Contributors

ROBERT F. ASH holds the Chiang Ching-kuo Chair of Taiwan Studies at the School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London. He is also co-ordinator of the EU-China Academic Network (ECAN).

KATHY BAKER is Senior Lecturer in the Department of Geography in SOAS, University of London, and works on West Africa, with special interest in smallholder agriculture, agricultural development and environmental issues. She has recently published Indigenous Land Management in West Africa: An Environmental Balancing Act.

GREGOR BENTON is professorial fellow in the School of History and Archaeology at Cardiff University. His latest book is New Fourth Army: Communist Resistance along the Yangtze and the Huai, 1938–1941 (1999).

THOMAS P. BERNSTEIN teaches Chinese politics at Columbia University.

CHRIS BRAMALL lectures on the post-1949 Chinese economy at the School of East Asian Studies, Sheffield University. His most recent publication is Sources of Chinese Economic Growth, 1978–1996 (2000).

PARKS M. COBLE is a professor of East Asian History at the University of Nebraska, USA. He is the author of Facing Japan: Chinese Politics and Japanese Imperialism 1931–1937 (1991) and Chinese Capitalists in Japan's New Order: The Occupied Lower Yangzi, 1937–1945 (forthcoming).

CLAIRE CONCEISON is visiting assistant professor in the Residential College at University of Michigan. She recently directed a production of Gao Xingjian's The Bus Stop (Chezan) at University of Michigan, and current publications include articles in the Spring 2001 issues of Theatre Journal and Studies in Theatre and Performance.

KENNETH J. DEWOSKIN is Partner in Charge of Business Development for PricewaterhouseCoopers in China. He is a former professor of International Business and Asian Languages and Cultures at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, and former Chair of his Department.

ANDREI DIKARIOV is a senior researcher in the China Department, Institute of Oriental Studies, Russian Academy of Sciences.

FRANK DIKÖTTER is Director of the Contemporary China Institute at SOAS. He has recently finished a monograph on prisons in modern China and is leading a research team in an ESRC-funded project entitled Narcotic Culture: A Social History of Opiates in Modern China.

LOWELL DITTMER is Professor of Political Science at the University of California, Berkeley. He is the author of Liu Shaoqi and the Chinese Cultural Revolution (1997), China under Reform (1994) and many other analyses of PRC leadership behaviour. His most recent book (with Haruhiro Fukui and Peter N.S. Lee) is Informal Politics in East Asia (2000).

WEIZHEN DONG is a doctoral candidate researching China's health care policy in the Department of Sociology, University of Toronto. She has worked as a researcher at the Asian Institute of Technology and the Shanghai Academy of Social Sciences. She is the author of Women's Inner World (1992) and Urban Women's Employment and Unemployment in an Age of Transition: A Case Study of Shanghai (1996).

NOËL DUTRAIT is Professor of Chinese at Université de Provence, Aix-en-Provence. He is the translator of the major plays and novels of Gao Xingjian.

MARK ELVIN works on the economic and environmental history of China at the Australian National University. His recent books include Another History (1996), Changing Stories in the Chinese World (1997), Sediments of Time

https://doi.org/10.1017/S0009443901000468 Published online by Cambridge University Press

(ed. with Liu Ts'ui-jung, 1998) and Retreat of the Elephants: China's History in Environmental Perspective (in press).

PETER FERDINAND is Director of the Centre for Studies in Democratisation, Warwick University, and former Head of the Asia-Pacific Programme, Royal Institute of International Affairs, London.

STEPHAN FEUCHTWANG is a professorial research fellow in Anthropology at the London School of Economics. He has just published a new edition of his Popular Religion in China, another on Chinese Geomancy and, with Wang Mingming a new work, Grassroots Charisma: Four Local Leaders in China.

JOSEPH FEWSMITH is Professor of International Relations and Director of the East Asian Interdisciplinary Studies Programme at Boston University, an associate-in-research at the John King Fairbank Centre for East Asian Research at Harvard University. His most recent books are China since Tiananmen (2001) and Elite Politics in Contemporary China (2001).

STEVEN M. GOLDSTEIN teaches political science at Smith College, Northampton, Massachusetts.

ERIC HARWITT is an associate professor of Asian Studies in the University of Hawaii at Manoa. He is the author of China's Automobile Industry and articles on industrial and economic development in Asia.

J. BRUCE JACOBS is professor of Asian Languages and Studies and Director of the Centre of East Asian Studies at Monash University in Melbourne.

THOMAS KAMPEN, University of Heidelberg, is the author of Mao Zedong, Zhou Enlai and the Evolution of the Communist Leadership (1999)

JOHN D. LANGLOIS, JR. teaches Banking and Finance in China and Japan at Princeton University.

GREGORY B. LEE is Professor of Chinese at l'Université Jean Moulin, Lyon III. His most recent publication is Chinas Unlimited: Making the Imaginaries of China and Chineseness (2001).

EDWARD A. MCCORD is Associate Professor of History and International Affairs at the Elliott School of International Affairs at the George Washington University. He is the author of The Power of the Gun: The Emergence of Modern Chinese Warlordism (1993) and is currently working on a study of militia organization in Hunan Province in the Nanjing era.

SUSAN MANN is Professor of History at the University of California, Davis, and the author of Precious Records: Women in China's Long Eighteenth Century.

JONATHAN MIRSKY, lecturer, writer and broadcaster, was East Asia editor for The Times of London until 1998. In 1990 he was named British newspapers' International Journalist of the Year for his coverage of the Tiananmen uprising. In 1999 he was a Shorenstein Fellow at Harvard University.

RAMON H. MYERS is senior fellow and curator-scholar of the East Asian Collection at the Hoover Institution on War, Revolution and Peace at Stanford University.

ANDREW J. NATHAN is the Class of 1919 Professor of Political Science at Columbia University. He was co-editor with Perry Link of The Tiananmen Papers (New York: Public Affairs, 2001).

TIANSHU PAN is an associate of the Weatherhead Centre for International Affairs at Harvard University. His research is on community building in Shanghai neighbourhoods.

PITMAN B. POTTER is Director of the Institute of Asian Research at the University of British Columbia, and Professor of Law at UBC Law Faculty.

LUCIAN PYE is Ford Professor of Political Science Emeritus at MIT, and the

https://doi.org/10.1017/S0009443901000468 Published online by Cambridge University Press

author or editor of 27 books, including Asian Power and Politics, and The Spirit of Chinese Politics. He is Past President of the American Political Science Association and Vice-Chairman of the National Committee on U.S.-China Relations.

STANLEY ROSEN is a professor of Political Science at the University of Southern California. He is the editor of Chinese Education and Society: A Journal of Translations.

JANET W. SALAFF is a professor in the Department of Sociology & Centre for Urban and Community Studies, University of Toronto.

STUART R. SCHRAM is emeritus professor of Chinese politics in the University of London. He is currently a research associate at Harvard University's Fairbank Center for East Asian Research, engaged in editing a translation of Mao Zedong's pre-1949 writings

IAN SECKINGTON is Senior Research Officer with the North-East Asia and Pacific Research Group, Research Analysts, at the Foreign and Commonwealth Office.

DOROTHY SOLINGER is professor of political science at the University of California, Irvine. Her most recent works are Contesting Citizenship in Urban China (1999) and a co-edited volume, States and Sovereignty in the Global Economy (1999).

RICHARD P. SUTTMEIER is professor of political science, University of Oregon at Eugene. He is currently collaborating with Dr Cong Cao on a study of the idea of "scientific community" in China.

EDMUND R. THOMPSON is an associate professor at the College of Management, Ritsumeikan Asia Pacific University, Japan, having previously been a faculty member at the National University of Singapore.

ANDREW G. WALDER is Professor of Sociology and Senior Fellow in the Institute of International Studies, Stanford University.

ALLEN S. WHITING is Regents Professor at the University of Arizona. He is author of China Eyes Japan and other books on foreign policy.

VERNER WORM is Associate Professor, Asia Research Centre, Copenhagen Business School.

PETER ZARROW is Senior Lecturer in Chinese History at the University of New South Wales in Sydney. His research focuses upon the causes and effects of the collapse of the Chinese emperorship in the late 19th and early 20th centuries. He is also completing a work entitled Twentieth Century China: An Interpretative History.

https://doi.org/10.1017/S0009443901000468 Published online by Cambridge University Press