DAI's 2005 activities in southern Peru, Bolivia, the Moroccan Rif, Sri Lanka, Vietnam, and the palace of Karakorum in Mongolia. The fieldwork summaries are enriched by the generous inclusion of excellent colour photographs.

Just as the Germans are abandoning 'general and comparative archaeology' up springs the Journal of Intercultural and Interdisciplinary Archaeology (JIIA) (http://www.jiia.it). An open-access online venture, or one-woman enterprise fronted by Antonella D'Ascoli in Naples, it has been online since 2003 offering articles mainly about classical and Roman archaeology and acting as a repository, for example of articles on Iron Age Iberia from another e-journal, e-Keltoi, Journal of Interdisciplinary Celtic Studies (http://www.uwm.edu/Dept/celtic/ekeltoi), the latter online since 2002. Antonella d'Ascoli has found the open-access adventure 'a titanic enterprise, the solo crossing of a tumultuous ocean'. A browse through the website, not the easiest to use, shows that this is still very much a work in progress, but D'Ascoli must be congratulated on her energy and initiative.

Books received

The list includes all books received between 1 December 2006 and 1 March 2007. Those featuring at the beginning of New Book Chronicle have, however, not been duplicated in this list. The listing of a book in this chronicle does not preclude its subsequent review in Antiquity.
