NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

Jomarie Alano has taught Modern Italian History at Tufts University and Colgate University and Italian language at Wells College. Her publications include 'Armed With a Yellow Mimosa: Women's Defense and Assistance Groups in Italy, 1943–1945', Journal of Contemporary History (October 2003); 'Patron Saints and Paesani: A History of Italian Immigrants to Auburn, New York, 1900–1940', Italian Americana (Summer 2004); and 'The Triumph of the Bouffons: La Serva Padrona at the Paris Opéra, 1752–1754', The French Review (October 2005). An excerpt of her translation of Ada Gobetti's Diario partigiano appeared in Stanislao G. Pugliese Fascism, Anti-Fascism, and the Resistance in Italy (2003). Her entire translation of the Diario partigiano is currently under consideration at a university press. She has also recently completed a biography of Ada Gobetti, entitled A Life of Resistance: Ada Prospero Marchesini Gobetti, 1902–1968. Dr. Alano is currently a Visiting Scholar at the Institute for European Studies at Cornell University.

Gillian Ania is Reader in Italian at the University of Salford, UK. Her principal research field is modern and contemporary Italian literature, although she also enjoys translating Italian literary fiction and poetry. She has published monographs on Leonardo Sciascia (Fortunes of the Firefly, Leicester, Troubador, 1996) and Paola Capriolo (Mitologia, musica, metamorfosi 1988–1998, Florence, Franco Cesati Editore, 2006), two co-edited books on 20th-century Italian narrative fiction (both 2007), and a range of essays addressing themes such as memory and autobiography, epistolary writing, the apocalypse, and 9/11. She published a first collection of poetry in 2005 (Moments of Being), and co-directs the Creative Writing pages of the online poetry journal Mosaici.

Martin Bull is Professor of Politics at the University of Salford in the Centre for Democracy and Human Rights, and Academic Director of the European Consortium of Political Research. He is Co-Editor of European Political Science, Co-Editor of the Bulletin of Italian Politics and founding Editor-in-Chief of Social Sciences. He is an Italian and comparative politics specialist, and his recent publications include: Maestri of Political Science (Essex: ECPR Press, 2011) (edited with G. Pasquino and D. Campus); 'Forty Years of European Political Science', Special Issue of European Political Science, Vol. 9, Supplement 1, November 2010 (edited with J. Briggs, L. de Sousa and J. Moses); and Italy: a Contested Polity (London: Routledge, 2009) (edited with M. Rhodes).

David Lebovitch Dahl is currently a postdoctoral researcher at the University of Copenhagen. He received his doctorate in history from the European University Institute in 2008. His research has addressed the history of the Roman Catholic Church, nationalism, antisemitism and racism in Europe in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. His publications include: 'The Role of the Roman Catholic Church in the Formation of Modern Anti-Semitism: "La Civiltà Cattolica" 1850–1879," Modern Judaism (2003), and 'A Case of Disagreement among the Jesuits of "La Civiltà Cattolica" over Anti-Jewish Propaganda around 1882,' Rivista di storia del cristianesimo (2010).

Federica Falchi: was awarded her doctorate in Dottrine Politiche e questione femminile in 2006 (Università di Roma 3). In 2008 she published her monograph on L'itinerario politico di Regina Terruzzi. Dal mazzinianesimo al fascismo with FrancoAngeli. Since 2010 she has held a research grant at the Dipartimento Storico Politico Internazionale at the University of Cagliari.

https://doi.org/10.1017/S1353294400000016 Published online by Cambridge University Press

Alan R. Perry is currently Associate Professor of Italian Literature at Gettysburg College in Gettysburg, Pennsylvania. He earned his Ph.D. at the University of Madison-Wisconsin in 1998. His specific field of scholarly interest is the Italian Resistance of World War II and Italy in the Cold War. In 2001 Longo Editore published his anthology Il santo partigiano martire. Of late, he has given specific attention to the literary and journalistic work of Giovannino Guareschi. In February 2008, the University of Toronto Press published his book The Don Camillo Stories of Giovannino Guareschi: A Humorist Portrays the Sacred.

Zana Vathi obtained her DPhil in Migration Studies from the University of Sussex (UK) in October 2011. She is affiliated to the University of Sussex Centre for Migration Research (SCMR) and the Department of Geography. Her doctoral research focused on the integration of the Albanian second generation in Europe, concentrating on three European countries and cities: Greece (Thessaloniki), Italy (Florence) and United Kingdom (London). Her recent publications include: (with Russell King), Return Visits of the Young Albanian Second Generation in Europe: Contrasting Themes and Comparative Host-Country Perspectives. Mobilities 6 (4): 503–518. (special issue); Migration of Albanians to London. The Endeavour 26–27, 156–164 (Përpjekja; in Albanian); New Brits? Migration and settlement of Albanian-origin immigrants in London. Working paper no. 57 of the Sussex Centre for Migration Research. <http://www.sussex.ac.uk/migration/documents/mwp57.pdf>

Massimo Vittorio is currently Professor of Social Ethics and Sociology of Political Phenomena at the University of Catania, Italy. He earned his Ph.D. at the University of Catania in 2007. His specific field of scholarly interest is contemporary ethics, specifically pragmatism, situationism, and neuroethics. In 2007 CUECM published his book on the American situationist J. Fletcher, Etica e vita in Fletcher. In February 2011, Aracne published his work on the Italian contemporary moral philosopher P. Piovani, Ontoetica. La necessità della morale in Pietro Piovani. In June 2011, Prometheus Books published his essay The Origins of the Italian Misunderstanding of Dewey's Philosophy in the proceedings of the international conference on Dewey's 150th birthday celebration, Dewey's Enduring Impact (J. Shook and P. Kurtz eds.).

https://doi.org/10.1017/S1353294400000016 Published online by Cambridge University Press