Provocative.

The Jewish Century

Yuri Slezkine

This masterwork of interpretative history begins with a bold declaration: The Modern Age is the Jewish Age—and we are all, to varying degrees, Jews.

The assertion is, of course, metaphorical. But it underscores Yuri Slezkine's provocative thesis. Not only have Jews adapted better than many other groups to living in the modern world, they have become the symbol and standard of modern life everywhere.

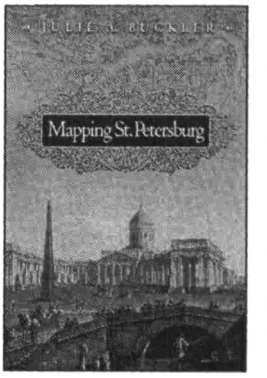

Mapping St. Petersburg

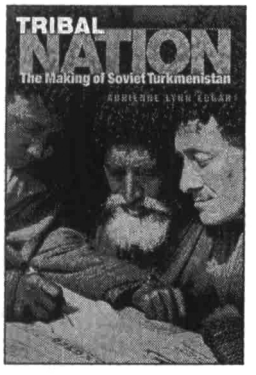

Imperial Text and Cityshape

Julie Buckler

In Mapping St. Petersburg, Julie Buckler traces the evolution of Russia's onetime capital from a "conceptual hierarchy" to a living cultural system—a topography expressed not only by the city's physical structures but also by the literary texts that have helped create it.

Tribal Nation

The Making of Soviet Turkmenistan

Adrienne Lynn Edgar

On October 17, 1991, the Turkmen Soviet Socialist Republic declared its independence from the Soviet Union. Seven decades earlier, Turkmenistan had been a stateless conglomeration of tribes. What brought about this remarkable transformation?

Tribal Nation addresses this question by examining the Soviet effort in the 1920s and 1930s to create a modern, socialist nation in the Central Asian Republic of Turkmenistan.

Justice in a Time of War

The True Story behind the International Criminal Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia

PIERRE HAZAN
TRANSLATED BY JAMES THOMAS SNYDER

Justice in a Time of War is a translation from the French of the first complete, behind-the-scenes story of the International Criminal Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia, from its proposal by Balkan journalist Mirko Klarin through recent developments in the trial of Slobodan Milosevic. With insider interviews filling out every scene, Hazan tells a chaotic story of war that raged while the Western powers cobbled together a tribunal in order to avoid actual intervention.

$40.00 cloth; $18.95 paper

"Blunt and unsparing yet fair and factual, this book sheds a revealing light on the development of The Hague Tribunal. . . . invaluable and unique."

THOMSON

A RUSSIAN REVELATION

Voice of the People Under Soviet Rule: From the People's Archive of Moscow • This collection discloses the little-known and inadequately represented documentation of the Soviet state archives from the 18th century to the present — such as unofficial social organizations, political parties, religious and ecological organizations and private documents of individual citizens not normally acquired by state archives.

Departmental Records of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union, 1953-1966
From the Holdings of the Russian State Archive of Contemporary History, Moscow, this collection expands the study of Soviet history in the Cold War period. It introduces previously classified archival documents focusing on the Central Committee's role on the nation's domestic and foreign policies; the development of its industrial and agricultural sectors; the character of its scientific and cultural activities; and the ultimate shape of its ideology.

The Hitler Kiss

A Memoir of the Czech Resistance

RADOMIR LUZA with CHRISTINA VELLA

"Stunning. . . . A moving inside look at a nation and its people crushed first by the Nazis, then by Stalin's oppressive regime."—Booklist

In this gripping narrative, Luza, makes palpable the terror of being constantly hunted and nearly snared by betrayals and Gestapo raids. His story is also a poignant recollection of his larger-than-life father, the military commander of the Czech resistance.

LIMITS TO INTERPRETATION: THE MEANINGS OF ANNA KARENINA

Vladimir E. Alexandrov • Cloth $34.95

"A much more exhaustive and detailed analysis of the novel than anyone has ever attempted before—an analysis quite remarkable and illuminating, and nothing less than admirable in its search for the secrets of Tolstoy in the labyrinth of his own text. It is written so clearly and lucidly, however, that it may well appeal to intelligent non-specialist readers with an interest in Tolstoy."—Joseph Frank, Princeton and Stanford Universities

"This is an important book. Its significance far exceeds the field of Slavic, for in addition to being a masterful contribution to our understanding of a great work of art it is a manifesto proclaiming a new theory of reading in general. It demonstrates that the rich tradition of Russian literary theory is still alive and productive. . . . In lucid and lively prose Alexandrov shows that the excitement and efficacy of combining the strictest rigor with the boldest generalization still has much to give to our understanding of the importance of specifically literary discourse for reading practice."
—Michael Holquist, Yale University

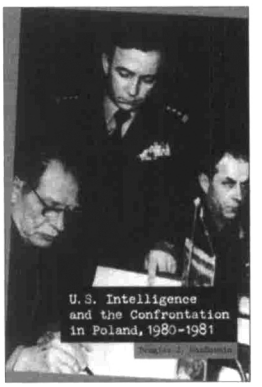

"Alexandrov has written an immensely thorough, imaginative, original, and revealing analysis of this great novel that is at the same time a forthright advocacy of more rigorous, text-focused interpretation. The book should thus be of great interest both to Tolstoy aficionados and to adepts of the theory of narrative prose."—Hugh McLean

"A wise and erudite study that uses Tolstoy's Anna Karenina to account for the plural meanings that a great work of art provokes. . . . A forceful and persuasive argument against originality of interpretation."—Peter Brooks, University of Virginia

INSTRUCTIONS FOR SUBMITTING MANUSCRIPTS

Manuscripts for consideration should be printed on a letter-quality or near letter-quality printer and submitted by post or courier in four double-spaced copies. Notes and block quotations should also be double-spaced; notes should be placed at the end of the manuscript and not at the bottom of the page. Library of Congress transliteration and the Chicago Manual of Style are to be followed. Manuscripts are sent to outside readers in anonymous form and should be prepared accordingly.

In general, articles should not exceed 8,000 words, excluding endnotes. Please indicate the word count on the cover page of the manuscript. Accepted manuscripts will be copyedited electronically, and authors will be asked to submit final versions on computer diskette. Submissions will not be returned.

The policy of Slavic Review is not to consider materials that have been published or that are being considered for publication elsewhere, in any form or in any language. Slavic Review is the journal of the American Association for the Advancement of Slavic Studies, whose members support the journal through their dues. Slavic Review expects the authors of articles published in the journal to belong to the association.

International Decision Making during the Hungarian Crisis of 1956

BY JOHANNA GRANVILLE

". . . a fascinating study, meticulously documented, that not only sheds new light on an agonizing incident in the Cold War, but shows how it fits with theories of decision-making."—Robert Jervis

Adlai E. Stevenson Professor of International Politics, Columbia University; President, American Political Science Association; and author, Perception and Misperception in International Politics

". . . the best available analysis of the international history of the 1956 Hungarian rebellion against Communism. . . . helps explain the decisions reached not only in Budapest and Moscow, but also in Washington and Belgrade."
—Odd Arne Westad

London School of Economics, and author, Reviewing the Cold War: Approaches, Interpretations, and Theory

JOHANNA GRANVILLE is currently a Campbell National Fellow at the Hoover Institution at Stanford University in California. She has conducted extensive archival research in Moscow, Budapest, and Warsaw.
