Contributors

SUZANNE METTLER is an assistant professor of Political Science in the Maxwell School at Syracuse University. Her book, Dividing Citizens: Gender and Federalism in New Deal Public Policy, was recently published by Cornell University Press. She is currently engaged in research on the implications of the G.I. Bill of Rights for citizenship in the post-World War II era.

GAIL RADFORD teaches twentieth century U.S. History at the State University of New York at Buffalo. She is the author of Modern Housing for America: Policy Struggles in the New Deal Era (University of Chicago Press, 1996). Her article in this issue is part of a larger study of semi-autonomous structures related to the public sector, provisionally entitled The Invention of Invisible Governments: State Action Through Public Corporations and Authorities.

JOEL SILBEY is President White Professor of History at Cornell University. A student of nineteenth century American political history, he has authored and edited many books and articles, including The American Political Nation, 1838–1993 (Stanford University Press, 1991) and the forthcoming The American Party Battle, 1828–1876 (Harvard University Press, 1999).

https://doi.org/10.1017/S0898030600003031 Published online by Cambridge University Press