B. J. Music Ed. 2003 20:2, 117–118
DOI: 10.1017/S0265051703005321
Copyright © 2003 Cambridge University Press

The Contributors

Leslie Bunt

Leslie Bunt is a qualified music teacher and therapist. His work with children led to his doctoral research on the effects of music therapy with children with special needs. He is founder of the MusicSpace Trust, a charity providing a music therapy service through its branches. He directs the music therapy course at Bristol University and is Visiting Professor in Music Therapy at the University of the West of England. Publications include Music Therapy: An Art Beyond Words, A Handbook of Music Therapy (with Sarah Hoskyns), and the 'Music therapy' entry in the New Grove Dictionary of Music and Musicians.

Tia DeNora

Tia DeNora teaches sociology at the University of Exeter. She has recently completed a book entitled After Adorno: Rethinking Music Sociology, contracted with Cambridge University Press. She is working on an historical study of the links between Beethoven and ideas of social agency and on the social history of music therapy.

David Hargreaves

David Hargreaves is Professor of Child Development, Director of the Centre for International Research in Music Education (CIRME), and Froebel Research Fellow at the University of Surrey Roehampton. He is currently co-directing projects on pupil and teacher identities in music education (Economic and Social Research Council), and on young people's music in and out of school (Qualifications and Curriculum Authority).

Estelle R. Jorgensen

Estelle R. Jorgensen is Professor of Music in the School of Music, Indiana University, Bloomington, USA, where she teaches courses in the foundations of music education. She is the editor of the journal Philosophy of Music Education Review, author of In Search of Music Education and Transforming Music Education, and a frequent contributor to leading journals in music education.

Marie McCarthy

Marie McCarthy is Associate Professor and Chair of Music Education at the University of Maryland, College Park, where she teaches courses on general music, music learning theory, music cultures in the classroom, and research methods in music education. Her research interests include the social, cultural and historical foundations of music education, the transmission of music across cultures, and the spiritual dimensions of arts education. She is author of the book Passing It On: The Transmission of Music in Irish Culture.

https://doi.org/10.1017/S0265051703005321 Published online by Cambridge University Press

Nigel Marshall

Nigel Marshall is Research Associate at the Centre for International Research in Music Education (CIRME) at the University of Surrey Roehampton. He has previously taught in primary schools as a class teacher and as head of music, and was head teacher of two middle schools. He gained his PhD from Durham University in 2001 on developing concepts of musical style.

Adrian North

Adrian North is Senior Lecturer in Psychology at the University of Leicester. His research concerns the social psychology of music, and particularly music and consumer behaviour, the social function of music among adolescents, and musical preference in everyday listening circumstances.

Jonathan Stock

Jonathan Stock is Reader in Music at the University of Sheffield, where he directs studies in ethnomusicology. His books include World Sound Matters: An Anthology of Music from Around the World (London, 1996), Musical Creativity in Twentieth-Century China: Abing, His Music, and Its Changing Meanings (Rochester, NY, 1996), and Huju: Traditional Opera in Modern Shanghai (Oxford, 2003).

https://doi.org/10.1017/S0265051703005321 Published online by Cambridge University Press