Notes on Contributors

Michael Kitson is Newton Trust Lecturer in the Faculty of Economics and Politics at the University of Cambridge and a Fellow of St Catharine's College, Cambridge. He is a Research Associate at the ESRC Centre for Business Research, University of Cambridge and is a member of the editorial board of the Cambridge Journal of Economics. He has published widely in the areas of economic history, macroeconomics, industrial economics and economic policy.

Thomas Rohkrämer teaches history at the Universtiy of Lancaster. He is the author of Der Militarismus der 'kleinen Leute'. Die Kriegervereine im Deutschen Kaiserreich 1871–1914 (Munich: Oldenbourg, 1990). He is currently completing a book on the critiques of civilisation in Germany between 1880 and 1930.

David Berry is Lecturer in French and European Studies at Loughborough University. He has published extensively on French anarchism, the Popular Front and the Spanish Civil War.

Peter Scharff Smith, Niels Bo Paulsen and Claus Bundgård Christensen all hold Masters degrees from Roskilde University, Denmark. Claus Bundgård Christensen is currently working on the subject 'Criminal behaviour in Denmark during the Occupation', Niels Bo Poulsen is working in the Danish foreign service, and Peter Scharff Smith is employed at the Danish National Archive. They are the authors of Dansk arbejde tyske befaestningsanlaeg (Blåvandshuk, Egnsmuseum, 1997) and Under hagekors og Dannebrog - Danskere i Waffen SS 1940–1945 (Copenhagen: Aschehoug, 1998).

Carl Levy is Lecturer in European Politics at Goldsmiths' College, University of London. His most recent publication is (ed.), Italian Regionalism. History, Identity and Politics (Oxford: Berg, 1996). He has written extensively on comparative European politics, the history of ideas and labour history. He also specialises in Italian history since 1870.

Anatol Shmelev is a Research Scholar at the Kennan Institute for Advanced Russian

Contemporary European History, 8, 1 (1999), pp. 173–174 © 1999 Cambridge University Press
Printed in the United Kingdom

https://doi.org/10.1017/S096077739900020X Published online by Cambridge University Press

Studies, where he is working on a study of the foreign policy of the White (anti-Bolshevik) governments during the Russian civil war. His research interests are foreign policy and expansion in imperial Russia, the Civil War and emigration.

Bruno Dumons is a researcher at the Centre Nationale de la Recherche Scientifique (Centre Pierre Léon, Lyon). His Catholiques en politique was published in 1993 (Paris: Desclée), and he is currently working on a new book on the Ligue des Femmes Françaises, which deals with political action among upper-middle-class French women.

Johnny Laursen teaches at the University of Aalborg in Denmark. He has published extensively on issues relating to Scandinavia and European integration.

Karsten Rudolph is Research Assistant at the Institut zur Erforschung der Europäischen Arbeiterbewegung at the Ruhr-Universität, Bochum, Germany. He is the author of Die sächsische Sozialdemokratie vom Kaierreich zur Republik (1871–1923) (Cologne, Weimar and Vienna: Boehlau, 1995). He is currently working on a study of the policy of West German industry towards eastern Europe.

https://doi.org/10.1017/S096077739900020X Published online by Cambridge University Press