NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

Denis G. Arnold is the Jule and Marguerite Surtman Distinguished Scholar in Business Ethics in the Department of Management at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Minnesota and is a past fellow of the U.S. National Endowment of the Humanities. His research focuses on international business ethics, ethical issues in the pharmaceutical industry, and environmental sustainability. Arnold is an editor in chief of Business Ethics Quarterly and president of the Society for Business Ethics. E-mail: DenisArnold@uncc.edu.

John Douglas Bishop is professor in the business admisitration program at Trent University, Peterborough, Ontario, Canada. He obtained a Ph.D. in moral philosophy from the University of Edinburgh, Scotland (1979), and an MBA in finance from McMaster University (1985). He worked for multinational computer corporations for several years. He has published in Business Ethics Quarterly, Journal of Business Ethics, Journal of the History of Ideas, and the Canadian Journal of Philosophy. He is the editor of Ethics and Capitalism (University of Toronto Press, 2000). His current research interests are the rights of for-profit corporations, ethics and economic theory, and corporate capitalism and sustainability. E-mail: jbishop@trentu.ca.

Norman E. Bowie is professor emeritus at the University of Minnesota where he was Elmer L. Andersen Chair in Corporate Responsibility.The focus of his work in business ethics has been on the application of Kant's moral philosophy to business. His book on that topic, Business Ethics: A Kantian Perspective, has been translated into Chinese and Japanese. His co-edited text Ethical Theory and Business will soon be in its ninth edition. He is past president of the Society for Business Ethics and former associate editor of BEQ. He recently published his first trade book, Business Ethics for Dummies, co-authored with Meg Schneider. E-mail nbowie@umn.edu.

Wesley Cragg is senior scholar and professor in the Department of Philosophy and the Schulich School of Business at York University and the director of the Canadian Business Ethics Research Network. He is a graduate of the University of Alberta (Canada) and Oxford University, where he received his doctorate degree. His research interests include ethics codes, human rights, bribery and corruption, CSR, the nature of the firm, and corporate governance. E-mail: wcragg@schulich.yorku.ca.

Aaron A. Dhir is an associate professor at Osgoode Hall Law School of York University. He has held visiting appointments at Harvard University's Mossavar-Rahmani Center for Business and Government and at the University of Oxford's Centre for Socio-Legal Studies. He currently holds the appointment of Scholar in Residence with the Law Commission of Ontario. E-mail: adhir@osgoode.yorku.ca.

Stephen Hicks, Ph.D. (Indiana University, 1992), is professor of philosophy and executive director of the Center for Ethics and Entrepreneurship (www

https://doi.org/10.5840/beq201222112 Published online by Cambridge University Press

.EthicsandEntrepreneurship.org) at Rockford College in Rockford, Illinois. His recent publications include Nietzsche and the Nazis (Ockham's Razor, 2010), and Explaining Postmodernism: Skepticism and Socialism from Rousseau to Foucault (expanded edition, Scholargy/ORM, 2011). His work has been published in the Journal of Private Enterprise, Teaching Philosophy, the Journal of Accounting, Ethics & Public Policy, and The Concise Encyclopedia of Economics. Website: http://www.StephenHicks.org; e-mail: SHicks@rockford.edu.

PETER MUCHLINSKI is professor in international commercial law at the School of Oriental and African Studies (SOAS), University of London. Prior to joining SOAS he was professor of law and international business at Kent Law School, University of Kent (2001–2005). He has taught at the London School of Economics (1983–1998), and was the Drapers' Professor of Law in the Law Department of Queen Mary and Westfield College, University of London, from 1998 to 2001. He specialises in international and European business law, international investment law, law and development, and commercial regulation, in which fields he has authored numerous papers and articles. His more recent published work concentrates on the social dimension of the regulation of international business, with emphasis on human rights and multinational enterprises and upon the rebalancing of rights and obligations of host and home countries, and investors, in international investment agreements. He also has an interest in the relationship between international and comparative legal methodology and the process of globalization, focusing, in particular, on international and comparative corporate law. He is the author of Multinational Enterprises and the Law (2nd ed., Oxford University Press, 2007) and (with Julia Black and Paul Walker) editor of Commercial Regulation and Judicial Review (Hart Publishing, 1998). He is co-editor (with Dr Federico Ortino and Professor Christoph Schreuer) of the Oxford Handbook of International Investment Law (Oxford University Press, 2008). In 1990 he qualified as a barrister in the field of commercial and European law and is a door tenant at Brick Court Chambers, London. He acts as a principal adviser to the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD) on investment issues. During the period of June–October 2003 he was on leave of absence from Kent Law School and worked at UNCTAD in Geneva as a Senior Legal Expert in the Division on Investment Technology and Enterprise Development. He was, until its dissolution in August 2008, Co-Rapporteur to the International Law Association Committee on the International Law on Foreign Investment. E-mail: pm29@soas.ac.uk.

PATRICIA H. WERHANE is the Wicklander Chair of Business Ethics, Managing Director of the Institute for Business and Professional Ethics at DePaul University, and professor emeritus at the University of Virginia. Werhane has published numerous articles and is the author or editor of over twenty books. She is the founder and former editor-in-chief of Business Ethics Quarterly, the journal of the Society for Business Ethics, and she is an academic advisor to the Business Roundtable Institute for Corporate Ethics. E-mail: PWerhane@depaul.edu.

https://doi.org/10.5840/beq201222112 Published online by Cambridge University Press

FLORIAN WETTSTEIN is director of the Institute for Business Ethics at University of St. Gallen in Switzerland. Previously, he was assistant professor in the Department of Ethics and Business Law at Opus College of Business, University of St. Thomas (Minneapolis/St. Paul) and a research fellow at MIT's Program on Human Rights and Justice. His research focuses on business and human rights, Corporate Social Responsibility, the political role and responsibility of multinational corporations, and business/economic ethics in general. He is the author of Multinational Corporations and Global Justice: Human Rights Obligations of a Quasi-Governmental Institution (Stanford University Press, 2009). E-mail: florian.wettstein@unisg.ch.

STEPAN WOOD is an associate professor at Osgoode Hall Law School, York University, Toronto, and acting director of IRIS—the Institute for Research and Innovation at Sustainability, www.irisyorku.ca. His research focuses on corporate social responsibility, sustainability, globalization, transnational private governance, climate change, and environmental law. He is co-author of A Perilous Imbalance: The Globalization of Canadian Law and Governance (2010), co-editor of Climate Law and Developing Countries (2009), and co-editor of Environmental Law for Sustainability (2006). He is vice-chair of the Canadian Advisory Committee on ISO 14001, a frequent Canadian delegate to meetings of ISO Technical Committee 207 (Environmental Management), and was a member of the Canadian Advisory Committee on ISO 26000. He received his S.J.D. from Harvard Law School. E-mail: swood@osgoode.yorku.ca.

https://doi.org/10.5840/beq201222112 Published online by Cambridge University Press