Notes on Contributors

Pierre-Yves Saunier is a researcher at the Centre National de la Recherche Scientifique (UMR 5600 Environnement Ville Société, Lyon, France). He has published a number of books and articles on urban history, including (with Bruno Dumons and Gilles Pollet) Les élites municipales sous la Troisième République. Des villes du Sud-est de la France (Paris, 1998). His current research deals with transnational circulations during the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, and his latest publication in this field is 'Ulysses of Chicago: American Foundations and Public Administration, 1900–1960', in Giuliana Gemelli and Roy McLeod, eds., American Foundations in Europe: Scientific Policies, Cultural Diplomacy and Transatlantic Relations, 1920–1980 (Brusssels, 2002). He is a Review Editor of Contemporary European History.

Renaud Payre lectures at the Institut d'etudes Politiques at Grenoble. He is currently completing his doctoral dissertation on municipal reform in France in the first half of the twentieth century, with special reference to the birth of governmental sciences. His article 'Un possible non institutionnalisé. Socio-histoire de la "science communale" (1900–1950)', has just appeared in Yves Déloye and Bernard Voutat, eds., Faire de la science politique (Paris, 2002).

Hanna Kozińska-Witt is a tenured researcher at the Geisteswissenschaflisches Zentrum Kultur und Geschichte Ostmitteleuropas (GWZO) in Leipzig. Her fields of interest are the history of Polish lands and the history of Poland in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, with specific concern for Jewish and urban history. Her most recent publications are 'Zeremonielle Landschaften: Das Beispiel Krakau im 19. and zu Beginn des 20. Jahrhunderts', and 'Stadträte und polnische Presse: Die Fälle Warschau und Krakau 1900–1939. Ein Versuch', in Andreas R. Hoffmann and Anna Veronika Wendland, eds., Stadt und Öffentlichkeit in Ostmitteleuropa 1900–1939 (Stuttgart, 2002).

Patrizia Dogliani is Associate Professor of Modern European History at the University of Bologna. She is the author of many essays and books on comparative European history, with special interests in youth, local government, socialism, fascism and public memory in postwar societies. Among her most recent books are L'Italia fascista, 1922–1940 (Milan, 1999) and L'Europa a scuola: percorsi dell'istruzione tra Ottocento e Novecento (Rome, 2002).

Contemporary European History, 11, 4 (2002), pp. 675–676 © 2002 Cambridge University Press
DOI:10.1017/S0960777302004101 Printed in the United Kingdom

https://doi.org/10.1017/S0960777302004101 Published online by Cambridge University Press

Oscar Gaspari works in the office of the President of the Italian Council of Ministers. His research activities cover relations between national governments, institutions and authorities, with local communities from the late nineteenth to the twentieth centuries dealing with both national and international dimensions. His work deals with both rural (mountainous) and urban areas: the former with reference to forestry and environmental policies, the latter with reference to associations of municipalities, provinces and municipal enterprises. He is the author of L'Italia dei municipi. Il movimento comunale in età liberale (1879–1906) (Rome, 1998).

Antoine Vion is maître de conférences at the Mediterranean University (Aix-Marseille 2), and a member of the Institute of Labour Economics and Industrial Sociology (UMR CNRS 6123). The analysis of the internationalisation of local governance is the main focus of his research. His publications include 'Politique culturelle et gouvernance urbaine' (with Patrick Le Galès), Politiques et Management Public, 16, 1 (March, 1998), 'Le gouvernement urbain saisi par l'internationalisation', in P. Hassenteufel and J. Fontaine, Analyser le changement dans les politiques publiques (Rennes, 2002).

John Connelly is Associate Professor at the Department of History, University of California, Berkeley. His publications include Capitve University: The Sovietization of Higher Education in East Germany, the Czech Lands, and Poland (Chapel Hill, 2000). He is currently interested in exploring the relationship between religious faith and inter-ethnic tolerance in east central Europe between the two world wars. He acts as Corresponding Editor for North America for Contemporary European History.

Victor-Yves Ghebali lectures in international relations at the Institut Universitaire de Hautes Etudes Internationales, Geneva. After some early research on the League of Nations he specialised in East–West co-operation, particularly the Conference on Security and Co-operation in Europe/Organisation for Security and Co-operation in Europe, on which he has published widely. His latest publications are Le rêve d'un ordre mondial (with P. Gerbet and M.-R. Mouton) (Paris, 1996) and L'OSCE dans l'Europe post-communiste. Vers une identité paneuropéenne de sécurité (Brussels, 1996).

Matthew Gabel is Associate Professor in the Department of Political Science and the Martin School of Public Policy and Administration at the University of Kentucky. He is Associate Editor of the journal European Union Politics and the author of Interests and Integration: Market Integration, Public Opinion, and European Union (Ann Arbor, 1998). His research focuses on questions of international political economy and democratic processes, particularly in the European Union.

https://doi.org/10.1017/S0960777302004101 Published online by Cambridge University Press