ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This book is the result of preliminary work for the sequel to my Henry VIII and Francis I: the final conflict (Leiden, 2012), in which I intend to cover the relations between France and the British Isles in the period 1547–1565, to be called France and the Hegemony of the British Isles. In the course of this I became aware of how limited was knowledge of the French ambassadors after the Noailles brothers in the 1550s. I hope that this book partly fills that gap. It will be followed by a further study, of Paul de Foix.

I would like to thank the staff of the Archives du Ministère des Affaires Etrangères at Paris (including M. Christophe Villecroix) and those of the Cabinet des Manuscrits of the Bibliothèque nationale. I should also thank Dr Hester Higton for her thorough copy-editing of the text, and finally my sister, Christine Harvey, for her unfailing encouragement.
