Contributors to this Issue

LARRY EUGENE JONES is Professor of History and Director of the International Relations Program at Canisius College (2001 Main Street, Buffalo, NY 14208–1098; e-mail: jones@canisius.edu). He is author of German Liberalism and the Dissolution of the Weimar Party System, 1918–1933 (1988) and has coedited three books: In Search of a Liberal Germany: Studies in the History of German Liberalism from 1789 to the Present (1990) with Konrad H. Jarausch; Elections, Mass Politics, and Social Change in Modern Germany: New Perspectives (1992) with James Retallack; and Between Reform, Reaction, and Resistance: Studies in the History of German Conservatism from 1789 to 1945 (1993) with James Retallack. He is currently working on an organizational history of the German Right from 1918 to 1934.

ANTHONY J. STEINHOFF is Assistant Professor of modern European history at the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga (615 McCallie Avenue, Dept. 2052, Chattanooga, TN 37403–2598; e-mail: Anthony-Steinhoff@utc.edu). He has published articles on modern European religious and cultural history that have appeared in Geschichte und Gesellschaft and the Journal of Urban History, as well as essays in the Blackwell Companion to Nineteenth-Century Europe, ed. Stefan Berger (forthcoming 2005); The Cambridge History of Christianity (vol. 9), ed. Sheridan Gilley and Brian Stanley (forthcoming 2006); Protestants, Catholics, and Jews in Germany, 1800–1914, ed. Helmut Walser Smith (Berg, 2001); and Religiöse Vergemeinschaftung in der Moderne, ed. Lucian Hölscher (forthcoming Wallstein, 2005). He is currently completing a monograph on Protestantism and urban religious culture in late nineteenth-century Strasbourg.

DAVID HAMLIN is Assistant Professor of History at Fordham University (Dept. of History, 441 East Fordham Rd., Bronx, NY 10458; e-mail: Hamlin@Fordham.edu). His publications include "The Structures of Toy Consumption: Bourgeois Domesticity and Demand for Toys in Nineteenth Century Germany" in Journal of Social History, as well as "Flexible Specialization and the German Toy Industry" in Social History. He is currently completing a book on the emergence of mass consumption and mass production in Germany.

PETER PARET is Professor Emeritus in the School of Historical Studies, Institute for Advanced Study (Institute for Advanced Study, Einstein Drive, Princeton, NJ 08540; e-mail: Paret@ias.edu). Among his recent publications are a volume of essays on German art, German Encounters with Modernism, 1840–1945 (Cambridge University Press, 2001); An Artist against the Third

https://doi.org/10.1163/156916105775563652 Published online by Cambridge University Press

Reich: Ernst Barlach, 1933–1938 (Cambridge University Press, 2003), which will appear in a German edition later this year; and "From Ideal to Ambiguity: Johannes von Müller, Clausewitz, and the People in Arms," in Journal of the History of Ideas, LXV, 1 (2004).

https://doi.org/10.1163/156916105775563652 Published online by Cambridge University Press