CONTRIBUTORS

DANIEL BÉLAND holds the Canada Research Chair in Public Policy (Tier 1) at the Johnson-Shoyama Graduate School of Public Policy at the University of Saskatchewan. A specialist in fiscal and social policy, he has published fifteen books and more than a hundred articles in peer-reviewed journals. www.danielbeland.org
daniel.beland@usask.ca

EDWARD BERKOWITZ, a former member of the Journal of Policy History editorial board, teaches history and public policy at George Washington University. He has written on social welfare policy, the 1970s, and American cultural history. His most recent book, cowritten with Larry DeWitt, is The Other Welfare: Supplemental Security Income and U.S. Social Policy (Cornell).
ber@gwu.edu

JENNIFER STEPP BREEN, J.D., Ph.D., recently practiced immigration law and is currently working as a Judicial Clerk for the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit. She has taught politics at Ithaca College and recently coauthored an article in American Criminal Law Review on the Supreme Court's decision banning life without parole for juvenile offenders. She has contributed additional writing to The Journal of Politics, New Political Science, Bender's Immigration Bulletin, Journal of Children and Poverty, and The Nation.
jsb443@cornell.edu

MICHAL KOREH is Assistant Professor at the School of Social Work, Haifa University. A specialist in the relationship between fiscal and social policy from a historical and comparative perspective, her work has appeared in top international scholarly journals such as Journal of European Social Policy, Social Policy & Administration, and Socio-Economic Review.
korehm@gmail.com

TOMOARI MATSUNAGA is professor of economic history at the Yokohama National University in Japan. He specializes in the history of social policy.
t-matsu@ynu.ac.jp

JONATHAN OBERT is Assistant Professor of Political Science at Amherst College. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Chicago and is currently working on a book project exploring the coevolution of public and private forms of violence in American politics.
jobert@amherst.edu

NICOLAS RASMUSSEN is Professor of History and Philosophy of Science at the University of New South Wales in Sydney. His work concerns biomedical research and policy, especially in the mid-twentieth-century United States. He is author of Picture Control: The Electron Microscope and the Transformation of Biology in America, 1940–1960 (Stanford, 1997), On Speed: The Many Lives of Amphetamine (New York University, 2008), and Gene Jockeys: Life Science and Rise of Biotech Enterprise (Johns Hopkins, 2014).
N.Rasmussen@unsw.edu.au

THE JOURNAL OF POLICY HISTORY, Vol. 29, No. 4, 2017.
© Donald Critchlow and Cambridge University Press 2017
doi:10.1017/S089803061700032X

https://doi.org/10.1017/S089803061700032X Published online by Cambridge University Press

RAYMOND TATALOVICH is Professor of Political Science at Loyola University Chicago. He received his Ph.D. at the University of Chicago, where he studied under Theodore J. Lowi. His specialty is morality policy in the United States and Canada. Among his many published works is the coedited volume Moral Controversies in American Politics, 4th edition (M. E. Sharpe Publishers, 2011).
rtatalo@luc.edu

https://doi.org/10.1017/S089803061700032X Published online by Cambridge University Press