ENFORCED DISAPPEARANCES

Enforced Disappearances: On Universal Responses to a Worldwide Phenomenon discusses the UN human rights (both treaty bodies and special procedures) response to the key challenges of missing persons and enforced disappearances, including reparations, family rights, involvement of non-state actors and the migration context. The book also includes several illustrative case studies from Latin America, Africa, Mexico, Western Balkans and the Asia-Pacific region, which demonstrate the current challenges and problems relating to enforced disappearances in domestic or regional settings. The book includes contributions from experts working across a global range of jurisdictions. This title is also available as open access on Cambridge Core.
