NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

Gabriel Abend is an assistant professor of sociology at New York University. He received his Ph.D. in 2008 from Northwestern University, and his undergraduate degree in 2000 from the Universidad de la República (Montevideo, Uruguay). His current projects include a book on the history of business ethics, The Moral Background (Princeton University Press, forthcoming), and a book on the neuroscience of morality and religion. Recent articles include "What the Science of Morality Doesn't Say about Morality" (in Philosophy of the Social Sciences), and "Thick Concepts and the Moral Brain" (in European Journal of Sociology). E-mail: abend@nyu.edu.

Frederik Claeyé is senior lecturer at Lille Catholic University in France and research associate at Nelson Mandela Metropolitan University in South Africa. Trying to build bottom-up critical, cross-cultural management theory from a distinct African perspective, his research focuses on management of nonprofit organizations in sub-Saharan Africa. He has presented his work at various international conferences and in international peer-reviewed journals. He is currently working on a volume entitled Managing Nongovernmental Organizations: Culture, Power, and Resistance. E-mail: frederik.claeye@icl-lille.fr.

Thomas Donaldson is the Mark. O. Winkelman Professor at the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania. He also holds a secondary appointment in the Department of Philosophy, University of Pennsylvania. He received his Ph.D. in philosophy from the University of Kansas. He studies corporate governance and business ethics. E-mail: donaldst@wharton.upenn.edu.

Will Felps is a senior lecturer at the Australian School of Business, University of New South Wales. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Washington, Seattle. His research interests include moral psychology, stakeholder theory, the relationship between experience and job performance, and the management of science. These diverse interests are linked together by a desire to create more effective and humane organizations. E-mail: w.felps@unsw.edu.au.

Timothy L. Fort holds the Lindner-Gambal Chair in Business Ethics at the George Washington University School of Business. He currently also serves as the executive director of the Institute for Corporate Responsibility and academic director for the STAR EMBA Program. His primary research identity pertains to issues of business ethics and peace. He has authored three books (Cambridge University Press 2003 and then again in 2007 and Yale University Press in 2008). His Business, Integrity and Peace won the Best Book Award from the Academy of Management's Social Issues in Business Section. He currently is working on a fourth book on the topic with Stanford University Press, Diplomat in the Corner Office. Fort holds a Ph.D. (Theology/Business) from Northwestern University, where he also received his J.D. His M.A. and B.A. are from the University of Notre Dame. E-mail: timfort@gwu.edu.

©2013 Business Ethics Quarterly 23:2 (April 2013); ISSN 1052-150X pp. 345–347
DOI: 10.5840/beq201323222

https://doi.org/10.5840/beq201323222 Published online by Cambridge University Press

THOMAS M. JONES is the Boeing Professor at the Foster School of Business, University of Washington. His research interests include stakeholder theory, corporate objective functions, the relationship between legal institutions and economic welfare, and corporate governance. He has published in the Academy of Management Review, the Academy of Management Journal, Organization Science, and Business Ethics Quarterly. He was the Connelly Visiting Scholar at Georgetown University (1999) and the Rust Visiting Professor at the Darden School (2010). He has served on the editorial board of the Academy of Management Review for almost twenty years. He has won the Foster School's Faculty Research Award (2000), the IABS Best Paper Award (2007), and the SIM Sumner Marcus Award (2005). E-mail: rebozo@u.washington.edu.

DARYL KOEHN is a professor in the Ethics and Business Law Department at the University of St. Thomas in Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minnesota. She has published widely in the fields of ethics and corporate governance. Her monographs include "The Ground of Professional Ethics," "The Nature of Evil," "Rethinking Feminist Ethics," "Local Insights, Global Ethics," and "Living with the Dragon: Thinking and Acting Ethically in a World of Unintended Consequences." In addition, she has published scores of articles in the Harvard Business Review, Business Ethics Quarterly, Journal of Business Ethics, and numerous other journals. She consults regularly with major corporations and has appeared often on National Public Radio, PBS TV stations, and in other venues. E-mail: koeh4561@stthomas.edu.

MITCHELL J. NEUBERT is an associate professor of management and entrepreneurship at Baylor University and the Chavanne Chair of Christian Ethics in Business. Mitch's teaching and research focus on equipping leaders to lead individuals, teams, and organizations in an ethical and virtuous manner that results in positive change to the organization, its members, and society. In addition to BEQ, his research has been published in numerous academic journals including Human Relations, Journal of Applied Psychology, Journal of Business Ethics, Journal of Business Venturing, Leadership Quarterly, and Personnel Psychology. He also is the author of a forthcoming organizational behavior textbook emphasizing ethics and virtue. E-mail: Mitchell_Neubert@baylor.edu.

JAMES A. ROBERTS is the Ben H. Williams Professor of Marketing at Baylor University (Ph.D., University of Nebraska-Lincoln). His current research interests include materialism, credit card misuse, self-control, and compulsive buying. He has published in numerous journals including the Journal of the Academy of Marketing Science, Journal of Consumer Psychology, Journal of Consumer Affairs, Journal of Business Research, Journal of Public Policy and Marketing, Journal of Marketing Theory and Practice, Journal of International Consumer Marketing, Journal of Social Behavior and Personality, Journal of Personal Selling and Sales Management, Industrial Marketing Management, Journal of Managerial Issues, Journal of Nonprofit and Public Sector Marketing, Marketing Education Review, and Journal of Marketing Management. E-mail: Jim_Roberts@baylor.edu.

https://doi.org/10.5840/beq201323222 Published online by Cambridge University Press

Philipp Schreck is an assistant professor at the Institute of Production Management & Managerial Accounting at the University of Munich, Germany. He studied business in Munich and Copenhagen. He holds a doctoral degree in management studies from the University of Munich. His research covers empirical as well as conceptual studies on the business case of CSR, sustainability reporting, as well as managerial accounting. E-mail: schreck@bwl.lmu.de.

Dominik van Aaken is an assistant professor at the Institute of Production Management & Managerial Accounting at the University of Munich, Germany. He studied management in Ingolstadt, Germany, and in Budapest. He holds a doctoral degree in management studies from the University of Munich. In his research, he applies economic approaches and practice approaches to questions of organizations, management, and corporate social responsibility. E-mail: aaken@bwl.lmu.de.

Paul R. Waibel is professor of history at Belhaven University in Jackson, Mississippi. He has been teaching history since 1974. He is the author of four books, including Martin Luther: A Brief Introduction to His Life and Works (2005). Professor Waibel holds degrees in history from Lynchburg College, Virginia Tech, and West Virginia University. He was a Fulbright-Hayes Scholar at the University of Bonn, Germany. E-mail: pwaibel@belhaven.edu.

Cindy Wu is an associate professor of management and entrepreneurship at Baylor University. Cindy's current research focuses on work-life balance and leadership influences particularly in the global context. Her research has been published in a number of academic journals, including Journal of International Business Studies, Journal of Business Venturing, Leadership Quarterly, Human Resource Management, and International Journal of Human Resource Management. E-mail: Cindy_Wu@baylor.edu.

Lili Yan is a doctoral student at the George Washington University School of Business. Her research interest focuses on business ethics, corruption, and strategic management. Yan received her J.D. from Indiana University Maurer School of Law. E-mail: liliyan@gwmail.gwu.edu.

https://doi.org/10.5840/beq201323222 Published online by Cambridge University Press