CONTRIBUTORS

ALEKSANDAR BOŠKOVIĆ is a doctoral candidate in the Department of Slavic Languages and Literatures at the University of Michigan. He has worked as a researcher at the Institute for Literature and Art in Belgrade, Serbia, where he published his book The Poetic Humor in Vasko Popa's Oeuvre (2008). His doctoral dissertation is a cross-cultural and interdisciplinary examination of twentieth-century interwar avant-garde photopoetry artworks.

YURI CORRIGAN is assistant professor of Russian studies at the College of Wooster. He studies the intersection between literature and philosophy in nineteenth-century Russian and European culture, with particular focus on issues of personality and identity. He is working on a book that closely examines the evolution of Fedor Dostoevskii's conception of the self in the context of nineteenth-century European intellectual history.

PETER FRITZSCHE is professor of history at the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign. His recent books include Life and Death in the Third Reich (Cambridge University Press, 2008) and The Turbulent World of Franz Göll: An Ordinary Berliner Writes the Twentieth Century (Cambridge University Press, 2011). He is now working on a cultural history of World War II.

WENDY Z. GOLDMAN is professor in the Department of History at Carnegie Mellon University. Her most recent book is Inventing the Enemy: Denunciation and Terror in Stalin's Russia (Cambridge University Press, 2011). She is currently working on a social history of the Soviet home front during World War II.

SAMUEL J HIRST is assistant professor of history at Nazarbayev University in Astana, Kazakhstan. His current research focuses on Soviet-Turkish relations between World War I and World War II.

LYNNE VIOLA is University Professor of History at the University of Toronto. She is the author of The Best Sons of the Fatherland (1987), Peasant Rebels under Stalin (1996), and The Unknown Gulag (2007), all published by Oxford University Press. She also coedited The War against the Peasantry, 1927–1930: The Tragedy of the Soviet Countryside (2005) for Yale University Press's Annals of Communism series.

ANDREW WACHTEL is president of the American University of Central Asia in Bishkek, Kyrgyzstan. Previously he was dean of the Graduate School and director of the Roberta Buffett Center for International and Comparative Studies at Northwestern University. A fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and a member of the Council on Foreign Relations, Wachtel's interests range from Russian literature and culture to east European and Balkan

https://doi.org/10.1017/S0037677900005453 Published online by Cambridge University Press

culture, history, and politics to contemporary Central Asia. His most recent published books are The Balkans in World History (Oxford University Press, 2008), Russian Literature (with Ilya Vinitsky, Polity Press, 2008), and Remaining Relevant after Communism: The Role of the Writer in Eastern Europe (University of Chicago Press, 2006).

https://doi.org/10.1017/S0037677900005453 Published online by Cambridge University Press