Notes on Article Contributors

Byron Adams is Professor of Composition and Musicology in the Music Department of the University of California, Riverside. His scholarly work was recognized in 1985 when he was awarded the first Ralph Vaughan Williams Research Fellowship. He has published widely on the subject of English music of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, speaking on this topic for the BBC and at three National Meetings of the American Musicological Society. He is co-editor of Vaughan Williams Essays and contributed four entries to the revised edition of the New Grove Dictionary of Music and Musicians. In 2000, the American Musicological Society bestowed the Philip Brett Award on Adams for two essays on nationalism and homoeroticism in British music. He was recently named scholar-in-residence for the 2007 Bard Music Festival, 'Elgar and His World'.

Brian Alegant is Professor of Music Theory at the Oberlin College Conservatory of Music. Current research interests include the music of Luigi Dallapiccola.

Don McLean is Dean of the Schulich School of Music of McGill University.

Thomas Muir was born in 1954. After reading Modern History at Oxford he taught history and politics at Stonyhurst College, for whom he wrote the official school history Stonyhurst College (London: James and James, 1992/2006R). From 1997 he read Music at the Universities of York and Durham. His doctoral thesis, submitted in 2004, is the first major study of nineteenth-century Catholic music in England.

Donald C. Seibert, a retired Syracuse University music librarian, is the author of two published Tchaikovky studies: 'The Tchaikovsky Fifth: a symphony without a programme' (1991) and, in collaboration with Mark Elder, 'The Dramaturgy of Tchaikovsky's Mazeppa' (1988). He was for many years a contributor of record reviews and interviews to Fanfare magazine.

Anastasia Siopsi is an Assistant Professor in the field of 'Aesthetics of Music', Music Department, Ionian University, Greece. Her main research areas are German Romantic music and Modern Greek art music. Her monographs include Three Essays on Manolis Kalomiris [Greek] (Athens: Greek Musicological Publications, Papagrigoriou-Nakas Music Publishing House, 2003) and Music in 19th-century Europe [Greek] (Athens: Gutenberg Publishing House, 2005).

Marian Wilson Kimber is Associate Professor of Musicology at the University of Iowa. Her research centres on Felix and Fanny Mendelssohn, and explores issues surrounding biography, gender and reception. Her publications have appears in 19th-Century Music, The Mendelssohns: Their Music in History, Musical Biography: Towards New Paradigms, and elsewhere.

https://doi.org/10.1017/S1479409800000033 Published online by Cambridge University Press