Notes (from R.James Long and J.W. Goering)
*These two works are known only through Leland. not the most reliable source. RJL has found no internal references in the Sentence Commentary to either of these works.
known only from a remark in an anonymous pastoral work written towards the end of the thirteenth century.
JWG and RJL argued that it is not the work suggested by Boyle in a Corpus Christi MS (see Bulletin de Philosophie Médiévale 31(1989) 103–111). JWG thinks that the author was Richard of Wetheringsett, and the work was written in about 1220. JWG supposes that there is a treatise by Fishacre, De spe, fide et caritate, but that it has not yet been identified.
