A NATURAL HISTORY OF NEGATION

LAURENCE R. HORN

"Philosophers and logicians will find in Horn's book an informed survey of ancient and contemporary logical doctrines (from Aristotle to Quine, to Sommers and Montague) and a perceptive treatment of presupposition, excluded middle, logical form, speech acts, and Gricean implicature. This is a major work, original, encyclopedic, and provocative."—Jay Atlas, Pomona College, Claremont Graduate School

MASKED INVERSION IN FRENCH

PAUL M. POSTAL

Marshalling extensive evidence, Postal argues that an apparent paradigm anomaly in French is actually a symptom of a deeper regularity. Rather than being an ordinary transitive complement, the subordinate clause in these cases is actually an Inversion structure in which the logical subject demotes to a direct object. This Inversion is "masked" since this demotion induces no word order or other direct morphological consequences.

A LOGIC OF ATTRIBUTE-VALUE STRUCTURES AND THE THEORY OF GRAMMAR

MARK JOHNSON

Johnson presents a mathematically precise logic and a model theory for attribute-value structures as well as a scheme for formalizing certain kinds of grammars—especially ones that resemble lexical-functional grammars in their overall architecture—inside this logic.

MORE THAN COOL REASON

A Field Guide to Poetic Metaphor

GEORGE LAKOFF and MARK TURNER

In accessible language and with a host of examples, Lakoff and Turner explain how poems rely upon and extend the basic metaphors by which we make sense of our world. The result is an indispensable text for the student of poetry, as well as an original contribution to research on metaphor.

"The authors restore metaphor to our lives by showing us that it's never gone away. We've merely been taught to talk as if it had: as though weather maps were more 'real' than the breath of autumn; as though, for that matter, Reason was really 'cool.' What we're saying whenever we say is a theme this book illumines for anyone attentive."—Hugh Kenner, Johns Hopkins University

BOOKS ON LANGUAGE

TWO BY ROLAND BARTHES

Back in Print in Paperback

The Rustle of Language

Translated by Richard Howard

"In The Rustle of Language, the typically Barthesian texture of the writing makes itself felt. That texture—delightful to many of us—is composed of the mutual jostling of many (often mutually incompatible) registers of discourse. Linguistics, literature, philosophy, . . . history, semantics, Marxism—these are only the commonest of the many categories that organize Barthes' thinking."

—New York Review of Books

$10.95 paper

Sade/Fourier/Loyola

Translated by Richard Miller

"[Sade/Fourier/Loyola] may be the best introduction to Barthes' work now in English."

—John Updike, The New Yorker

"[Barthes] has put the saint together with the sinner, and both with the anarchist Fourier, the better to display the provocative neutrality of the structuralist, who can take the same tools, to the same good effect, to all three of them."—New Statesman

$9.95 paper

The Dictionary of Lahu

JAMES A. MATISOFF

The Lahu are a hill-dwelling Tibeto-Burman people whose language reflects the influence of Tai and Chinese, yet retains a unique beauty and expressive power of its own. This is one of the most exhaustive and sophisticated dictionaries yet produced for a Southeast Asian language.

Vol. 111, University of California Publications in Linguistics $100.00 paper

Mandarin Chinese

A Functional Reference Grammar

CHARLES N. LI and SANDRA A. THOMPSON

New in paper—"The volume . . . will remain first for many years to come as a standard and comprehensive description of modern Chinese grammar. It is highly recommended to English-speaking students, teachers, and linguists as an indispensable reference work."—Journal of Asian Studies

$16.95 paper

Nez Perce Oral Narratives

HARUO AOKI and DEWARD E. WALKER, JR.

This is a collection of folktales of the Nez Perce tribe, who live in Idaho, Washington, and Oregon. The stories were taperecorded from two master storytellers in 1966 and 1967, and are presented in both interlinear and free translation.

Vol. 104, University of California Publications in Linguistics $64.00 paper

A Grammar of Huallaga (Huánuco) Quechua

DAVID JOHN WEBER

This is a comprehensive, nonformal description of a Quechua language of central Peru, incorporating both structural and functional insights. Topics include: the demographic situation, an introduction to the syntax, word and suffix classes, morphology, case relations, and much more.

Barnhart Redefines the Etymological Dictionary

The Barnhart Dictionary of Etymology traces the evolution of 30,000 words basic to contemporary American English, presenting the development of our language in terms every reader can understand. Avoiding abbreviations and technical terminology, BDE entries interweave thousands of linguistic and historic facts to explain when and where a word first appeared, how it changed, and what were the sources of its formation or coinage.

A Practical Tool for Researchers at All Levels

The BDE has a place in all types of libraries:

- High School Libraries
  Ideal for beginning language arts or vocabulary programs, the entries of the BDE clearly explain the development of meaning, spelling, pronunciation, and function in English.
- College and University Libraries
  For any student of the English language, literature, or American culture, the BDE consolidates information from the standard resources with new material in a single, easy-to-use volume.
- Public Libraries
  The casual reader will find the BDE a companion volume to the reading of the classics, history, current affairs, or popular literature.

Complete Historical Perspective in a Single Volume

From Old and Middle English to new American coinages, the BDE gives the broadest historical coverage of English etymology currently available, with specific dates pinpointing linguistic changes.

Add The Barnhart Dictionary of Etymology to your reference collection today—and introduce your patrons, students, and staff to the story of our language in action.

NEW TITLES

Historical and Comparative Linguistics

RAIMO ANTTILA (UCLA)

The newly revised edition of a standard work for comparative linguistics, this would make an excellent text for a course in historical linguistics and the comparative method. The bibliography and index are both updated with recently published material in the field.
New or expanded sections include the semiotic basis both of change and of the comparative method, what constitutes explanation in historical and other disciplines, and the inclusion of comparative syntax.

Written Language Revisited

JOSEF VACHEK
Selected, edited and introduced by Philip A. Luelsdorff (University of Regensburg)

Josef Vachek, one of the last living exponents of the Prague School of linguistics, has dedicated fifty years of his life to the study of written language in all its aspects. This volume, a collection of his own articles from 1972 through 1987, is a tribute to him on the occasion of his eightieth birthday. In his thoughtful introduction, Luelsdorff identifies three leitmotifs in Vachek's work: -- establishing written language as a legitimate domain of linguistic inquiry. --insistence on the functional differentiation of the various forms of written language --continual interest in developments in the written form of language over time.

Practicing Linguistic Historiography

KONRAD KOERNER (University of Ottawa)

Twenty four essays, many revised and expanded, previously published in various journals in the period 1978 to the present, are now brought together. The essays are divided into three main areas of interest: I. Methods and Models in Linguistic Historiography II.Tradition and Transmission of Linguistic Notions III. Schools and Scholars in the History of Linguistics.

Etymology and Grammatical Discourse in Late Antiquity and the Early Middle Ages

MARK AMSLER (University of Delaware)

This study focuses on the uses of the grammatical concept of etymologia in primarily Latin writings from the early Middle Ages. Etymologia is a fundamental procedure and discursive strategy in the philosophy and analysis of language in early medieval Latin grammar, as well as in Biblical exegesis, encyclopedic writing, theology, and philosophy. Read through the frame of poststructuralist analysis of discourse and the philosophy of science, the procedures of the ars grammatica are interpreted as overlapping genres (commentary, glossary, encyclopedia, exegesis) which use different verbal or extraverbal criteria to explain the origins and significations of words and which establish different epistemological frames within which an etymological account of language is situated. The study also includes many translations of heretofore untranslated passages from Latin grammatical and exegetical writings.

INFORMATION FOR CONTRIBUTORS

LANGUAGE, the journal of the Linguistic Society of America, carries technical articles dealing with problems of linguistic science, reviews of recently published linguistic works, and notes of interest to professional linguists.

MANUSCRIPTS for publication, exchange JOURNALS, and BOOKS for review should be sent to the Editor of LANGUAGE (Sarah G. Thomason, Dept. of Linguistics, University of Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh, PA 15260). Manuscripts of articles should be submitted in THREE copies, and manuscripts of reviews in TWO; they will not be returned unless postage is provided by contributors. LSA membership is not required for publication and manuscripts from non-LSA members are welcome.

An abbreviated LSA Style Sheet is provided below. For the complete Style Sheet, see the December LSA Bulletin.

Manuscript form. Manuscripts should be typed double-spaced throughout (including footnotes, quotations, and reference list) on $8\frac{1}{2} \times 11$ inch heavy-weight bond paper (ONE SIDE ONLY), with no less than $1\frac{1}{2}$ inch margins on all four sides. Type size should not be smaller than 12 pitch (characters per inch). Tables, charts, diagrams, extended quotations, and other passages to be set in smaller type (though not simple rules, examples, or formulae) must each appear on a separate sheet. All pages of the manuscript must be in a single pagination.

Abstract. Each manuscript submitted for publication should be accompanied by an abstract of about 100 words, summarizing the conceptual content of the article. It should be typed on a separate sheet of paper.

Text. Use only single quotation marks—never double except for quotes within quotes. Use a single straight underscore to indicate italic type, a double underscore for SMALL CAPITALS. Use normal capitalization. A letter, word, phrase, or sentence cited as a linguistic example or subject of discussion appears in italics—or else in phonetic or phonemic transcription, enclosed in square brackets or in slant lines.

Citations. Brief citations given in the text should take such forms as 'Examples are given in Nichols 1986', 'Bloomfield (1933:264) introduced the term ...', or 'Many coastal languages of the Northwest had sounds intermediate between nasal and voiced oral stops (Kinkade 1985).'

Footnotes. All footnotes must be typed (with double spacing) on a sheet or series of sheets following the main text. They must never appear on the same sheet with the text.

References. Full citation of literature referred to should be given in a bibliography at the end of each article or review, beginning on a separate page with the heading REFERENCES, and arranged alphabetically by surnames of authors. The format should be consistent with the following examples:
