Notes on Article Contributors

Xavier Hascher teaches music theory and analysis at the University of Strasbourg. He has published several books on Schubert in French, and has recently edited the volume Le Style instrumental de Schubert: sources, analyse, évolution (Paris: Publications de la Sorbonne, 2007).

Robert S. Hatten is Professor of Music Theory at Indiana University and author of Musical Meaning in Beethoven (Indiana University Press, 1994), which was co-recipient of the Wallace Berry Publication Award from the Society for Music Theory in 1997. His second book, Interpreting Musical Gestures, Topics, and Tropes: Mozart, Beethoven, Schubert (Indiana University Press, 2004), helped launch the book series 'Musical Meaning and Interpretation', for which Dr. Hatten serves as general editor. He has served as Vice-President of the Society for Music Theory (2005–07) and is currently President of the Semiotic Society of America (2007–08).

James William Sobaskie earned his Ph.D. at the University Wisconsin-Madison and taught at the University of Minnesota, Twin Cities, St. Norbert College, and the University of Wisconsin campus in Stevens Point, before joining the faculty of Mississippi State University. His research has focused on the music of Franz Schubert, Frédéric Chopin and Gabriel Fauré, as well as Schenkerian and Schoenbergian tonal theories. Dr Sobaskie recently completed a new critical edition of Fauré's Trio pour violon, violoncelle et piano, op. 120 (1923) and Quatuor à cordes, op. 121 (1924), and his book, The Music of Gabriel Fauré: style, structure and the art of allusion, is being prepared for publication by Ashgate.

Susan Youens received her Ph.D. from Harvard University in 1975 and is currently the J. W. Van Gorkom Professor of Music at the University of Notre Dame. She is the author of numerous scholarly articles and eight books on Lieder, the most recent being Heinrich Heine and the Lied (Cambridge University Press, 2007), Schubert's Late Lieder: Beyond the Song Cycles (Cambridge University Press, 2002), and Hugo Wolf and his Mörike Songs (Cambridge University Press, 2000). She is currently working on a social history of the lied.
