New Titles in Linguistics

Adverbial Modification
Interval Semantics and Its Rivals
by M.J. Cresswell, Dept. of Philosophy, Victoria University, Wellington, New Zealand

232 pp. paper $18.95 cloth $44.50

This book is a comprehensive collection of articles on adverbial modification in possible-worlds semantics. It thoroughly discusses how to accommodate adverbial modification in the "situation semantics" recently developed by Barwise and Perry. Adverbial modification is one of the most difficult areas in linguistics. The collection of articles and the specially written new material makes this book stand almost alone in being concerned with the semantics of adverbs from a truth-conditional point of view.

Tone in Lexical Phonology
by Douglas Pulleyblank, Dept. of Linguistics, University of Southern California

260 pp. paper $24.00 cloth $49.50

This book develops an approach to tone that integrates autosegmental theory into the general framework of lexical morphology and phonology. Case studies of a number of languages including Dschang-Bamileke, Margi, Tiv, Tonga and Yoruba are used to argue for revisions in current phonological theory. The universal principles governing autosegmental associations are shown to depend crucially for their correct application on morphological configurations and are shown to be supplemented in many cases by the application of default rules — rules that supply redundant feature values.

Essays in Logical Semantics
by Johan van Benthem, Mathematics Institute, University of Amsterdam

240 pp. paper $19.50 cloth $49.00

Contemporary research in formal semantics is beginning to generate significant general questions, beyond the immediate necessities of modelling specific fragments of natural language. One prominent theme is the structure of possible denotations for categories of linguistic expressions, which turn out to be subject to strong constraints.

Studies in the Acquisition of Anaphora
Volume 1: Defining Constraints
edited by Barbara Lust, Cornell University

384 pp. paper $24.00 cloth $64.95

This volume, and its companion Volume 2, collect current theoretical and experimental studies of one area which is now recognized as central to human competence for language, and which is at the center of much of the most active work in both linguistics and psycholingustics today. The representation of anaphora, which reflects the reduction of redundancy in natural language (through devices like gaps or proforms) under grammatical constraints, provides a major problem for linguistic theory theory as well as for a theory of language acquisition.

New titles from Harvard

Actual Minds, Possible Worlds

Jerome Bruner

In this graceful book, Jerome Bruner examines the side of the mind that creates good stories, gripping drama, myths and rituals. He shows how imaginary world making undergirds human science, literature, philosophy, and even our sense of self.

"Bruner is not only a psychologist of high distinction, but a destroyer of disciplinary fences . . . and he carries his learning with a charming lack of pretentiousness."–Frank Kermode

$15.00

Relevance: Communication and Cognition

Dan Sperber and Deirdre Wilson

The authors challenge recent claims that human central thought processes are likely to remain a mystery for some time to come. Their provocative theory offers new insight into language and literature, radically revising current views on the nature and goals of verbal comprehension, and in particular on metaphor, irony, style, speech acts, presupposition, and implicature.

New from MIT

From Simple Input to Complex Grammar

James L. Morgan

The paradox of how children regularly learn highly complex natural language upon limited exposure to simple data lies at the center of any study of language acquisition. This book explores a new and important hypothesis for how young children might be able to learn a language from very simple sentences. $22.50

Word and Sentence Prosody in Serbocroatian

Ilse Lehiste and Pavle Ivic

"In this new work by the two outstanding linguists, the Serbo-Croatian accents are treated in a novel way as a complex of distinctive and culminative features. The work should be of interest to students of Serbo-Croatian, Slavic and general accentology for its wealth of experimental data and for its bearing on phonological, morphophonemic and syntactic phenomena."–Edward Stankiewicz, Yale University $45.00

Systems That Learn

An Introduction to Learning Theory for Cognitive and Computer Scientists

Daniel N. Osherson, Michael Stob, and Scott Weinstein

Systems That Learn presents a mathematical framework for the study of learning in a variety of domains. It provides the basic concepts and techniques of learning theory as well as a comprehensive account of a variety of learning paradigms. "This is highly original and interesting research."–Steven Pinker, MIT A Bradford Book $25.00

New paperbacks

Logical Form

Its Structure and Derivation

Robert May

This book explores Logical Form by focusing primarily on quantification phenomena and on how their explicit syntactic representation interacts with various syntactic and semantic properties. Among the topics discussed are the interactions of wh and quantified phrases, bound variable anaphora, branching quantifiers, extraposition, and multiple interrogation. Linguistic Inquiry Monograph 12 $13.95 paper (cloth $27.50)

Barriers

Noam Chomsky

In this monograph, Chomsky considers complex questions concerning the theories of government and bounding, including the possibility of a unified approach to these topics. He explores two concepts of barrier–maximal protection and the minimality condition–and their manifestations in and implications for proper governments, subjacency, island violations, vacuous movement, parasitic gaps, and A-chains. Linguistic Inquiry Monograph 13 $7.95 paper (cloth $17.50)

Phonology and Syntax

The Relation between Sound and Structure

Elisabeth O. Selkirk

"Professor Selkirk's book is the first attempt in the generative tradition to give a systematic and integrated account of the various sorts of phonological structure in English, along with their relations to lexical, syntactic and semantic patterns. This book belongs in the library of anyone interested in the structure of English or the nature of language."–Mark Liberman, ATT Bell Laboratories $12.50 paper

THE STORY OF ENGLISH

Robert McCrum • William Cran Robert MacNeil

"One of the best overviews of our language that anyone could have."—Stuart B. Flexner, editor of Random House Dictionary

The story of English is the story of a language conquering the world. The origins of the English language go back more than two thousand years to a handful of savages and forgotten tribes on the shores of North-West Europe. Today, this language is a universal system of international communication, the most powerful language the world has ever seen.

THE STORY OF ENGLISH asks: Why has this happened? How did it occur? What were the crucial developments? Where and when did they take place? What is the state of the English language today?

Published in conjunction with the outstanding nine-part series* and written in consultation with distinguished scholars throughout the world, THE STORY OF ENGLISH is an unparalleled living portrait of the English language as it has been —and is—spoken throughout the world.

Includes copious illustrations (photographs, reproductions, and cartoons—156 in full color), maps, word lists, notes, and bibliography.

Modern Transformational Grammar

with particular reference to the theory of government and binding

By BENT JACOBSEN, Department of English, The Aarhus School of Economics, Business Administration and Modern Languages, Aarhus, Denmark

NORTH-HOLLAND LINGUISTIC SERIES, Volume 53

1986. xvi + 442 pages. US $64.75/Dfl. 175.00 ISBN 0-444-87871-8

This general introduction outlines various components of the grammar, and the way in which they interact, treats movement rules in detail, and describes approaches to deletion. Also dealt with are major constraints, the theta-criterion (and related issues), semantics in the framework of generative grammar, and speech acts.

No previous specialized knowledge is presupposed, the level of complexity increasing gradually throughout the book.

A comprehensive index facilitates cross-referencing, and a set of exercises coded on to each chapter makes it possible for the reader to apply the system of rules and principles described in the text.

CONTENTS: Preface. General Introduction.

A COMPARATIVE TYPOLOGY OF ENGLISH AND GERMAN

Unifying the Contrasts

By JOHN A. HAWKINS

". . . very exciting. . . . will have a strong appeal to researchers in syntactic typology, theoretical syntax, and contrastive analysis. This work could become a classic in either of the first or third areas." —Edward L. Keenan

Original and incisive, this book draws together analyses of both English and German and defines the contrasts and similarities between them in major areas of the grammar: grammatical morphology, word order, basic grammatical relations, clause-external movement rules, deletions, and numerous rules of semantic interpretation. An invaluable resource for all linguists. $25.00 hardcover

THE LANGUAGE PARALLAX

Linguistic Relativism and Poetic Indeterminacy

By PAUL FRIEDRICH

A provocative work by a noted anthropologist and linguist that explores the differences among languages through the complexity and richness of their poetic dimensions—in the nuances of words, or the style and voice of an author. Friedrich draws on research and writing in English, Russian, and the Tarascan language of Mexico, as well as the personal and literary study of the respective cultures. $18.95 hardcover $8.95 paperback

PUBLICATIONS

of the

Linguistic Society of America

LANGUAGE, the journal of the Linguistic Society of America, carries technical articles dealing with problems of linguistic science, reviews of recently published linguistic works, and notes of interest to professional linguists.

As supplements to LANGUAGE, the Linguistic Society of America issues a series of occasional publications, LANGUAGE MONOGRAPHS. These are included in the subscription price of the journal, but may also be purchased separately. In the LANGUAGE MONOGRAPH series, the Society publishes independently subsidized studies which are too long to appear as articles or are otherwise unsuitable for publication in the journal. The method of application for admission to this series of supplements, and the terms of publication, may be secured from the Secretary of the Society.

SPECIAL PUBLICATIONS in the field of linguistic science are issued by the Society from time to time. These are not included in the subscription price of the journal.

MEETING HANDBOOKS, which contain program listings and abstracts of papers presented at LSA Annual Meetings, 1965 onward, may be purchased separately.

A list of publications in print and a price list are available from the LSA Secretariat, 1325 18th St. NW, Suite 211, Washington, DC 20036-6501. Reprint editions and back copies may be ordered from Kraus Reprint Corporation, Route 100, Millwood, New York 10546, or Kraus-Thompson Organization, FL-9491 Nendeln, Liechtenstein, Europe.
