainder its list. Books are kept in print, and volumes are reprinted as demand warrants.

Scholars with a completed manuscript, one under revision, or one about to be written, may contact one of the editors below.
