Erratum

Kaomea, J. (2014) 'Education for Elimination in Nineteenth-Century Hawai`i: Settler Colonialism and the Native Hawaiian Chiefs' Children's Boarding School' History of Education Quarterly, 54, 123-144. doi: 10.1111/hoeq.12054

An error occurred while formatting the paragraph below which is the last paragraph on page 141.

Maheha was the daughter of High Chief Namaile and High Chiefess Kuini Liliha . . . She was among those chosen by King Kamehameha III eligible for [the] throne of the Kingdom of Hawaii to a tend the Chiefs' Children's School, also known as the Royal School of Hawaii . . . She left the school on January 18, 1847 married Keaupuni on February 3, 1847 but they divorced.[87]

Instead of a paragraph, it should have been a block quote.

The formatting of the Hawaiian words below is also erroneous throughout the article:

Hawai`i

Na'ea

ali'i

ma'i

Ka'ū

pā'ū

le'a

Le'a

Kaua'i

'A'ole

mo'opuna

ho'opalau

 Copyright © 2014 History of Education Society

https://doi.org/10.1111/hoeq.12076 Published online by Cambridge University Press

The glottal stop diacritical mark that is used in several of the Hawaiian words should appear as a single, curly open quote [‘] instead as shown below:

Hawai‘i

Na‘ea

ali‘i

ma‘i

Ka‘ū

pā‘ū

le‘a

Le‘a

Kaua‘i

‘A‘ole

mo‘opuna

ho‘opalau

We apologize for any inconvenience that this has caused.

https://doi.org/10.1111/hoeq.12076 Published online by Cambridge University Press