Notes on Contributors

Wayne Thorpe is Professor of History at McMaster University, Ontario. His current research includes an analysis of the relationship of the International Working Men's Association (or Syndicalists International) to the Spanish Civil War, the diverging assessment by the International and its non-Spanish affiliates of the policies (including militarisation and entry into the Popular Front government) of its Spanish affiliates, and the subsequent ideological and organisational crisis in the International.

Alexander Zukas is Associate Professor of History at National University in San Diego, California, and Director of its Institute for Community and Oral History of the Center for Cultural and Ethnic Studies. He has written on European working-class and gender history, innovative approaches to the teaching of world history, and using music and theatre to teach historical subject matter. His current research focuses on Karl Korsch's Marxism, unemployed workers in the Ruhr during the Weimar Republic, and the ecology of the Ruhr 1850–1930.

Paul Lawrence is a Research Fellow at the Open University in Britain, working on a comparison of the treatment of the poor by the police in France and England 1890–1920. He has published articles on the adverse perceptions of immigrants in France during the interwar period and on police perceptions of poverty and criminality. He is currently preparing a book entitled Immigration and National Identity in France 1919–1939.

Timothy Baycroft is Lecturer in Modern French History at the University of Sheffield. He is author of Nationalism in Europe 1789 – 1945 (1998) and of articles in French History, Modern & Contemporary France and The European Review of History / Revue europeene d'Histoire. He is working on a book on culture, identity and nationalism in nineteenth – and twentieth century France.

Carolyn Grohmann has recently been awarded her Ph.D. at the University of Stirling. She is the author of 'Cause for Celebration? The Return of Annexed Lorraine to France, 1918' in Studia Historica Nitriensia (1998). She is currently

Contemporary European History, 10, 1 (2001), pp. 179–180 © 2001 Cambridge University Press
Printed in the United Kingdom

https://doi.org/10.1017/S0960777301001102 Published online by Cambridge University Press

preparing her thesis, 'The Problems of Integrating Annexed Lorraine into France, 1918 – 1925', for publication.

Enrique Moradiellos is Lecturer in History at the Universidad de Extramadura. His books include La perfidia de Albión: el gobierno británico y la guerre española (1996) and La España de Franco (1939–1975): política y sociedad (2000).

Martin C. Thomas is Reader in International History at the University of the West of England, Bristol. He is the author of The French Empire at War, 1940–4 (1998) and The French North African Crisis: Colonial Breakdown and Anglo-French Relations (2000).

Robert Knight is a Lecturer in History at Loughborough University. He has published extensively on Austrian history and on Western policy towards central Europe, including 'Ethnicity and Identity in the Cold War: The Carinthian Border Dispute, 1945–1949, in International History Review (June 2000). He is currently a member of the Austrian Historians' Commission investigating Nazi property sequestration and postwar compensation and restitution.

Rudy J. Koshar is DAAD Professor of German and European Studies, University of Wisconsin – Madison. He is the author of German Travel Cultures (2000) and From Monuments to Traces: Artefacts of German Memory, 1870–1990 (2000).

Paolo Capuzzo is a member of the Department of History at the University of Bologna. Author of Vienna da citta a metropoli (1998) and Da citta ad area metropolitana (2000), he is currently working on the social and cultural history of consumption.

Padraic Kenney is Associate Professor of East European History at the University of Colorado at Boulder. Author of Rebuilding Poland: Workers and Communists 1945–1950 (1997), he is currently completing a book tentatively entitled Carnival: The Grassroots of Revolution, 1989.

https://doi.org/10.1017/S0960777301001102 Published online by Cambridge University Press