Bread of Heaven

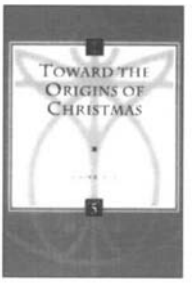

Customs and Practices Surrounding Holy Communion.
Essays in the History of Liturgy and Culture

LITURGIA CONDENDA, 3
The way in which Christians of all times have received Communion is the subject matter of this volume. Starting as a small new religion, Christianity grew through the ages to become the world's largest religious body. This development made differences in experience and outward appearance of Communion practices inevitable. Unfortunately the differences have another side: sometimes they gave cause for misconception and mutual alienation.

Toward the Origins of Christmas

LITURGIA CONDENDA, 5
Toward the origins of Christmas addresses both the contemporary Western celabration of Christmas, and its deep historical roots in the church of the fourth century. The book presents a thorough investigation of the patristic texts and evidence cited by liturgical scholars in the late 19th en 20th centuries to support two main theories: the Calculation theory and the History of Religions theory. This historical research is set in the framework of the contemporary experience of Christmas; the dynamics of time and the liturgical year; the inculturation of the liturgy; and underlying elements of dualism and patriarchal power paradigms which linger beneath the often commercial and sentimental character of Christmas today.

A Theology of Women's Religious Experiences

Feminist theologians often claimed that women's religious experiences differ from those of men. But hardly any investigations of women's religious experiences exist. What are women's experiences? And how do they compare with men's? This book is an investigation based upon qualitatve interviews and on archive studies at the Alister Hardy Research Centre in Oxford. This study of white middle- and upperclass women from the First World indicates that women's religious experiences tend towards mysicism, and that several types of mysticism exist.

Arab and Christian?

This book describes the positions and backgrounds of the various Christian churches in the Middle East: the Orthodox church or Byzantine (Rum), the Syrian Orthodox or the Monophysite church, the Assyrian or the Nestorian church, the Maronite church of Lebanon and the Coptic church of Egypt and the Armenian church. The role of the Protestant mission, especially those of Britain and the United States, is discussed.
At the close of the book, the question will be asked whether the churches still have a future in the Middle East. What will be the consequences of the phenomenon of islamic fundamentalism, for the relationship between Jews, Moslems and Christians?

God's Just Vengeance
Crime, Violence and the Rhetoric of Salvation
Timothy Gorringe
This book examines the relationship between the theologies of atonement and penal strategies. Gorringe argues that 'satisfaction theory' led to retributive policies. He reviews theory and practice in the twentieth century, and makes concrete proposals for both theology and criminal and societal violence.

John Locke and the Ethics of Belief
Nicholas Wolterstorff
Wolterstorff discusses the ethics of belief which Locke developed at the end of his Essay Concerning Human Understanding – how we ought to govern our opinions, especially on religion and morality. He emphasises Locke's originality and argues for the relevance of Locke's thought for our contemporary situation.

Responsibility and Christian Ethics
William Schweiker
This book provides a discussion of the main theories of responsibility in contemporary thought and in the history of Christian ethics. It examines the relationship between power, value and responsibility and develops a new theory of responsibility in theological ethics for the coming century.
