In posting the job announcement below, we remind readers that job discrimination is illegal. The Linguistic Society of America thus retains the right to refuse or edit all discriminatory statements from copy sent to the Secretariat for publication in Language that are not in consonance with the principles of Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. The Executive Committee of the LSA hopes that all job announcements will facilitate open hiring on the basis of merit to the advantage of all.

The LSA accepts listings from academic institutions under censure by the American Association of University Professors (AAUP). However, these listings are identified in this publication by (*) preceding position openings in order to advise applicants that the employing institution or its administration has been censured by the AAUP and that further information may be obtained on the situation from the AAUP.

MIT: The Department of Linguistics & Philosophy at MIT invites applications for a tenure-track position at the Assistant Professor level, starting July 1, 2021, or as soon thereafter as possible. The appointment will be made in the area of Semantics, understood in a fairly broad sense. We equally encourage applicants whose work is focused primarily on semantic theory, and applicants whose work in semantics connects strongly with other areas of linguistics and/or adjacent fields. We also encourage a range of focuses and methodological approaches, including (but by no means limited to) fieldwork on underdocumented languages, experimental studies, computational modeling, and focused theoretical work. Applicants must possess a Ph.D. in linguistics or a related field by the start of employment. Faculty responsibilities include teaching at the graduate and undergraduate level and conducting research in the area of semantics.

Applicants should submit a letter of application, curriculum vitae, copies of research papers, evidence of teaching ability, and contact information for at least three referees. In addition, the application should include a statement outlining the applicant's research interests, previous achievements, and plans, as well as the broader questions that this research promises to engage with.

We prefer that applications and supporting materials be submitted online, at the following web address:

https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/16583

Review of applications will begin on December 16, 2020. To ensure full consideration, applications should be complete by this date, but we will consider all applications submitted until the position is filled.

MIT is an equal opportunity employer committed to building a culturally diverse intellectual community, and strongly encourages applications from women and minority candidates.
