Notes on Contributors

Marie-Emmanuelle Chessel is a researcher at the Centre National de la Recherche Scientifique (Centre Pierre Léon, Lyons, France). She is the author of La publicité. Naissance d'une profession 1900–1940 (Paris, 1998). She is now working on consumers' leagues in France.

Michael David-Fox is Associate Professor in the Department of History, University of Maryland and co-editor of Kritika: Explorations in Russian and Eurasian History. He is author of Revolution of the Mind: Higher Learning among the Bolsheviks (Ithaca, 1997), editor of two volumes of Amerikanskaia rusistika: Vekhi istoriografi poslednikh let [American Russian Studies: Recent Historiographical Landmarks] (2000 and 2001) and co-editor, with György Péteri, of Academia in Upheaval: Origins, Transfers and Transformations of the Communist Academic Regime in Russia and East Central Europe (Westport, 2000). He is currently writing a book on the reception of foreign intellectuals in the early Soviet Union.

Wilfried Mausbach is a Research Fellow at the Department of History, University of Heidelberg. From 1995 until 2000 he was a Research Fellow at the German Historical Institute in Washington, D.C. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Cologne in 1994. He is the author of Zwischen Morgenthau und Marshall: Das wirtschaftspolitische Deutschlandkonzept der USA 1944–1947 (Düsseldorf, 1996) and an adjunct editor of Die USA und Deutschland im Zeitalter des Kalten Krieges 1945–1990 (Stuttgart, 2001). His current book project is a history of Germany and the Vietnam War.

Filipe Ribeiro de Meneses lectures in Spanish and Portuguese history at the National University of Ireland, Maynooth. He is the author of União sagrada e sidonismo: Portugal em guerra (1916 – 1918) (Lisbon, 2000) and Franco and the Spanish Civil War (London, 2001).

György Péteri is Professor of Contemporary European History at the Norwegian University of Science and Technology, in Trondheim, Norway. He is also the director, at the same university, of the Program on East European Cultures and Societies. His most recent book is Global Monetary Regime and National Central

Contemporary European History, 11, 1 (2002), pp. 189–190 © 2002 Cambridge University Press
DOI:10.1017/S096077730200111X Printed in the United Kingdom

https://doi.org/10.1017/S096077730200111X Published online by Cambridge University Press

Banking: The Case of Hungary, 1921–1929 (2002). He is working on the history of social science research intwentieth-century Hungary.

Maruška Svašek is a Lecturer in Social Anthropology at Queen's University Belfast. Her main research interests include border issues, emotions, politics and visual art. She has published numerous papers and co-edited several special issues of the journal Focaal: European Journal of Anthropology on these themes and is currently working on a book on the anthropology of art, to be published in 2003.

Vera Tolz is Professor of Russian History at the University of Salford. Her publications include The USSR's Emerging Multiparty System (New York, 1990), Russian Academicians and the Revolution: Between Professionalism and Politics (New York, 1997), Russia: Inventing the Nation (London and New York, 2001). Her current main interest is the construction of Russian national identity in historical perspective.

Kiril Tomoff is Assistant Professor of History at the University of California, Riverside. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Chicago in June 2001 and he is currently working on a book based on his dissertation, 'Creative Union: the Professional Organisation of Soviet Composers, 1939–1953'.

Barbara Walker is Assistant Professor of History at the University of Nevada. She has recently completed a book on the circle and personality cult of intelligentsia figure Maximilian Voloshin, and is presently working on a history of the intelligentsia and capitalism. Recent publications include 'On Reading Soviet Memoirs: A History of the "Contemporaries" Genre as an Institution of Russian Intelligentsia Culture from the 1790s to the 1970s', The Russian Review 59 (July 2000), and '(Still) Searching for a Soviet Society: A Review of Recent Scholarship on Personal Ties in Soviet Political and Economic Life', Comparative Studies in Society and History, 43, 3 (July 2001).

https://doi.org/10.1017/S096077730200111X Published online by Cambridge University Press