Activities

Herbert Werlin, retired, University of Maryland, is being honored by Exeter College, Oxford for his contribution to political philosophy in the Summer 2007 issue of The Journal of Social, Political, and Economic Studies, "Corruption and Democracy: Is Lord Acton Right?"

Administrative Appointments

Amílcar Antonio Barreto, associate dean and director, Graduate School for the College of Arts & Sciences, Northeastern University.

W. Bartley Hildreth, Regents Distinguished Professor of Public Finance, Wichita State University, appointed interim dean of the W. Frank Barton School of Business.

Michael Minkenberg, professor, European University Viadrina Frankfurt, has been named the 2007-2009 Max Weber Chair for German and European Studies, Center for European and Mediterranean Studies, New York University.

Bernard Rowan, chairman, department of history, philosophy, and political science, Chicago State University.

Lawrence Solum, the John E. Cribbet Professor of Law and Professor of Philosophy, named the inaugural Associate Dean for Faculty and Research at the University of Illinois College of Law.

Janelle Wong, interim director of the Jesse M. Unruh Institute of Politics, department of political science, University of Southern California.

New Appointments

Robert K. Adcock, assistant professor, department of political science, George Washington University.

Stephen Ansolabehere, professor, department of government, Harvard University.

Luis Cabrera, lecturer, department of political science and international studies, University of Birmingham.

Sonja Amadae, assistant professor, political science department, Ohio State University.

Bear Braumoeller, assistant professor, political science department, Ohio State University.

Hans Hacker, assistant professor, department of political science, Arkansas State University.

Kate Ivanova, assistant professor, political science department, Ohio State University-Newark.

Alana Jeydel, assistant professor, department of political science, American River College.

Marc Lynch, associate professor, department of political science, George Washington University.

Corrine McConnaughy, professor, political science department, Ohio State University.

Eric MacGilvray, assistant professor, political science department, Ohio State University.

William Minozzi, assistant professor, political science department, Ohio State University.

David L. Paletz, director, Film/Video/Digital Program, professor, department of political science, Duke University.

Sean Richey, assistant professor, department of political science, Georgia State University.

Elizabeth N. Saunders, assistant professor, department of political science, George Washington University.

Sara Watson, professor, political science department, Ohio State University.

Ishmail White, professor, political science department, Ohio State University.

Visiting and Temporary Positions

Andrea Haupt, visiting assistant professor, political science department, Ohio State University.

Rafi Youatt, visiting assistant professor, political science department, Ohio State University.

FOR THE RECORD

Mark C. Miller, Clark University associate professor of Government and International Relations and Director of Clark's Law and Society Program, received a Fulbright Distinguished Chair Award for 2007–2008.

Miller will teach at the University of Leiden in the Netherlands during the spring 2008 semester. There he will hold the Thomas Jefferson Distinguished Chair, teaching in the American Studies Program, which is one of the largest American Studies program in Europe. He will teach a master's level course called "The Supreme Court in American History" and a bachelor's level class titled "Government and Politics in the United States."

Miller is the editor of the forthcoming book, Exploring Judicial Politics (Oxford University Press), and co-edited, Making Policy, Making Law: An Interbranch Perspective (Georgetown University Press). His first book was called, The High Priests of American Politics: The Role of Lawyers in American Political Institutions (University of Tennessee Press).

He came to Clark University in 1990 and has served as chair of the government department, and director of the Law & Society program. His current research interests include the interactions between Congress and the courts; constitutional law issues involving the powers of Congress; and comparisons of judicial politics in North America and Western Europe.

He is currently working on another book entitled, The View of the Courts from the Hill: Interactions between Congress and the Federal Judiciary. He has been named Outstanding Teacher of the Year and received The Oliver and Dorothy Hayden Junior Faculty Fellowship Award for excellence in teaching and research as well as the Seymour N. Logan Faculty Fellowship for excellence in teaching and research.

https://doi.org/10.1017/S1049096508080384 Published online by Cambridge University Press

Promotions

Li Bennich-Björkman, Skytte Professor of Elocution and Political Science, Uppsala University. She is the first woman to hold what is probably the world's oldest chair in political science, endowed in 1622.

Karl DeRouen, Jr., professor, department of political science, The University of Alabama.

Jennifer Leigh Disney, associate professor, department of political science, Winthrop University. Disney was also named the director for the Office of Nationally Competitive Awards (ONCA) at Winthrop University.

Scott H. Huffmon, associate professor (tenured), department of political Science, Winthrop University.

Michael E. Lipscomb, associate professor (tenured), department of political science, Winthrop University.

Rosemary O'Leary, Maxwell School Advisory Board Endowed Chair, departments of public administration and political science, Syracuse University.

Randall Schweller, professor, political science department, Ohio State University.

Michael A. Unger, assistant professor, School of American and International Studies, Ramapo College of New Jersey.

Daniel Verdier, professor, political science department, Ohio State University.

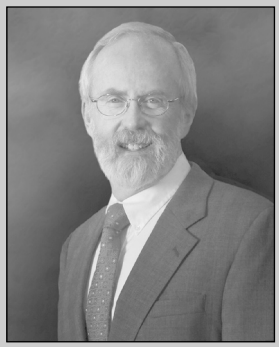

Craig Volden, associate professor, political science department, Ohio State University.

Awards

Lawrence Baum, professor, political science department, Ohio State University, received the C. Herman Pritchet Award for the best book on law and courts.

Jason Davidson, assistant professor of political science and international affairs, the University of Mary Washington has been named the "Outstanding Young Faculty Member" for 2007.

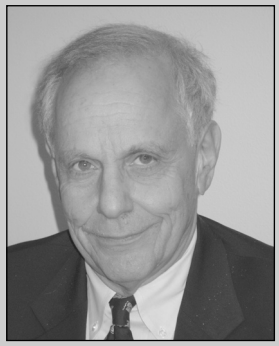

Dennis M. Foster, assistant professor, department of international studies and political science, Virginia Military Institute, received the Institute's 2006-2007 Thomas Jefferson Award for teaching excellence by a junior faculty member.

The University of Denver's Graduate School of International Studies (GSIS) received a $7.45 million gift from investor-philanthropist Frederick S. Pardee to support and expand the school's International Futures program. Chancellor Robert Coombe said the gift will be used to create the Frederick S. Pardee Center for International Futures at GSIS, funding its endowment and operating costs from 2008 through 2012. One-half million dollars will go to the Frederick S. Pardee Pavilion, to be constructed within GSIS. Developed by GSIS Professor Barry Hughes, International Futures is a sophisticated computer modeling system that can help forecast long-term global changes and trends in demographics, economics, the environment, and international politics.

Susan Herbst was appointed executive vice chancellor and chief academic officer (EVC/CAO) for the University System of Georgia (USG). The EVC/CAO is responsible for meeting the academic needs of more than 260,000 students and approximately 10,000 University System faculty members. The position also provides leadership to the System's comprehensive universities and to a division at the University System Office that includes academic programs and planning, faculty affairs, student affairs, international programs, teacher-education initiatives, strategic research and analysis, and information and instructional technology. The presidents of the 15 institutions in the System's university sector report to her. She previously served as the acting president of the University at Albany, State University of New York.

University of California, Berkeley, political scientist Jack Citrin was appointed the director of the Institute of Governmental Services. The seventh director in IGS's 88-year history, Citrin took over from Bruce Cain. Associate Vice Chancellor for Research Robert Price made the appointment, saying "Jack has proved himself both an outstanding scholar and an excellent administrator." Citrin, an expert on public opinion in the United States and Europe, already launched a new program at the Institute, titled "America Elects the President: Issues, Questions, and Campaigns." He also plans to create a Center on the Study of Representation and to strengthen the traditional IGS focus on California politics. He previously served as the Institute's associate director and has taught at Berkeley since 1969.

Larry Dodd, the Manning J. Dauer Eminent Scholar in Political Science at the University of Florida, was selected the 2006–2007 Teacher/Scholar of the Year from across the university. Originating in 1960, this is the university's most prestigious and oldest faculty award. During his 12 years at UF Dodd has continued his scholarly work on Congress, including research as a fellow at the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars in Washington. He is now engaged in an NSF-funded study of the 2006 elections in Nicaragua jointly undertaken with Leslie Anderson, his political science colleague and wife. He has authored four books, edited five, and written over 50 essays and articles. Dodd is the second political scientist to win the award since its inception.

https://doi.org/10.1017/S1049096508080384 Published online by Cambridge University Press

Marcus Kurtz, Alumni Award for Distinguished Teaching, 2007, Ohio State University.

B. Rick Mayes, associate professor, department of political science, University of Richmond, received a campus-wide Distinguished Educator Award.

Gerson Moreno-Riano, chair of the government department, Regent University, won a second place Templeton Enterprise Award for his article "Natural Law and Modern Economic Theory" in the Journal of Markets and Morality,

John Mueller, political science department, Ohio State University, received the Warren Mitofsky Award for excellence in public opinion research.

Barry G. Rabe, professor, Gerald Ford School of Government and School of Natural Resources and Environment, University of Michigan, named recipient of a Climate Protection Award from the U.S. Environment Protection Agency for his contribution to the understanding of climate policy.

Irfan Nooruddin, Distinguished University Mentor of the Year Award, 2007, Ohio State University.

Israel Waismel-Manor, assistant professor, department of government and political theory, school of political sciences, University of Haifa, Israel, received Outstanding Lecturer award, faculty of social sciences.

Award-Winning Political Science Faculty, Academic Year 2006–2007

PS learned of an additional award recipient after publication of the October issue.

Houman A. Sadri
University of Central Florida
Excellence in Undergraduate Teaching
This award is offered to a tenured (or tenured earning) faculty who selected by an interdisciplinary group of faculty members from all university departments. The award is given in recognition of excellence in teaching in terms of: classroom effectiveness, creative methods, impact on students' success, and scholarship of teaching. This is an annual award program. Nominees for the award must have at least three years of continuous service.

American University Names Roger W. Jones Award for Executive Leadership Recipients

From left to right: AU professor Robert Tobias, director School of Public Affairs' Key Executive Leadership Programs; John Potter, CEO and postmaster general, US Postal Service; William LeoGrande, dean, AU School of Public Affairs; MaryAnne Musumeci, director, James J. Peters VA Medical Center, Bronx.

John Potter, postmaster general and chief executive officer of the United States Postal Service, and MaryAnn Musumeci, director of the Bronx/James J. Peters Veteran Affairs Medical Center in New York have been honored as the 2007 recipients of The Roger W. Jones Award for Executive Leadership, presented annually by American University's School of Public Affairs. William M. LeoGrande, dean of the School of Public Affairs, hosted a ceremony at the Katzen Arts Center's Abramson Family Recital Hall to honor these two Federal career executives, who have demonstrated outstanding commitment to excellence, leadership, and professional development. Mark W. Everson, president and chief executive officer of the American Red Cross (former commissioner of the IRS) offered the keynote speech, "Thoughts from a Recovering Political Appointee."

National Academy of Public Administration Announces 2007 Fellows

The National Academy of Public Administration has elected 34 Fellows for 2007. NAPA Fellows provide leadership, analysis, and recommendations on projects commissioned by Congress, federal agencies, state and local governments, and the private sector. Fellows advise and actively participate in Academy studies and testify before congressional committees on emerging public management challenges. Academy panels recently have advised top FBI leadership on the agency's human capital efforts, offered comprehensive changes to the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office, and constructively advised the National Institutes of Health and the Corporation for National and Community Service.

Stuart Bretschneider, associate dean and chair, department of public administration, Syracuse University.

Michael Britnall, executive director, American Political Science Association.

Jack H. Knott, Irwin C. and Ione L. Piper Dean and Professor, School of Policy, Planning, and Development, University of Southern California.

Alasdair S. Roberts, professor of public administration, Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs, Syracuse University.

https://doi.org/10.1017/S1049096508080384 Published online by Cambridge University Press

In the News . . .

David Samuel, University of Minnesota, The Economist, on Brazilian electoral party funding reform.

Franklin Jones, Southern Texas University; Bob Stein, Rice University, Houston Chronicle, on lack of African American support for jail referendums in Texas.

Kendra Stewart, Eastern Kentucky University, Fox News, on Kentucky governor Steve Beshear's victory over incumbent Ernie Fletcher.

Peter Woolley, Fairleigh Dickinson University, Newsday, on low turnouts in New Jersey elections.

Jack Pitney, Claremont McKenna College, Detroit Free Press, on Republicans' perceptions of Hillary Clinton.

David Rohde, Duke University, The Associated Press, on presidential candidates' apprehension to discuss water shortages.

Raphael Sonenshein, Cal State Fullerton, Los Angeles Times, on the strength of the Black vote in Los Angeles.

Dennis Goldford, Drake University, NBC Nightly News, on Tommy Thompson's odds in the Iowa Caucus.

Larry Sabato, University of Virginia, WBBM 780 Newsradio, on Illinois' role in what he calls the "holy trinity" of corruption.

Jon Taylor, University of St. Thomas, Houston Chronicle, on the likelihood of Houston Mayor Bill White running for governor in 2010.

Jiro Yamaguchi, Hokkaido University, MSNBC, on the effects of the withdrawal of Japan's navy from aiding the U.S.-led military operations in Afghanistan.

Jon Krosnick, Stanford University, U.S. News and World Report, on why candidates who appear confident are likely to be perceived as more competent.

Mauricio Romero, Universidad del Rosario, Christian Science Monitor, on the evolution of paramilitary power in Columbia since the 1980s.

Marc Lynch, George Washington University, Christian Science Monitor, on al-Qaida's difficulty in finding a safe haven.

Georgia Duerst-Lahti, Beloit College; Leonie Huddy, SUNY Stony Brook; Susan MacManus, University of South Florida at Tampa, The Washington Post, on the "rules" for female candidates.

Jeff Stonecash, Syracuse University, CBS News, on Clinton's progress winning over voters.

Ma Ngok, City University of Hong Kong, Time, on Anson Chan's campaign for Hong Kong's legislature.

Yaron Ezrahi, Hebrew University, NPR, on the vulnerability of Israel's Prime Minister Olmert because of the corruption charges against him.

Hassan Abbas, Harvard University, Christian Science Monitor, on the middle classes' reaction to Bhutto's arrangements with Musharraf.

Matthew Eshbaugh-Soha, University of North Texas in Denton; Michael McDonald, George Masson University, USA Today, on fundraising in the four most populous states.

David Victor, Stanford University, Science, on geoengineering research as a viable course of action against climate change.

Bruce Buchanan, University of Texas Austin; Robert M. Stein, Rice University, New York Times, on Texas Senator Hutchison's announcement that she may step down in 2009.

Joseph Cheng, City University in Hong Kong, Voice of America, on China's leaders attempt to appear tough on corruption.

Ross K. Baker, Rutgers University, CBS News, on the Democrats use of traditional issues to build momentum toward the 2008 election.

Michael Tomz, Stanford University, The Washington Post, on voters' response to waffling by candidates.

Bruce Gronbeck, University of Iowa, Boston Globe, predicted a tight race between Mitt Romney and Mike Huckabee.

Dan Nataf, Anne Arundel Community College, The Washington Post, on conducting a poll that shows Maryland residents favor bringing slot machine gambling to the state.

Maria Victoria Murillo, Columbia University, The Washington Post, explaining the differences between Argentina's first lady and president-elect Cristina Fernández de Kirchner and her husband.

Wayne A. Cornelius, University of California, San Diego, The New York Times, on the effect the fall 2007 California wildfires have on illegal immigrants.

Dario Moreno, Florida International University, Chicago Tribune, on the Bush administration's stance toward Cuba since Castro's illness.

https://doi.org/10.1017/S1049096508080384 Published online by Cambridge University Press

Booklist: Upcoming Publications in the Political Science Discipline

This section lists upcoming book publications across the broad field of political science. This list is fully reader-generated. If your first-edition book is scheduled for publication in the three months before publication of the next issue of PS, enter the details of publication in the box found at PS's web site: www.apsanet.org/section_223.cfm. We hope that spreading word of upcoming work will help keep our members even more attune to new scholarship within the discipline.

Aspects of the Orange Revolution I-VI Democratization and Elections in Post-Communist Ukraine (Soviet and Post-Soviet Politics and Society 63-68)
Volumes edited by Ingmar Bredies, Paul D'Anieri, Bohdan Harasymiw, Oleh Ilnytzkyj, Taras Kuzio, Andreas Umland, and Valentin Yakushik
ibidem-Verlag Stuttgart & Hannover

Beyond Regression in Social Sciences: The Need for Logical Models
Rein Taagepera
Oxford University Press

Cities in a Time of Terror: Space, Territory, and Local Resilience
H. V. Savitch
M. E. Sharpe

The Constitution of Electoral Speech Law: The Supreme Court and Freedom of Expression in Campaigns and Elections
Brian Pinaire
Stanford University Press

The Economic Vote: How Political and Economic Institutions Condition Election Results
Raymond Duch and Randy Stevenson
Cambridge University Press

The Idea of Greater Britain: Empire and the Future of World Order, 1860–1900
Duncan Bell
Princeton University Press

Justice, Gender, and the Politics of Multiculturalism
Sarah Song
Cambridge University Press

The Making of the Presidential Candidates 2008
Edited by William G. Mayer
Rowman & Littlefield Publishers, Inc.

Mathematics and Democracy: Designing Better Voting and Fair-Division Procedures
Steven J. Brams
Princeton University Press

Missionary Politics in Contemporary Europe
José Pedro Zúquete
Syracuse University Press

Nations of Emigrants: Shifting Boundaries of Citizenship in El Salvador and the United States
Susan Bibler Coutin
Cornell University Press

The Next Justice: Repairing the Supreme Court Appointment Process
Christopher L. Eisgruber
Princeton University Press

The Third Space of Sovereignty: The Postcolonial Politics of U.S.-Indigenous Relations
Kevin Bruyneel
The University of Minnesota Press
(Indigenous Americas Series)

The Politics of Economic Leadership: The Causes and Consequences of Presidential Leadership
B. Dan Wood
Princeton University Press

Predicting Party Sizes: The Logic of Simple Electoral Systems
Rein Taagepera
Oxford University Press

Qualitative Methods in International Relations
Audie Klotz
Palgrave

Redistricting and Representation: Why Competitive Elections are Bad for America
Tom Brunell
Routledge

Rousseau's Platonic Enlightenment
David Lay Williams
Pennsylvania State University Press

Ships Without A Shore: America's Undernurtured Children
Anne Rice Pierce
Transaction

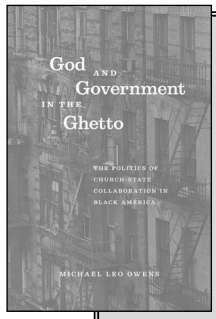

Taken Into Custody: The War Against Fathers, Marriage, and the Family
Stephen Baskerville
Cumberland House

Uncovering the Constitution's Moral Design
Paul R. DeHart
University of Missouri Press

The War on Lebanon: A Reader
Nubar Hovsepian
Olive Branch Press, an imprint of Interlink Publishing Group, Inc.

Thinking Beyond War: Civil-Military Relations and Why America Fails to Win the Peace
Isaiah Wilson III
Palgrave Macmillan

White House Special Handbook, or How to Rule the World in the 21st Century
Mikhail Kryzhanovsky
Algora

God and Government in the Ghetto: The Politics of Church-State Collaboration in Black America
Michael Leo Owens
University of Chicago Press

In recent years, as government agencies have encouraged faith-based organizations to help ensure social welfare, many black churches have received grants to provide services to their neighborhoods' poorest residents. This collaboration, activist churches explain, is a way of enacting their faith and helping their neighborhoods.

But as Michael Leo Owens demonstrates, this alliance also serves as a means for black clergy to reaffirm their political leadership and reposition moral authority in black civil society. Drawing on both survey data and fieldwork in New York City, Owens reveals that African American churches can use these newly forged connections with public agencies to influence policy and government responsiveness in a way that reaches beyond traditional electoral or protest politics. The churches and neighborhoods, Owens argues, can see a real benefit from that influence—but it may come at the expense of less involvement at the grassroots.

Owens is assistant professor of political science at Emory University.

https://doi.org/10.1017/S1049096508080384 Published online by Cambridge University Press