THE FAMILY IN EU LAW

The volume provides a first-ever comprehensive account of the concept and the role of the family in EU law. It explores the family in EU law from four different angles. The first part of the book considers the philosophical and theoretical foundations of the family in the law in general, including the definition of the family under EU law. The second part provides an overview of the rights conferred upon the family by Union law and assesses whether these cater for the needs of all families. The third part of the book examines the EU family from the perspective of family diversity in comparison with the European Convention on Human Rights. Finally, the fourth part offers insights into how EU law deals with some situations of crisis that are faced by families in the EU. This title is also available as Open Access on Cambridge Core.

Marja-Liisa Öberg is Associate Professor of EU Law at Lund University. She specialises in EU constitutional and external relations law, the internal and external boundaries of EU integration, and its interdisciplinary dimensions. She is the author of The Boundaries of the EU Internal Market: Participation without Membership (Cambridge University Press 2020).
