Contributors

RICHARD R. JOHN is an Associate Professor of History at the University of Illinois at Chicago. His publications include Spreading the News: The American Postal System from Franklin to Morse (Cambridge: Harvard University Press, 1995; paperback, 1998). He has published widely on topics in American policy history and is currently completing a history of American telecommunications from the 1840s to the 1910s.

JULIAN E. ZELIZER is Associate Professor of Public Policy, Public Administration, and Political Science at the State University of New York at Albany. He is the author of Taxing America (1998), which was awarded the 1998 D. B. Hardeman Prize and the 2000 Ellis Hawley Prize. He is the co-editor of The Democratic Experiment (2003). Zelizer's most recent works are On Capitol Hill: The Struggle to Reform Congress and Its Consequences (Cambridge University Press, forthcoming) and his edited volume, The Reader's Companion to the American Congress (Houghton Mifflin, forthcoming). Finally, Zelizer is the co-editor of the Politics and Society in Twentieth-Century America book series for Princeton University Press.

JOANNE B. FREEMAN is Professor of History at Yale University, specializing in early national politics and political culture. She is the author of Alexander Hamilton: Writings (2001) and Affairs of Honor: National Politics in the New Republic (2001), which was awarded the 2002 SHEAR Best Book Prize. She is currently working on a book about the culture of Congress in antebellum America.

RICK MAYES is an Assistant Professor of Public Policy in the Political Science Department at the University of Richmond. He is also an affiliated faculty member of the Nicholas C. Petris Center on Healthcare Markets and Consumer Welfare at the U.C. Berkeley School of Public Health. He is the author of Universal Coverage: The Elusive Quest for National Health Insurance (University of Michigan Press, forthcoming).

JUDITH SEALANDER teaches at Bowling Green State University, Bowling Green, Ohio. Her most recent book is: The Failed Century of the Child: Governing America's Young in the Twentieth Century (Cambridge University Press, 2003.)

RICHARD A. GREENWALD is an Assistant Professor of History at the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy in Kings Point, New York. He is co-editor of Sweatshop USA (forthcoming from Routledge) and author of Law and Order in Industry (forthcoming from Temple University Press).

https://doi.org/10.1353/jph.2004.0006 Published online by Cambridge University Press