Contributors

STANLEY CARLSON-THIES is Director of Social Policy Studies at the Center for Public Justice, a Christian think tank. He writes, speaks, and consults widely on welfare reform and government collaboration with faith-based social services. He holds a doctorate in comparative politics from the University of Toronto.

JOHN A. COLEMAN, S.J., is the Charles Casassa Professor of Social Values, Loyola Marymount University, Los Angeles. He holds advanced degrees in philosophy, theology, and sociology. His Ph.D in sociology is from the University of California, Berkeley. Among his books are: The Evolution of Dutch Catholicism (Berkeley: University of California Press, 1978); An American Strategic Theology (New York: Paulist Press, 1982); and One Hundred Years' of Catholic Social Teaching (Maryknoll, New York: Orbis Press, 1991). Coleman is currently working on a book on Catholic Charities USA.

CHARLES L. GLENN is professor and chairman of Administration, Training and Policy Studies at Boston University. From 1970 to 1991 he was director of urban education and equity efforts for the Massachusetts Department of Education. Glenn is author of The Myth of the Common School (1988), Choice of Schools in Six Nations (1989), Educational Freedom in Eastern Europe (1994, 1995), Educating Immigrant Children: Schools and Language Minorities in Twelve Nations (1996), and The Ambiguous Embrace: Government and Faith-based Schools and Social Agencies (2000). He is active in educational policy debates in the United States and Europe. Glenn's B.A. and Ed.D. degrees are from Harvard and his Ph.D. is from Boston University.

D. G. HART directs the library and is associate professor of church history at Westminster Theological Seminary in Philadelphia. He also directed the Institute for the Study of American Evangelicals at Wheaton College in Illinois. His most recent books are The University Gets Religion: Religious Studies in American Higher Education (1999) and Dictionary of the Presbyterian and Reformed Tradition in America (1999).

HUGH HECLO is Robinson Professor of Public Affairs at George Mason University in Fairfax, Virginia. He is a former professor of Government at Harvard University and senior fellow at the Brookings Institution. His published work includes books on national political institutions and the history of modern social policy.

https://doi.org/10.1017/S0898030600002517 Published online by Cambridge University Press

WILFRED M. McCLAY is SunTrust Bank chair of Excellence in Humanities at the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga, where he is also Professor of History. He is the author of The Masterless: Self and Society in Modern America, which won the 1995 Merle Curti Award of the Organization of American Historians.

A. JAMES REICHLEY is senior fellow in the Graduate Public Policy Institute at Georgetown University. His books include Conservatives in an Age of Change (1981), Religion in American Public Life (1985), and The Life of the Parties (second edition, 2000).

https://doi.org/10.1017/S0898030600002517 Published online by Cambridge University Press