Contributors to this Issue

MARGARET LAVINIA ANDERSON is Professor of History at the University of California, Berkeley (Berkeley, CA 94720; e-mail: mlavinia@socrates.Berkeley.edu). She is the author of two books, Windthorst: A Political Biography (Oxford, 1981) and Practicing Democracy: Elections and Political Culture in Imperial Germany (Princeton, 2000). Her most recent article is "Afterword: Living Apart and Together in Germany," in Helmut Walser Smith, ed., Protestants, Catholics, and Jews in Germany, 1800–1914 (Berg Publishers, 2001).

VOLKER BERGHAHN is the Seth Low Professor of History at Columbia University (New York, NY 10027; e-mail: vrb7@columbia.edu). His America and the Intellectual Cold Wars in Europe appeared earlier this year with Princeton University Press.

MAUREEN HEALY is Assistant Professor of History at Oregon State University (Milam Hall 306, Corvallis, OR 97331; e-mail: mhealy@orst.edu). She is working on a book manuscript entitled "Vienna Falling: State, Family, and Everyday Life, 1914–1923." She has published articles on home front entertainment during World War I in the Austrian History Yearbook and on citizen denunciation in SOWI, "Sozialwissenschaftliche Informationen." Her dissertation (University of Chicago, 2000) was awarded the Fraenkel Prize from the Wiener Library in London.

HEIKKI LEMPA received his doctorate from the University of Chicago and is now Assistant Professor of History at Moravian College (1200 Main Street, Bethlehem, PA 18018; e-mail: hlempa@moravian.edu). He has published on educational practices in eighteenth-century Germany and is currently finishing a book entitled "Educating the Middle-Class Body: Dietetics, Dancing, and Walking in Nineteenth-Century Germany."

https://doi.org/10.1163/156916102320812436 Published online by Cambridge University Press