Notes on Contributors

Michael Jabara Carley is a private scholar residing in Ottawa, Canada. He is the author of Revolution and Intervention: The French Government and the Russian Civil War, 1917–1919 (1983) and 1939: The Alliance That Never Was and the Coming of World War II (1999). Since 1990 he has published a series of articles on Anglo-Franco-Soviet relations between the two world wars.

Norrie MacQueen lectures in the Department of Political Science and Social Policy at the University of Dundee, Scotland. Author of The Decolonization of Portuguese Africa: Metropolitan Revolution and the Dissolution of Empire (1997), he is currently preparing The United Nations: Peacekeeping and the Cold War.

Piers Ludlow is a Lecturer in International History in the Department of International History, the London School of Economics. Author of Dealing With Britain: The Six and the First UK Application to the EEC (1997) and several articles on the European Community's historical development, he is currently in the midst of a detailed study of the 1965–6 crisis.

Gavriel D. Rosenfeld is Assistant Professor of History at Fairfield University. He is the author of Memory and the City: Architecture, Monuments, and the Legacy of the Third Reich in Postwar Munich (1999) and a number of articles on modern German and modern Jewish history.

John Turner is Professor of Modern History and Politics at and Vice-Principal of Royal Holloway College, University of London. Author of Lloyd George's Secretariat (1980), British Politics and the Great War (1992) and Macmillan (1994), he is currently completing a history of the British Conservative Party in the twentieth century.

Paul Addison is the Director of the Centre for Second World War Studies at the University of Edinburgh, Scotland. He is the author of The Road to 1945: British Politics and the Second World War (1975), Now the War is Over: A Social History of Britain 1945–51 (1985) and Churchill on the Home Front 1900–1955 (1992).

Contemporary European History, 8, 2 (1999), pp. 349–350 © 1999 Cambridge University Press
Printed in the United Kingdom

https://doi.org/10.1017/S0960777399002118 Published online by Cambridge University Press

Hans-Georg Betz is Associate Professor of International Relations at Koç University, Istanbul. Author of Radical Right-Wing Populism in Western Europe (1994) and co-editor (with Stefan Immerfall) of The New Politics of the Right (1998), he is currently working on politics and the internet.

Sergio Luzzatto is Associate Professor of Modern History at the University of Macerata, Italy. He has written extensively on the French Revolution and the French revolutionary tradition. His latest book deals with post-fascist Italy: Il corpo del duce. Un cadavere tra immaginazione, storia e memoria (1998).

Gisèle Sapiro is a researcher at the Centre National de la Recherche Scientifique (Centre de sociologie européenne, EHESS-Paris). She has published several articles on French writers and literary institutions during the German Occupation, including 'La raison littéraire. Le champ littéraire français sous l'Occupation (1940–1944)', Actes de la recherche en sciences sociales, 111–112 (March 1996), and is the author of La guerre des écrivains 1940–1953 (1999).

https://doi.org/10.1017/S0960777399002118 Published online by Cambridge University Press