NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

Marya L. Besharov is an assistant professor of organizational behavior at the ILR School at Cornell University. Her research focuses on how organizations combine economic with broader social purposes. Her work has been published and is forthcoming in journals such as Academy of Management Learning and Education, Industrial and Corporate Change, Research in Organizational Behavior, and Research in the Sociology of Organizations. She received her Ph.D. in organizational behavior from Harvard University. E-mail: mlb363@cornell.edu.

John R. Boatright is the Raymond C. Baumhart, S.J., Professor of Business Ethics in the Quinlan School of Business at Loyola University Chicago, and the director of the Baumhart Center for Social Enterprise and Responsibility. He has served as the executive director of the Society for Business Ethics, and is a past president of the Society. He is the author of the books Ethics and the Conduct of Business and Ethics in Finance, and the editor of Finance Ethics: Critical Issues in Theory and Practice. He has contributed chapters to many books, and has published widely in major journals. He serves on the editorial boards of Business Ethics Quarterly, Journal of Business Ethics, and Business and Society Review. He received his Ph.D. in philosophy from the University of Chicago. E-mail: jboatri@luc.edu

Will Felps is a senior lecturer at the Australian School of Business, University of New South Wales. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Washington, Seattle. Will has published in Academy of Management Journal, Academy of Management Review, Journal of Personality and Social Psychology, and Research in Organizational Behavior. He has won the IABS Paper of the Year award (2007) and the Rotterdam School of Management IBA Professor of the Year award (2011 and 2012). Will's research interests include stakeholder theory, moral psychology, the relationship between experience and job performance, and the management of science. These diverse interests are linked together by a desire to create more effective and humane organizations. E-mail: w.felps@unsw.edu.au.

Michael Gonin is research coordinator of the Interdisciplinary Research Project on Social Entrepreneurship and Social Economy at the University of Lausanne, and postdoc fellow at the University of Zurich's Research Priority Program in Ethics. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Lausanne in business ethics, in which he explores the disembedding of business from its societal context. His current research investigates social entrepreneurs, as well as the combination of multiple frameworks, perspectives, and ethical standpoints to develop comprehensive understanding of cross-discipline issues. E-mail: michael.gonin@unil.ch

Thomas M. Jones is the Boeing Professor at the Foster School of Business, University of Washington. His research interests include stakeholder theory, corporate objective functions, the relationship between legal institutions and economic welfare, and corporate governance. He has published in the Academy of Management

©2013 Business Ethics Quarterly 23:3 (July 2013); ISSN 1052-150X pp. 493–495
DOI: 10.5840/beq201323335

https://doi.org/10.5840/beq201323335 Published online by Cambridge University Press

Review, the Academy of Management Journal, Organization Science, and Business Ethics Quarterly. He was the Connelly Visiting Scholar at Georgetown University (1999) and the Rust Visiting Professor at the Darden School (2010). He has served on the editorial board of the Academy of Management Review for almost twenty years. He has won the Foster School's Faculty Research Award (2000), the IABS Best Paper Award (2007), and the SIM Sumner Marcus Award (2005). E-mail: rebozo@u.washington.edu.

RICHARD P. MULLIN earned his Ph.D. at Duquesne University and for over thirty years taught philosophy at Wheeling Jesuit University along with business ethics in their MBA program. He has lectured on American philosophy in Slovenia and Slovakia, and is active in the Society for the Advancement of American Philosophy. His book, The Soul of Classical American Philosophy, portrays the ethical and spiritual insights of the founders of American Pragmatism. E-mail: rmullin@wju.edu.

HERMANN A. NDOFOR is an assistant professor of management at the Mays Business School, Texas A&M University. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee. His research interests include competitive dynamics, upper echelons, and corporate governance. E-mail: Hndofor@Mays.tamu.edu.

SCOTT J. REYNOLDS is an associate professor of business ethics and the Helen Moore Gerhardt Faculty Fellow at the Foster School of Business at the University of Washington. His research interests include topics related to ethical decision-making such as moral awareness, decision-making biases, and moral intuition. His work has appeared in Business Ethics Quarterly, Journal of Applied Psychology, Academy of Management Journal, Journal of Management, and several other outlets. E-mail: heyscott@uw.edu.

JUDITH SCHREMPF-STIRLING is assistant professor of management at the University of Richmond, Robins School of Business. She received her Ph.D. at the University of Lausanne. Her research interests focus on corporate social responsibility, business and human rights, and responsible consumption. Her articles have appeared in such journals as Business & Society, Business Horizons, and Journal of Business Ethics. Home page: http://robins.richmond.edu/people/faculty/jschremp; e-mail: judith.stirling@richmond.edu.

SRIDEVI SHIVARAJAN is an assistant professor of management in the Anisfield School of Business at Ramapo College of New Jersey. She received her PhD from Temple University. She has published in the Journal of Business Ethics, and her papers have figured in the best paper proceedings of the Academy of Management's Annual Conference in 2007 and 2012. Her research interests include Aristotelian virtue ethics, sustainability, and authentic leadership. E-mail: sshivara@ramapo.edu.

WENDY K. SMITH is an assistant professor of organizational behavior at the Alfred Lerner School of Business at the University of Delaware. Her research focuses on strategic paradoxes—how organizations and their leaders attend to contradictory,

https://doi.org/10.5840/beq201323335 Published online by Cambridge University Press

yet interrelated, demands. Her research has been published in journals such as Academy of Management Review, Harvard Business Review, Organization Science, Management Science, and Academy of Management Learning and Education. She received her Ph.D. in organizational behavior from Harvard University. E-mail: smithw@udel.edu.

ARAVIND SRINIVASAN is a professor with the Department of Computer Science and the Institute for Advanced Computer Studies at the University of Maryland, College Park. His research interests are in randomized algorithms, networking, social networks, and combinatorial optimization, as well as in the growing confluence of algorithms, networks, and randomness. He has published over ninety papers in these areas, and is an editor of three journals. E-mail: srin@cs.umd.edu.

BEN WEMPE lives in Amsterdam and works at the Rotterdam School of Management, Erasmus University Rotterdam. He studied political theory in Leiden, Florence, and Oxford. Over the past five years he has developed two courses, on leadership and on corporations and justice, based on normative research methodology. His current research interests focus on justification, virtue ethics, and the moral limits of markets. E-mail: bwempe@rsm.nl.

CURTIS L. WESLEY II is an assistant professor of management and entrepreneurship at the Indiana University Kelley School of Business, Indianapolis. He earned his Ph.D. from Texas A&M University's Mays Business School. His research interests include corporate governance, firm stewardship, and entrepreneurship in social and technology venturing. He has published in Academy of Management Learning and Education, Entrepreneurship Theory and Practice, and the Journal of Management. He serves on the editorial board of the Journal of Management and has won the New York University Stern School Satter Conference on Social Entrepreneurs Best Paper Award (2009). E-mail: cuwesley@indiana.edu.

https://doi.org/10.5840/beq201323335 Published online by Cambridge University Press