Notes on Contributors

Gary Bruce is an Assistant Professor of History at the University of Waterloo, Canada. His research focuses on issues of resistance and control in modern German history. His most recent publications include Resistance with the People : Repression and Resistance in Eastern Germany 1945–1955 (2003) which was published in the Harvard Cold War Studies Book Series.

Giuseppe Finaldi is a lecturer at the University of Western Australia. His research focuses on Italy's experience of empire and he is currently writing a book on Italian Fascism. He has recently published 'Culture and Imperialism in a "Backward" Nation ? The Prima Guerra d'Africa (1885–1896) in Italian Primary Schools', in The Journal of Modern Italian Studies (2003).

Nancy Jachec received her Ph.D. in History of Art from the University of London in 1994, and is currently Principal Lecturer in the School of Arts and Humanities, Oxford Brookes University. Her current research interests focus on European cultural policy during the cold war, and the cultural programmes of the Council of Europe and the WEU. She is currently completing a monograph, Politics and Gesture Painting at the Venice Biennale 1948–1964 : The European Idea (to be published in 2006), and has recently convened the British Academy-sponsored international conference, '1956 : Cultural Legacies of Political Change'. The European components of the conference will be appearing in a special issue of Third Text in 2005.

Magnus P. S. Persson is a Lecturer in the Department of History, Lund University, and Lecturer at the School of the Humanities, Växjö University. His research explores policies of the great powers in the Middle East, and he has more recently become interested in the role of water in facilitating co-operation and conflict. His recent publications include Great Britain, the United States and the Security of the Middle East : the Formation of the Baghdad Pact (1998) and '"Water wars" in the Middle East ? Perspectives on Water and Armed Conflicts' (in Swedish), Journal of Middle Eastern Studies (2002).

Brian Porter is an Associate Professor of History at the University of Michigan, where he specialises in modern Roman Catholic history and the history of Poland. He is the author of When Nationalism Began To Hate : Imagining Modern Politics in Contemporary European History, 14, 2 (2005), pp. 277–278 © 2005 Cambridge University Press doi:10.1017/S0960777305002365 Printed in the United Kingdom

https://doi.org/10.1017/S0960777305002365 Published online by Cambridge University Press

Nineteenth-Century Poland (2000), as well as numerous articles on Catholicism, nationalism, antisemitism, and liberalism in such journals as The American Historical Review, The Journal of Modern History, The Catholic Historical Review, Slavic and East European Journal, Polin and the Polish Review. He is currently working on a book with the tentative title of For God and Fatherland : Catholicism, Modernity, and Poland.

Julius Ruiz is a post-doctoral Fellow at the University of Edinburgh. His first book, Franco's Justice : Repression in Madrid after the Spanish Civil War, will be published this year.

Alexis Schwarzenbach currently holds a Swiss National Science Fund post-doctoral research fellowship and is working on a cultural history of twentieth-century monarchies which will become his Habilitation. His most recent publications include a biography of one of his great-grandmothers, Die Geborene. Renée Schwarzenbach-Wille und ihre Familie (2004), and a book on the most famous Swiss physicist, Das verschmähte Genie. Albert Einstein und die Schweiz (2005).

https://doi.org/10.1017/S0960777305002365 Published online by Cambridge University Press